'BEST-KEPT OTTAWA SECRET'

Schreyer New Gov.-Gen.

Times News Services

Ed Schreyer, former New Democratic Party premier of Manitoba, has been named Canada's next Governor-General.

The appointment was announced this morning from both Buckingham Palace, where Prime Minister Trudeau notified the Queen of the choice, and from the prime minister's office in Ottawa.

Trudeau is in London on a two-day visit to that city and Paris.

Schreyer, 43 on Dec. 31, is the fifth Governor-General since Canadians began to be selected for the role of Queen's agent in 1952.

A native of Beausejour, Man., he is the second western Canadian to hold the post. Roland Michener, Leger's predecessor,was from Lacombe, Alta., but spent most of his life in Eastern Canada.

Speaking to reporters in Winnipeg shortly after his appointment was announced, Schreyer said:

"I am looking forward with enthusiasm to the role and responsibilities, but I would be less than honest if I didn't say I was somewhat suprised and slightly overwhelmed."

The governor-general-designate said he received the first official word on his appointment at breakfast time Tuesday in a telephone call from Prime Minister Trudeau.

The possibility had been mentioned to him in an "almost anonymous" telephone call two or three weeks earlier, but he said he didn't take the call seriously, he added.

Schreyer said he discussed the appointment with his wife and family, and accepted the offer an hour or so later.

Schreyer has spent most of his adult life in politics — first as an MP in the House of Commons and later as leader of the Manitoba New Democratic Party. He took over the helm of the party in 1969 and within weeks was on his way to forming the province's first socialist government.

Since the NDP's defeat in the 1977 provincial election, he has served as leader of the official opposition in the legislature.

Schreyer admitted today that he had a few regrets about leaving politics for his new non-partisan duties.

"I do have a tremendous feeling of nostalgia and regret," he said. "But on the other hand, I feel . . . I will be able to fill the position and responsibility with judiciousness and impartiality."

Premier Sterling Lyon issued a statement congratulating Schreyer moments after the appointment was made public.

BILLOWING SMOKE signals threat to main building of historic Notre Dame Church in the old section of Montreal today. Arson is suspected as the blaze, which began during early mass in Sacre Coeur chapel at rear of the huge building, caused extensive damage and covered city's financial district with smoke. More than 250 firemen fought the flames, which also damaged part of the church's museum. Officials say there have been three occasions recently in which individuals have been caught trying to set fire to the 149-year-old structure, modelled after Notre Dame Cathedral in Paris.

ICBC Adjuster's Brag Sparks Rip-Off Probe

By DEREK SIDENIUS
Times Staff

An investigation has been launched into allegations that a Victoria-based Insurance Corporation of B.C. claims adjuster attempted to cheat a young Sooke couple.

An ICBC spokesman said today a senior claims official in Vancouver has been sent to Victoria to look into charges levelled by Karen Lennox and Ian Gilchrist, of the West Coast Road.

The couple say they received a settlement from ICBC for a car accident and hours later overheard the adjuster brag to a friend how he had "ripped them off" for a set of expensive wheels.

The incident occurred two months ago.

Deputy Premier Grace McCarthy, the minister in charge of ICBC, said today she had not heard about the incident but wants a full report on the case.

Lennox and Gilchrist have since been trying without success through their lawyer to get an investigation and review of their settlement.

ICBC's claims section in Vancouver ordered the investigation after the Victoria Times contacted the corporation about the couple's charge.

The claim involves Gilchrist's 1976 Ford truck which was demolished Sept. 29 in an accident on Anderson Road in Sooke.

In an interview, Miss Lennox said ICBC gave Gilchrist a cheque for $3,400 to cover the loss.

A few hours later she and Gilchrist were in the Red Lion Inn when they overheard the adjuster say to a friend ". . .and as I was telling you, this kid came in with a big green Ford, and I took him for his tires."

"We couldn't believe our ears," Miss Lennox said.

"Ian turned around and looked at him and said 'So, there you are, eh.'"

She said the adjuster blanched.

"I thought he was going to have a stroke on the spot."

Ironically Gilchrist was on the phone to the ICBC office at the time inquiring about medical benefits (he was slightly injured in the accident).

"Ian said 'Hold it, give me Number One, pull my file, I'm coming over,'" Lennox said.

The couple saw the adjuster's supervisor, John Lubinich.

"We felt a guy who tries to rip you off shouldn't be working for ICBC — after all, they're supposed to work for us — and we told the supervisor so," she said.

But Lubinich refused to act, she said.

"He told us the union was pretty strong and that all he could do was reprimand him. He didn't want to rock the boat."

Gilchrist's claim was reassessed however and a week later he picked up a cheque for $3,935.

But Lennox said she and Ian subsequently discovered the Blue Book price for his truck was $4,200. The Blue Book is a listing of selling prices normally used by used-car dealers. In addition Gilchrist had bought expensive on-road, off-road tires and mag wheels worth about $600.

She said he originally bought the truck for $5,400 and $600 was still owed on a bank loan.

ICBC refused to say how they disposed of the truck. Miss Lennox said a friend noticed it at an auto body shop in Sidney this week.

Efforts to get ICBC to reopen their claim have so far failed, she said.

Emergency Session Called for Friday

By PAUL NICHOLSON
Times Staff

An emergency session of the legislature has been called for 10 a.m. Friday to end the bitter 12-day-old labor dispute that has disrupted school classes in the West Kootenays.

Premier Bill Bennett's ultimatum Wednesday to the two sides to resolve the dispute by 8 a.m. today or be legislated back to work passed with neither party even willing to talk to the other.

Shortly after the deadline, Bennett left a cabinet meeting — the first since Monday's massive shuffle — to announce he had asked Speaker Harvey Schroeder to reconvene the house.

Bennett and Labor Minister Allan Williams expressed disappointment the Canadian Union of Public Employees and the four school districts involved had failed to move.

But Muriel Overgaard, president of CUPE's B.C. division, said the government is using the dispute as an excuse to do what they want to do.

"They are ready with essential services legislation and they are anxious to bring it in," she said in an interview.

"I don't think there is any need for it and it is going to cause an awful lot of disruption in the labor movement."

She said the real problem is that the wages of employees in the Nelson school district and at Selkirk College are "ridiculously low."

Employees in the other three school districts, with 75 per cent of the students, have been locked out unnecessarily, Overgaard said.

It's expected the special session will wrap up its business in one day.

THEY'D STAMP OUT NAKED BABY JESUS

GARDEN CITY, Kan. (AP) — Three local women say the U.S. postal service is selling indecent material— Christmas commemorative stamps depicting a naked baby Jesus. They want their money back.

The stamp depicts a sculpture by 15th-century artist Andrea della Robbia titled Madonna and Child With Cherubim, on display at the National Gallery of Art in Washington, D.C.

Mrs. Tom Claire, Garden City postal clerk, said one woman brought her roll of stamps back because she said they were indecent.

"She asked me to look," Mrs. Claire said. "I looked and I still didn't see anything. I looked again and she said the child wasn't clothed and that she wouldn't put the stamp on her cards."

Two other women came in on separate occasions to return their stamps for the same reason, she said.

Mrs. Claire said the woman wanted her money back but was given stamps bearing reindeer instead.

The meeting would be the second conducted by the Western leaders in less than six months.

Roberts Mum On Air Trip

By JIM ROBB
Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — Secretary of State John Roberts refused to confirm or deny Wednesday reports that he and his wife were planning a $6,000 Christmas-break trip to watch, in the words of Kipling's poem, "the dawn come up like thunder," in Rangoon, using a pass issued by CP Air.

The thunder rolled early around Roberts' head in and out of the Commons after the Montreal newspaper La Presse reported details of a trip apparently planned by the minister and his wife to the Far East from Dec. 24 to Jan. 2.

The La Presse account quoted the reservation number for the alleged trip by Roberts and his wife as GW 122 and said it carried the notation "minister and wife on pass," in the CP reservations log.

The minister would not talk about his vacation plans with reporters, saying that "I never talk about my vacation plans."

Roberts admitted he might be going to the Far East over Christmas, adding that Conservative MP Jed Baldwin (Peace River) had suggested a visit by parliamentarians to Australia to

Double Defeat for Jim Campbell

CAMPBELL

Saturna Island's Jim Campbell was floored twice at Wednesday's meeting of the Capital Regional District's board.

First Victoria alderman Murray Glazier defeated Campbell in his bid for a seventh year as chairman in an 11-7 secret ballot.

Then directors dumped a decision by the executive committee — made at a meeting chaired by Campbell — that a chairman be chosen by the regional electorate at large as a kind of supermayor.

The chairman would owe allegiance to no particular part of the regional district but to the district as a whole.

Sooke director Charles Perkins was also nominated for chairman but declined in favor of Campbell.

After becoming chairman, Glazier nominated Campbell for the post of acting chairman.

It was then Campbell's turn to support Perkins.

"I've done what I believe to be the best for this board for the past six years and enjoyed it thoroughly," he said.

"The board has no need to see my face as vice-chairman. They will be seeing my face regularly and hearing my voice regularly. I wholeheartedly support Charlie Perkins. He is perfectly capable to do the job."

Perkins was unanimously elected acting chairman.

In reply to Glazier's nomination Campbell also said, "I believe in change — although perhaps not the one the board has just made."

Campbell had talked of the supermayor concept during his inaugural address in 1977 and the concept is one of the recommendations made in the report recently presented to the municipal affairs ministry by the regional district review committee.

Saanich representatives Mayor Mel Couvelier and aldermen Howard Sturrock and Fred Severson led the move to scuttle the supermayor proposal on Wednesday.

At a recent executive meeting, Glazier said he opposed it on the grounds the position could become a tool of political parties.

Couvelier, at his first meeting since being elected on Monday by his council, said it was more logical that the chairman be elected by his peers.

Esquimalt Mayor Art Young disagreed with Sturrock's argument that the chairman should not be elected at large because neither premiers nor prime ministers are.

Couvelier cited voter apathy as another reason for not electing a chairman at large.

examine freedom of information issue in that country. He might also visit Japan in an official capacity.

"My practice has always been, if I combine business with pleasure, that I pay personally for any extra costs that are involved in the pleasure aspect," Roberts asserted.

Ten days ago, it was reported that Alberta Premier Peter Lougheed had accepted free air travel passes from both CP Air and Air Canada. This fall the Alberta premier and his wife travelled without charge to Hawaii for a vacation.

Lougheed defended the trips saying he was sure the people of Alberta wanted him to get the rest he needed to carry out his duties. He also said that he assumed the passes were part of the normal courtesies extended by the airlines to political leaders.

All members of the federal cabinet and leaders of the opposition parties get annual first class passes from Air Canada and CP Air.

But an Air Canada spokesman said the passes issued by his airline were for official business only in Canada.

La Presse said that CP Air routinely offers free first-class tickets to federal cabinet ministers, the leader of the opposition and certain members of the Canadian Transport Commission, the federal agency that regulates air travel in Canada.

Roberts told reporters that he might go to Japan on ministerial business during the Christmas break. And he planned to meet with the provincial ministers of education from the Atlantic provinces, and hopefully Quebec, before Christmas.

The issue was raised in the Commons by Creditiste MP Richard Janelle (Lotbiniere), who asked Prime Minister Trudeau if the use of free passes by ministers for vacations did not contravene the code of ethics he had issued governing ministerial conduct.

Trudeau said that he had not seen the newspaper account that prompted Janelle's question. The prime minister said Air Canada passes were issued for the use of ministers when they had occasion to travel across the country.

Trudeau told Conservative MP David MacDonald (Egmont) that no precise guidelines for ministers existed on the use of airline passes.

Speaker's Ruling Puts Liberals on Spot

OTTAWA (CP) — Speaker James Jerome ruled Wednesday that Conservative MP Allen Lawrence was deliberately misled by the Liberal government in a 1973 letter saying RCMP did not open mail.

Jerome ruled in favor of arguments by Lawrence, a former Ontario attorney-general, that his ability to ask questions had been damaged because of a false government statement.

Commons business was immediately suspended as MPs began debate on a Lawrence motion, approved by Jerome on procedural grounds, that an all-party committee look into details of the letter he received from then solicitor-general Warren Allmand.

The debate was to resume today and was expected to be followed by a recorded vote.

However, the government made clear that its Liberal majority would not allow the matter to be referred to the committee. The Commons must approve the motion for that to happen.

Lawrence raised the matter of the letter several weeks ago.

That letter said in part: "I have been assured by the RCMP that it is not their practice to intercept the private mail of anyone." It has subsequently been revealed Mounties opened mail.

The motion must be passed by the Commons and it was not immediately clear when a recorded vote would be held.

Lawrence appealed to the government to refer the matter to the committee and therefore avoid "all kinds of conclusions that could be reached if it was not allowed to proceed."

New Democrat Stuart Leggatt said considering that Jerome has found there has been a contempt of Parliament, the Speaker would have to consider resigning if the Liberal majority rejected the motion.

Lawrence first raised the issue a few days after former RCMP commissioner William Higgitt told the McDonald royal commission that the force prepared a letter for Allmand's signature that was "not drafted on precise statements of fact."

It was revealed by former solicitor-general Francis Fox in November, 1977, that the RCMP had been intercepting and opening mail for at least 10 years.

The government has claimed it had no previous knowledge of this fact before that date.

Jerome ruled that Lawrence's privilege as an MP was held in contempt and that the Commons must immediately consider his motion.

Lawrence, (Northumberland Durham) told the Commons it would be "a travesty and a great injustice," if the government majority turned down the opposition in a vote.

Lawrence said the Commons committee should be allow to hire a lawyer to assist in its investigation and questioning of witnesses.

It should also be permitted to order witnesses to appear before it. Commons committee now must request the House to order a witness to appear if the witness will not give evidence voluntarily.

Leggatt appealed to the Liberal majority, which generally vote the way cabinet wants, to vote in favor of the motion.

He said that the House had overturned a finding the Speaker only once since 1965.

That was on a ruling of Jerome earlier this year that there was evidence the privileges of John Rodriguez (NDP—Nickel Belt) had been violated because he had been unknowingly tape recorded by self-describing RCMP agent Warren Hart.

Hart said in a sworn affidavit that he had been paid by the RCMP to tape Rodriguez.

Jerome rose later to indicate he felt no pressure to resign should the government vote down the motion.

"Even our lawyer hasn't had much luck. Finally someone said we should go to the press. That was the best way to get action."

Lubinich refused to comment when questioned by the Times and denied making statements about the union.

But he confirmed the adjuster is still working in the claims section.

"Any more information will have to come from Victoria ICBC claims centre manager Jack Bell," he said.

But Bell also refused to comment on the matter, saying only that he was aware of the incident and would not not condone such behavior.

Bell said the problem had been "handled internally" but refused to specify what disciplinary action, if any, had been taken against the adjuster.

He said any more information would have to come from Bev Penhall, manager of information services in Vancouver.

Penhall was not available but his assistant reported later an inquiry had been ordered.

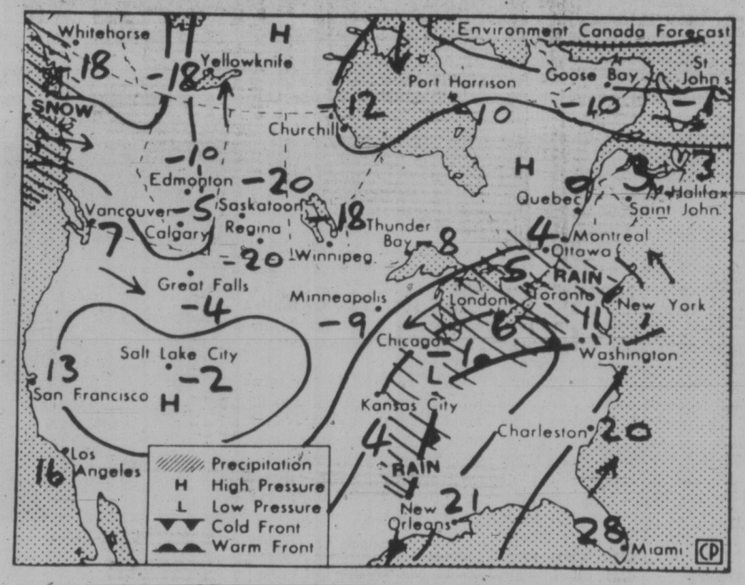

Map valid until noon Friday

A massive ridge of high pressure that held firm over the eastern Pacific for the last few days is now showing signs of weakening. A series of Pacific weather disturbances is leading the attack, gradually forcing the ridge to move eastward and shrink. Rain from the systems already is showing up on the north coast and a little snow has managed to creep into the central interior. High clouds spreading to southern sections of the province today will bring a gradual moderation in temperatures to all regions.

ENVIRONMENT CANADA WEATHER OFFICE 10 A.M. FORECASTS

Former Premier Named

Even before Schreyer was defeated as NDP premier, there were persistant reports that Trudeau was trying to get him into the federal field.

Among posts said to have been offered to him were energy minister if he won election as a federal MP and chairman of the National Energy Board.

Commenting on the appointment, former prime minister John Diefenbaker said: "An amazing decision."

"I wish him well."

Diefenbaker called news of the appointment one of the best kept secrets in years.

Later, federal NDP leader Ed Broadbent issued a statement saying he is delighted at Schreyer's appointment.

"He has an exemplarary reputation for personal integrity and commitment to the common good," Broadbent said.

"As a Western Canadian who speaks both official languages, but who himself is not of either English or French ancestry, his appointment is an important recognition of our diverse cultural heritage."

In an official statement, Trudeau's office said Schreyer will take over as vice-regal head in late January.

The former premier is the son of a pioneer farm family who took his schooling in Manitoba.

Victoria Exchanges [382, 385 & 386] move into new electronic community.

At midnight on December 8, 1978 the Victoria telephone exchanges 382, 385 & 386 will be converted to the new electronic system which B.C. Tel is busy advancing throughout the province.

The whole idea is not only highly sophisticated but a significant step towards bringing you more efficient service.

Already 23 exchanges in B.C. have been converted to take advantage of the new electronic system. Five switchovers were completed in 1978 and a further eleven are planned for 1979.

By 1981, nearly half the phones in B.C. will be electronically controlled. By 1985, three-quarters of the phones will be converted.

As you would expect, a conversion such as this is a huge project. The benefits, especially in the long run, are equally substantial.

Cost control - and its ultimate effect on the rates you will pay for phone service in the future - is the major benefit to telephone customers. For many reasons - among them maintenance efficiency, space-saving, operational reliability - electronic switching technology helps us meet customer needs effectively and, at the same time, to hold the line as best we can against the costs of providing service to you.

Say "hi" to your electronic neighbours.

Floating Lifeline For Japan. . .

TOKYO (AP) — Twenty Japanese tankers laden with 1.5 billion gallons of Arab oil are sitting motionless in the Pacific near Iwo Jima. They're a floating stockpile to help assure that the flow of oil, vital to Japan's industry, doesn't dry up.

The tankers have only one order from the Japanese government: stay in a 650-square-kilometre (250-square-mile) area south of Japan until needed. Some have been there since Sept. 1, with their engines running just enough to buck the currents.

"The tanker reserve . . . uses idle tankers and is part of the official program to increase Japan's emergency oil reserve to 20 million tons (six billion gallons) by the year 1985," said Kazuo Takayama, chief planner of the Japan National Oil Corp. Japan uses about 220 million gallons of oil a day.

Japan has no oil of its own and there is not enough storage space on land to hold the reserves the country feels it needs.

Alarmed at world criticism of its huge trade surplus, $11 billion last year, the Japanese started an emergency import program, including the import of oil to be stored in tankers.

"Whenever a typhoon approaches, the tankers are ordered to take refugee in designated ports," Takayama said.

Tankers are also instructed to keep about 35 kilometres apart to avoid collisions. The crews, about 30 on each tanker, are changed every three months.

Namibia Terror Attack Rebuffed

WINDHOEK (AP) — South Africa said today its troops killed four black nationalist guerrillas in a clash with insurgents heading south from Angola, apparently in a bid to disrupt this week's South African-sponsored elections.

The Angolan-based South-West Africa Peoples' Organization has pledged to wreck elections in the South African-run territory, also known as South-West Africa, and to assassinate participating political leaders.

Despite the SWAPO threats and the killing of the four guerrillas Wednesday, Gen. Marthinus Steyn, the territory's South African administrator, told a news conference that 61.5 per cent of the 416,000 registered black and white voters—153,954 persons—had cast ballots so far.

South Africa is holding the elections in the territory it has governed for 58 years in defiance of demands by the United Nations and the United States to hold elections supervised by the UN to determine the fate of the mineral-rich territory.

South Africa has expressed its willingness to hold elections supervised by the UN after the completion of the current vote.

Carter Stands Firm On Pact Deadline

Times News Services

WASHINGTON — President Carter warned the leaders of Egypt and Israel today that failure to meet the Dec. 17 deadline on negotiating a Middle East peace treaty would be "a very serious matter."

Failure to meet that deadline, set at the Camp David summit in September, "would cast doubt on whether the Egyptians and the Israelis would carry out the difficult terms of the upcoming peace treaty," Carter said.

Speaking with reporters at a White House breakfast meeting, the president said that if negotiations are not concluded by Dec. 17, "it would set a precedent that would have far-reaching, adverse effects."

Meanwhile, Israeli Foreign Minister Moshe Dayan today denied reports he would be meeting Egyptian Prime Minister Mustafa Khalil in Europe to get the bogged-down peace talks back on course.

"I have no plans to meet with him (Khalil)," Dayan said in an English-language Swiss radio interview monitored in Israel.

"I have no information about such a meeting."

Further, a top aide of Prime Minister Menachem Begin, Yehiel Kadishai, denied reports Defence Minister Ezer Weizman might meet Khalil in London. Weizman was in Tel Aviv, aides said.

"There are no meetings and there are no trips," Kadishai said.

Diplomatic sources had earlier reported such a meeting was in the making — the first direct contact between officials of the two nations since Nov. 16.

Since then, treaty negotiations have been stalemated over Egyptian demands for, and Israeli rejection of, a specific timetable for establishing Palestinian autonomy on the occupied West Bank and Gaza Strip.

Sources in Washington said Khalil and Dayan would meet in London as early as today.

Earlier, Khalil told a reporter from the Vienna newspaper Der Kurier, "There is a connection between my trip and that of Dayan to Switzerland."

The reports came as U.S. Secretary of State Cyrus Vance prepared to leave on his eighth mission to the Middle East to bring both sides closer in the talks and get a treaty signed.

Envoy's Auto Firebombed

NEW YORK (Reuter) — A group calling itself the New Jewish Defence League destroyed a Egyptian diplomat's car Wednesday with a firebomb.

It was the third attack on property owned by Egpytian diplomats in New York in the last six weeks and all attacks appear aimed at protesting the peace treaty now being negotiated between Israel and Egypt.

Spain Votes For Freedom

MADRID (AP) — More than 70 per cent of eligible Spaniards voted Wednesday on a new constitution guaranteeing democratic rights under parliamentary monarchy and early returns showed them overwhelmingly in favor of it.

First returns showed 85 per cent favored the new constitution, officials said. They said 10.5 per cent of the total vote had been counted and final returns will not be available until today.

Despite fears that political terrorists would strike and disrupt the voting, the referendum pointed to a clear victory for the government and King Juan Carlos, the hand-picked successor of the late dictator Francisco Franco.

Officials had predicted 75 per cent of Spain's 24 million eligible voters would turn out. Government officials said the number apparently fell short because of rain and fears of anti-government violence, which has claimed more than 60 lives this year.

In the violence-torn northern Basque region, where the separatists have demanded voters turn down the consitution or stay away from the polls, some voters who feared reprisals hid their faces from photographers after voting.

The referendum was opposed by Francoists, some Catholic bishops and also extreme leftists, including the Basque separatists.

European Monetary Union

The highest hopes of the united-Europe movement have not been realized at this week's summit meeting on European monetary union because Britain has declined to participate, at least for the time being. But the agreement of six of the nine member countries of the Common Market to join in the new monetary system brings the idea of a true European political and economic union at least one small step closer.

The six countries — France, West Germany, Belgium, the Netherlands, Luxembourg, and Denmark — have agreed to have their currencies float together, varying no more than 2.25 per cent from one another. More important, they have agreed to back the currency union with a joint reserve fund formed of 20 per cent of each member's currency reserves.

Although it is not explicitly stated, a major effect of the policy will be to bind fairly closely together the fiscal and general economic policies of the six countries. Inflation — and certainly the growth of the money supply — must be kept at roughly the same rate in all six. Unemployment must not be allowed to become vastly higher or lower in one than in the others. Current relationships concerning such matters as balance of payments must be maintained.

Unless these parallel economic paths are maintained by the six countries, the union will not be able to hold together. The pressures that would be placed on the currency of a country with significantly different economic trends would be irresistible.

And once a group of countries is committed, even by inference, to a similar economic policy, along with the identical trade, customs and agriculture policies already agreed to by all Common Market countries, it is drawing increasingly close to becoming a federation.

Those who are pushing for a United States of Europe can also take heart from the reasons Britain gave for not entering the monetary system now and from the fact that she will be willing to look at the matter again in a few months.

The British government was not in essence opposed to the scheme, but simply realized that at the moment Britain cannot afford to participate. Her economy is so much weaker than, say, West Germany's that she could not have her currency fixed to the level of the deutschmark. The only alternative would be for the government to revalue the pound, which would probably lead in turn to a weakening in the export market and corresponding unemployment at home.

Not only Britain but the six charter participants will undoubtedly find many difficulties before the new system begins to work satisfactorily. But the first step has been taken and Europe should be congratulated.

A Ghost of Christmas Past

Observers of the civic scene generally agree that Mayor Mike Young's sole aim in demoting Ald. Robin Blencoe when he assigned committee chairmanships this week was to inflict whatever political punishment he could on the maverick young alderman.

Young's argument that he was trying to "balance the workload" among aldermen when he took the parks portfolio away from Blencoe, leaving him with only recreational facilities, just doesn't hold water. Ald. Larry Ryan, for instance, had three areas of responsibility added to his existing personnel portfolio, although personnel is sure to be a heavy job in 1979, what with the breaking in of a new personnel director and delicate contract talks with outside and inside workers.

But if Young feels satisfied that the obvious public demotion has put Blencoe in his place, he should review a little history:

In 1970, a newly-elected alderman spent the year upsetting the smug complacency of the council of the day. Taking up for the first time issues that now are commonplace opinions, he called for long-range planning for transportation, parks and Inner Harbor renewal and deplored the proliferation of highrises throughout the city, especially in James Bay and along the waterfront.

In return he was constantly condemned by all the other council members who sometimes spent entire meetings attacking his "negative attitude," "attacks on management" and "disregard of city council."

And when the mayor of the day, the late Courtney Haddock, came to make his committee appointments at the inaugural meeting of 1971, Haddock punished the new alderman as much as he could.

He demoted him from chairman of the important and prestigious planning and community development committee to chairman of the health and welfare committee — a portfolio so minor it has since disappeared from city hall annals. He moved him so that he couldn't even be a member of the community development committee any more. He took him off the powerful advisory planning commission.

The new alderman said he was not surprised. He spent the rest of 1971 continuing to hammer at the same issues — being, incidentally, far more negative towards the existing council members and policies than Blencoe ever has been and continuing to infuriate the rest of the council.

The next fall he was ready to take his so-called "radical" ideas to the people of Victoria. He defeated Haddock by 2,240 votes in the race for mayor, gaining almost 50 per cent of the ballots cast in a four-way contest.

He remained mayor for four years, and by the time he stepped down in 1975, many of his rebel causes were integral parts of the city's policy and thinking.

His name was Peter Pollen.

Iran Crisis Attracts USSR

WASHINGTON — The present crisis in Iran involves conflicts of personalities, philosophies and economics in that country beyond the understanding of outsiders, but it also raises fundamental industrial and military issues that affect the balance of power in the world.

In the two world wars of this century, one of the major objectives of both sides was to cut off supplies of the food, fuel and other essential raw materials, and strangle the enemy by blockading his ports and sea lanes.

This was a long and complicated struggle of scientific, naval and aerial warfare on, under and above the oceans of the world, which prolonged the agony on both sides for years.

But with the increasing industrialization of the world in the third quarter of the 20th century, and its increasing reliance on fossil fuels to propel the factories and armies of the divided and suspicious nations, a new strategic concept has emerged in the Pentagons of the world.

Control At Source

This is that it is more important to control power at the major source of fuel than to chase tankers with submarines, aircraft carriers and battleships all over the wide oceans and endless coasts and ports of the world. If you can dominate the oil wells, in short, you can cut the enemy's jugular.

Short of strategic planning for world war, which goes on even when nations are talking peace, political control or influence over any oil-rich nation like Iran or Saudi Arabia can obviously affect politics in other parts of the world.

For example it is estimated here that there is a tanker out of the Middle East bound for Japan every hundred miles every day of the year, and industrial Europe is almost as dependent on this fuel as Japan. Accordingly, you seldom hear the Japanese or the Europeans siding with the Israelis against the oil producers of the Middle East.

Even the United States, which is increasingly dependent on Middle East oil, did not hesitate to sell modern aircraft to Saudi Arabia against the wishes of Israel, and despite all the talk here about limiting the world arms traffic, Washington has been trading the most sophisticated military weapons to Iran for oil and is now doing all it can to help the shah in his political trouble.

The Soviet Union did not create the political tangles in Iran, but as usual, it will exploit the shah's difficultjes to its own advantage whenever it can. Even the Russian czars leaned on Persia in their yearning for warm-water ports and access to the southern seas, and Moscow has watched the modernization of Iran and particularly its growing acquisition of modern American arms with considerable concern.

Also, in this endless competition between Washington and Moscow, events have not been going Moscow's way in recent years. They have apparently increased their influence as a result of the latest transfer of power in Afghanistan, and they have been working with Syria, Iraq, Libya and other states that oppose a reconciliation between Egypt and Israel.

But on the major political problems abroad, Russian president Leonid Brezhnev has even more anxieties than U.S. president Jimmy Carter. Brezhnev has not been able to compose his differences with the new regime in China. If anything, the emergence of the new leaders of Peking into the world of modern technology has increased the competition and conflict between these two major Communist states.

Japan has not been intimidated by the Soviet Union's opposition to a treaty of friendship between Tokyo and Peking, but has gone ahead anyway, very carefully and courteously but in the end very definitely.

Soviet influence in India, in Egypt, and even among the Communist parties of Western Europe had declined, and there is now a new Polish pope in Rome, who is defending the right of personal conscience and is seen as a reaffirmation of the Roman church that Eastern Europe is still a part of Western Christian civilization and not a captive of the secular philosophy of Russia and Communism.

Against this background, it is not surprising that Moscow should try to recoup its recent losses in Iran, Iraq, Syria or wherever there is an internal struggle between the old and the new, particularly in areas close to its borders.

Security at Stake

But Iran is not likely to be an easy target. Any leader like the shah who dares to come forward and make the transition of a nation from one culture to another is bound to risk turmoil and, even tragic consequences. However, he has started a modernization process looking to the west and to the coming age that is not likely to be reversed even if he is destroyed in the struggle.

For the moment, he is the symbol of the battle for control of the major fuel supplies of the world, and the free flow of this fuel to Europe. Japan and the United States is not likely to be interrupted for long by student uprisings, religious longings, or Soviet intrigue. The security of the modern industrial nations is at stake in the Middle East, and they are not likely to be cut off from the sources of their industrial and military power, even if they have to fight.

Reply on Rhodesia

Two letters have appeared in the Times answering my letter of Nov. 20, Communist or Not. In the first letter, Nail in Our Coffin, Peter Gage asks the question: "Would the World Council of Churches offer aid to whites fleeing a black regime, or to those fleeing socialist regimes?" I do not know of any cases of whites fleeing a black regime where such white people are in dire need of help. However, if by "socialist" Peter Gage is referring to communist countries, I would point out that the World Council of Churches refugee work had its genesis in helping refugees in 1948 who were fleeing from the eastern bloc communist countries. The WCC continues to give aid to refugees from these areas.

In a similar way Lauchlan M. Glen in his letter Communist Tools asks: "Why are the white and black Rhodesians who support the present internal settlement not entitled to receive some of the so-called humanitarian aid offered by the WCC when they suffer the agonies of these terrorist attacks?" But they are receiving aid from the WCC. The WCC, through its department of justice and service is channelling some $3 million in ecumenical funds into Rhodesia for humanitarian purposes. Their contribution to the Patriotic Front for food, agricultural, medical and health program is only $85,000, roughly three per cent of the amount the WCC is sending to those who have been dislocated by racial strife within Rhodesia.

Peter Gage makes the statement: "For the west, having been cleverly brainwashed by socialists, churchmen and other interested parties into believing that apartheid in South Africa is an unspeakable evil and that human rights come before national survival, may very well stand stupidly by while a giant stride is taken towards a Marxist world."

When Hitler was withdrawing all the human rights of the Jews in Germany and other conquered areas in Europe, there were many in high places who cautioned against taking any stand against Hitler "as Hitler was a bulwark against communism." We know where they brought the western democracies.

Mr. Gage is very willing to sacrifice the human rights of others, the negroes of Africa, in order that our national survival may be secure. He can be sure of this: the negroes are not willing to sacrifice their human rights for our national survival, and if they perceive our attitude as being that of Peter Gage, they are very likely to turn to communism not only for military help but also as a system of government and economics. I do not desire this, but I would not blame them. — J. Philip Fawcett, 57 Wellington Street.

Judge Erik Bendrodt

Give Him Leave

The Victoria Area Council of The John Howard Society of Vancouver Island recently discussed the recommendations of the judicial council following its inquiry into Judge Erik Bendrodt's conduct in office.

The John Howard Society has a special interest in penal law, penal reform and the sentencing of offenders. It is of concern to the society that judges suffering from alcoholic addiction should be called upon to decide cases and make sentencing decisions that may result in the imprisonment of persons charged with criminal offences.

Where a judge suffers from alcoholism or other health problems this may be perceived by the public to impair his judgment in sentencing. Is there not an adequate leave of absence program to avoid such risks? Could not such a policy provide an honorable alternative to the two choices presently available — that of removing a judge or having him remain sitting? — Lavinia M. Greenwood, Chairman, Victoria Area Council, John Howard Society of Vancouver Island.

Putdown of Fulford

You do your readers no service when you reprint the nonsense written by Robert Fulford, editor of the once renowned magazine of Canada, Saturday Night (A Laid-Back Critic Gets Himself Together; Times, Nov. 28).

He gradually adopted American thought, dissipated his paper's Canadian identity and lost the articulation of issues from a Canadian viewpoint that made Saturday Night distinct from American counterparts.

Fulford says that language as used by Canadians is improved by such current Americanisms as "get oneself together." But the phrase is merely a substitute for the word confused. A person who can't "get himself together" is better described as simply confused. If more so, then the person is deranged, if even more so, addled, and so on. The language is rich in more exact terms than "get oneself together." Such loose, modish cliches merely fill the bill for us if we don't have the right words or are too mentally lazy to search out the right words.

Let's face it, most of us find it very hard work to think for ourselves. It's easier to adopt the thoughts already framed for us by others. In fact, many educators ride to power on the premises of popular phraseology such as "student oriented", "humane relevance", et al. This is an age of mass thinking when even editors of national journals adopt popular slogans, as George Orwell, whom Fulford decries, warned.

There is a wide range of language from the American scene in vogue. Many of our youngsters, and some adults like Fulford, readily adopt what they hear from the mouths of movie stars like Woody Allen, the latest guru. Take the phrase "put down." The job one has on hearing this phrase is to discover exactly what is meant. The phrase is a loose catch-all for: insult, abuse, abjurate, remonstrate, humiliate, disparage, satire, denigrate, decry, etc., etc. In short, the phrase is so general as to be almost meaningless. This is an improvement to language?

It may be argued in reply that the phrase serves those who don't have enough vocabulary. But this is only to perpetuate and ensure a vacuity of mind, a poverty of expression. Save us from Fulford and such Americanisms that serve only to destroy the power to think for ourselves. Word power is brain power. Popular phrases and slogans frazzle the mind. Fulford and his ilk are a menace to free thought. Please reprint him no more. — Burke Cahill, 2127 Nottingham Road.

Edgar Dewdney

The British Columbia Historical Association has been given to understand that the name of Edgar Dewdney is one of a short list of historic B.C. figures from which is to be chosen the name of the new provincial government building on Broughton Street in Victoria.

May we urge that the career of Edgar Dewdney be commemorated as the government's choice. Following his arrival in this province in 1857 with Walter Moberly, he built the Dewdney Trail, served both as a member of the legislative council and as a member of parliament, then as federal minister of the interior, and, finally, as lieutenant-governor of British Columbia from 1893 to 1897.

We trust the government will agree that this record of long and meritorious public service is deserving of the recognition that we request. — Ruth Barnett, Secretary, B.C. Historical Association, 680 Pinecrest Road, Campbell River.

Magician Bill

The magician's shuffle executed by the Bennett government must be a desperate attempt to regain lost ground but no matter how hard you shuffle a deck of losing cards the results will come out zilch!

Now it seems the municipalities and our so-called transit system will beg for pennies from a proper Dutch Uncle and the handicapped, poor and needy will be asked to wear a Super Natural smile and suffer their poverty, frustration and starvation with amazing Grace.

A poll of 150 people in Vancouver today, with no advance notice, showed some signs of why this bunch are shuffling around!

Defections from the 1975 Socred vote boosted the NDP to around 54 per cent and reduced the Socred to 38 per cent with eight per cent going Conservative and the rest Liberal or undecided. To my knowledge every poll taken this year has favored the NDP and in ever-increasing numbers. It could be a landslide in the coming year which would put an end, once and for all to the phony coalition now guiding us into penury and poverty. — P. Simpson, 2536 Forbes Street.

India and Gandhi

Regarding the letter titled In with Gandhi, by Richard Corrance (Times, Dec. 1): I completely agree with him about the circumstances in which Mrs. Gandhi had to impose emergency.

Being in India at that time, I have the advantage of firsthand knowledge of the situation at that time. Mrs. Gandhi is back in Parliament with the full faith of the electorate.

I would like to mention some of the achievements during her regime. India joined the nuclear club by exploding a nuclear blast underground. The birth rate was reduced considerably. Industrial development was considerably high. There was discipline in the offices. All being well, she will be able to lead Indians towards prosperity again. — Nick Bedi, 134-1830 Fern Street.

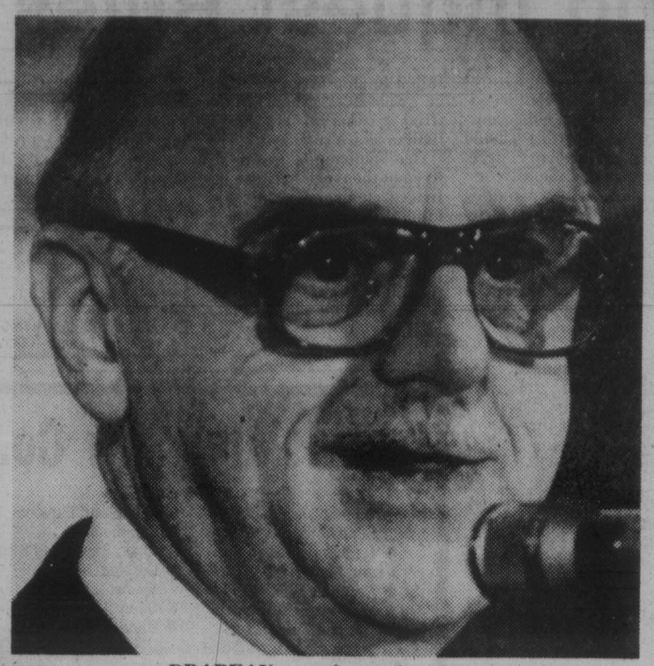
The King of Montreal Knows His People



DRAPEAU . . . who needs the press?

By PETER GZOWSKI

MONTREAL — "The French Canadian people," Jean Drapeau once said, "want a king," and for 21 of the last 24 years he has been doing what he could to fulfil that desire.

Drapeau was re-elected mayor of Montreal last month, picking up more than 60 per cent of the vote. Such opposition as existed was split between two parties, the Municipal Action Group and the Montreal Citizens Movement. After vying heroically with each other in their opposition to Drapeau, they elected one member each to the city council.

The Civic Party — which seems to stand mainly for the retention of Jean Drapeau in power — got the other 52.

At a Chambre de Commerce meeting a couple of days later, Drapeau revelled in his victory.

He took particular delight in mocking the press, which by and large does not support him.

"They said we'd have to change our style," he said, lapsing into what may just have been the royal plural. "The voters are telling us otherwise."

Drapeau did not respond to reporters' questions after his speech. He seldom does. He does not feel he needs the press.

"He never has," said a city hall reporter I talked to the other day. "He just doesn't care. He feels he can go over our heads — talk to the people. During the election campaign we pretty well had to listen to the radio hot-line shows to find out what he was saying."

When one television reporter did use an interview in Drapeau's home to raise the question of a conflict of interest by the man who had been chairman of the city's executive committee, Drapeau threw the reporter out.

"It's no use disturbing me in my house," said the mayor, who raised his 5-foot-6 frame from his chair so quickly he hit his head on a chandelier.

When he did talk in public, he talked of his accomplishments — the development, the recreation facilities and, most of all, the Metro, which now boasts 43 stations along its 25 miles (41 kilometres).

And through it all there were echoes of the greatest of all his realized dreams, the Olympics. "Montrealers," he said, "must have as their spokesman an administration that is used to leading great causes."

The fact that throughout the campaign there was also an inquiry going on into the incredible deficits of the Olympics did not seem to bother him at all.

"People reproach us for these things," he said royally. "But if we sat still and did nothing we would be criticized even further."

Who votes for him? I am reminded of going to British Columbia during the height of W. A. C. Bennett's power. Everyone seemed to criticize Bennett, as they criticize and complain about Drapeau, but they returned him in election after election.

Drapeau is 62 now. He was 38 when he was first elected mayor. He was known as a crusader against vice. He'd been counsel for a judicial inquiry into what was then the most corrupt city north of New Orleans.

It is difficult now, amid the shining office towers and the bustling underground shopping malls, to remember that this was once the most wide-open town in Canada, curiously proud of its all-night bars and its B-girls. In association with a crime-busting cop named Pacifique Plante, Drapeau set about cleaning it up.

Drapeau, now virtually a one-man party, says he will stay on for at least this four-year term.

He has now been mayor longer than anyone else has ever run a major Canadian city. No matter how many rumors of wrong-doing have whirled around his administration over the years not a breath of scandal has ever touched him personally.

He still puts in days — beginning at 7 a.m. and often going till midnight — that would shame a younger man. During the campaign he was his own most tireless worker. Someone who added up the attendance at all meetings Drapeau had been at in the last year figured he's been seen personally by 150,000 of his constituents.

At one of those meetings, Drapeau received three standing ovations. It was too bad, an aide said to him, there were no reporters there to notice.

"Not at all," said Drapeau. "Not at all."

Lane Cashes in on Witch Doctor Syndrome

By ANTHONY LEWIS
New York Times

For most of us the sickness and death at Jonestown, Guyana, pass understanding. The more we read about the cult members' pathetic dependence on their paranoid leader, the less we understand. But there is one reassuringly familiar element in the story: the presence of Mark Lane.

Lane is the lawyer-publicist who has operated as chief ghoul of American assassinations over the last 15 years. When a leader is killed, Lane in due course appears to announce that a conspiracy was responsible — and that he knows the secret. He flushes spirits from the grassy knolls of history.

"I know who fired the fatal shot at President Kennedy," Lane wrote in a Danish newspaper in 1967. More recently he has devoted himself to the murder of Dr. Martin Luther King Jr., terming the FBI "prime suspects" and co-authoring a book on the case called Code Name 'Zorro.'"

He surfaced in the Guyanan tragedy as a lawyer for the People's Temple and its leader, the Rev. Jim Jones. Lane's role in the affair should prove fascinating to students of legal ethics, or, for that matter, of human decency. Compare what he said before the mass suicide-murders and after.

Before, Lane described the Jonestown commune as a noble experiment in socialism, targeted for destruction by a conspiracy among "American intelligence organizations" and other government agencies. A month before the end, a People's Temple press release quoted him as saying:

"It makes me almost weep to see such an incredible experiment with such vast potential for the human spirit and the soul of this country, to be cruelly assaulted by the intelligence operations."

He flew to Jonestown with Congressman Leo Ryan and the accompanying press party. Lane told them that the people at Jonestown were peaceful, that only about 10 per cent wanted to leave and that nothing more than "peer pressure" was applied to keep them there.

MARK LANE
. . . time to tune him out

After, Lane told some of the same reporters that he had known drugs were used to keep commune members there against their will. He said he had known also about suicide drills in Jonestown and believed that Jim Jones seriously contemplated mass death. He called Jones a "murderer" and said his death was the "first stage" in a "master plan" of murder.

"The second stage," Lane said, "required those who survived to condemn Jim Jones, to say he was a fascist paranoid, that it was the result of one man's actions, and then themselves to use their resources — some small group of people — to kill all the defectors and at the same time to kill public officials. . ."

A reporter for The Washington Post asked Lane about his personal responsibility for what happened at Jonestown. He answered that concerned relatives of the commune members had known far more than he about conditions there. But Jim Jones and his lawyers had tried to discredit the worried relatives when they asked for an investigation, the reporter noted. Lane said: "If they weren't crazy, they wouldn't have been discredited."

Under the lawyer's code of professional responsibility, a lawyer is not obliged to keep the confidence of a client who discloses an intention to commit future crimes. So Lane may have some more explaining to do in investigations of Jonestown, civil damage suits or bar proceedings.

The larger question is how such a creature gets the attention that Mark Lane does in the U.S. He has sold thousands of books and assassination bumper-stickers, he commands high lecture fees, he testifies at Congressional hearings, he appears on television talk shows, he gets publicity for an organization that he created, the "Citizens' Committee of Inquiry."

If another Mark Lane were passing judgment on these activities, he would surely sense a conspiracy to sow doubt and division in the country, to encourage morbid obsessions. I have always assumed that he was just a pitchman with an exceptional talent for preying on the gullible. But there is of course the possibility that he believes his own visions.

In any event, it is time for the decent people of the United States to tune out Mark Lane. It is time for some soul-searching on the part of the talk-show hosts and editors and politicians who have allowed themselves to be vehicles in his promotion of conspiracy theories — and of himself.

Lane's book on the Kennedy assassination, Rush to Judgment, was an attack on the Warren Commission. On the last page he wrote:

"The readiness with which its findings were accepted I believe to have been symptomatic of disease. Perhaps it was like that collective illness which anthropologists have observed to afflict tribal societies after the death of the chief."

A country that goes on listening to the likes of Mark Lane is longing for witch doctors.

HOW TO VOTE

By CALVIN TRILLIN

(From a column in The Nation)

People are always telling me that I should vote on the issues. Someone who votes on the issues, I suppose, would have cast his ballot for Kennedy over Nixon in 1960 on the basis of preferring Kennedy's position on some constantly discussed campaign issue like the defence of Quemoy and Matsu. Only at the risk of being dismissed as frivolous could people vote for Kennedy rather than Nixon on the simple ground that any man who delivered the Checkers speech without giggling was a certifiable wonk, registered and with papers. As it turned out, of course, the issue of defending Quemoy and Matsu was less important to the survival of the Republic than wonkiness.

I did try voting on the issues for a while, but it didn't work. Having pored over the opposing position papers, I would cast my ballot as an informed citizen — and the country would continue to be run by fools and thieves and even an occasional poltroon. Finally, I got smart. If voting on the issues was doing the country no good at all, I figured, I might as well have the pleasure of treating political candidates as applicants for a club that had a single opening and maintained an admissions committee of one — me. I can't claim that the new method has caused any improvement in the quality of our political leadership, but it has saved me a lot of dreary research on the history of Quemoy and Matsu.

Sons and Mothers

LONDON — When the American writer Marilyn French was here last Spring to publicize her novel The Women's Room, she expressed bitter disappointment with the calibre of the British women she was meeting.

All those who had inteviewed her seemed to be obsessed by men. "Do you really hate all men?" they kept asking, giving her no chance to expound her "philosophy of feminism," which was what she had really come for.

So, some spaghetti, feminists and other thinking women were laid on to give her a crack at a different audience. During a short sticky patch in the conversation, a nice single mother remarked on the difficulty that she had talking to her 11-year-old son. "I can't talk about football," she said, "and he talks about nothing else."

My banal reaction was to suggest that the day would surely come when he had found some other topic of conversation — cars, cricket, beer; but Marilyn French took it much more seriously. "You've got to make him talk," she said. "My son used to want to hide away in his room when I had my women friends in. I used to insist he join us. I wouldn't let him not talk to me; I'd say you must communicate, you must tell me what you're feeling: how's school, who are your friends, do you masturbate, what do you think about women?" And at 17, she had been bothered about his continuing virginity: "What's holding you back, I said, come on, get it off."

When I muttered something stuffily British about violating the poor boy's privacy, she dissolved into the most radiant of smiles. "I don't think he can feel very violated," she said. "He rings me all the time — I don't ring him more than twice a year, he rings me; he tells me about his girl-friends, everything; he rings me whenever he starts a new affair."

We don't know, of course, how the son's girl-friends feel about his getting on the line to Mom before the sheets are barely cool. But it did make me realize that a liberated lady does not necessarily produce a very liberated son; and wonder again what the answer was to a question a reader asked years ago, and which I've been brooding about ever since. "We complain about male attitudes," this reader said, "but we are the mothers. Surely we could change them in a generation if we really set our minds to it?

So why don't we? Do we not want them to change? It's not that easy, of course, to instil any attitudes into sons, even about things like soap or not leaving your skateboard on the doormat; but there has to be more to it than that. And certainly some mothers use their sons as their guns against the world, and don't want to risk defusing them.

Professor Deniz Kandyoti in Turkey reports an appalling imbalance among the students in college in Istanbul: the girls are modern and expect to be treated like human beings, but the boys are still raised to be treated like little kings. These Turkish mothers bring their sons up that way, she says, in a sort of conspiracy against the father. Training the young lions to bite the balls off the old man is their subconscious way of getting back at him.

There's another reason why the hand that rocks the cradle rocks the boat. Dr. Jack Dominian, who toils away in Acton working out why marriages fail, says eastern women often "want a freer, wider world for girls, but at the same time there's a part of them which is terribly envious of these girls who've got what they never had. So training arrogant sons is their way of cutting the girls down to size."

Nearer home, there may be less oppression by husbands — but of course there are also fewer husbands; women bringing up families after father has flown the coop may be focusing a merciless love on such males as remain. And there's always a chance, alas, that if there's no older, more mellow image of maleness to follow, a boy will think being manly consists only of adopting the crude male aggression of his peers.

We've been told often enough of the 10,000 ways in which mothers can screw up the psychology of their sons if they're unhappy themselves; but even apart from those muddy waters, there's a more straightforward conflict. A mother may want to produce a son who is more reasonable, more tender, less macho than the traditional model; but at the same time she wants him to succeed in competitive society. Dr. Dominian thinks that the urge towards success will usually win.

Similarly, "My daughter's not just my secretary" — fine; but "my son's learning shorthand typing" — never.

I suspect, too, that it's not just the traditional mother living through her son's success who wants him to be a young Turk. Working mothers have their own hangups; they're frightened of being too dominating, they're constantly on the defensive about the job short-changing the family; they're quite as likely as anyone to feel that they ought to be ironing the boys' shirts and sewing on their buttons. I don't say they actually do it, mind you, but in this, it's the thought that counts. When it comes to the crunch, we are not going to risk what we take to be the boys' male development for the sake of some future daughter-in-law.

Perhaps we should remember how chancy are the rewards of ambition: which may always come too late or not at all. Professor Marshall Marinker's mother always told him not to worry: "If you pass the scholarship, you'll go to college, you'll become a doctor and be famous and we'll all be proud of you. If you fail, you'll leave school at 14 and that'll be that. But don't worry."

He toiled half a lifetime and finally arrived at the geriatric home to tell her the glad news: "Mother" he said, "I'm a Professor!" And she chose that moment to tip over the edge into senility — "Who are you?" she asked. He said he could have killed her, and I can't say I blame him.

NDP Blamed for $7M

More than $7 million that should be used for current services now might have to be paid to eight B.C. mining companies because of the sloppiness of the NDP, Premier Bill Bennett said Wednesday.

Bennett was commenting on a B.C. Supreme Court order that the provincial government repay more than $7 million collected through the Mineral Land Tax Act, implemented in 1973 by the then NDP government.

The premier said the government is studying the judgment and will make a decision later on whether to appeal the decision.

The act was implemented to tax companies that owned their own mining sites and were not covered by the Mineral Royalties Act.

"I don't know how damn long we're going to have to clean up NDP mistakes."

Justice Tom Berger ruled the government's regulations are valid because of an amendment to the act approved during the last session of the legislature. However, money paid to the government by the firms prior to the amendment was ordered returned.

Rebates were ordered for Granduc, Newmont Mines Ltd., Sarco Canada Ltd., Similkameen Mining Ltd., Granisle Copper, Bethlehem Copper, Grandby Mining Corp. and Western Mines Ltd.

SURREY (CP) — Former provincial secretary Ernie Hall and Surrey alderman Garry Watkins will represent the NDP in the new two-seat riding of Surrey-White Rock in the next provincial election.

Hall and Watkins finished ahead of Betty McLurg and Wendy Olsson to earn the right to contest the riding currently held by Municipal Affairs Minister Bill Vander Zalm.

RCMP Need Gun Practice Shooting Inquest Rules

PRINCE GEORGE (CP) — A coroner's jury Wednesday absolved two RCMP officers of blame in the fatal shooting of Charles Herman Demery who was hit by a police bullet during a [redacted] speed chase in this [redacted] British Columbia city.

Demery died in hospital Sept. 26, the day after he was shot, and the jury ruled that his death was unnatural and due to misadventure.

It recommended, however, that the RCMP should emphasize firearms practice and safety for officers, and that stiff penalties should be imposed on drivers who try to elude police.

Demery was hit by one of nine RCMP bullets fired at his pickup truck after he tried to escape a police blockade.

The inquest was told Constable Serge Pepin, 22, fired the fatal shot and five others, and Constable Gary Harvey, 26, fired three shots at Demery's fleeing truck.

During the five-day inquest, the jury heard evidence that RCMP officers fire only at stationary targets during training. They also have no regular range practice, except in an annual tournament in revolver proficiency which they enter only after being posted to an area.

The jury recommended that police should be trained how to handle and end high speed chases; that they should be aware of their immediate surroundings before firing and should be trained in moving target weaponry.

The two constables cornered Demery with their police cars, but said the man attempted to drive away over a lawn. When the truck failed to stop after the officers shot at its wheels, they fired a total of six more bullets as it drove away.

One policemen said he fired at the truck because he feared someone would be killed by the vehicle.

Evidence showed three bullets hit the truck's cab. A pathologist said the angle of the bullet that hit Demery was consistent with a ricochet.

Vancouver coroner Glen McDonald, who presided a the inquest, said he plans to report the jury's findings to the federal and provincial governments and Prince George Mayor Elmer Mercier.

LABATT WINS LABEL BATTLE

VANCOUVER (CP) — The British Columbia Supreme Court ruled Wednesday that Labatt Breweries Ltd. can sell its new malt liquor in the province under the label Old Stock.

Carling O'Keefe Breweries had requested an order preventing the sale because the name resembles Carling's Extra Old Stock label.

Mr. Justice Henry Hutcheon said he would give his reasons for dismissing the request at a later date.

A Labatt spokesman said the company expects to have 10,000 cases of the new beer on sale by Friday.

B.C. Holds Line On Gas Pricing

The provincial cabinet has decided against raising the field and wholesale prices of natural gas at this time, Energy Minister Jim Hewitt said Wednesday.

Hewitt said the cabinet accepted a B.C. Energy Commission recommendation that any price change should wait until after the National Energy Board deals with a current application by Westcoast Transmission for a price increase.

The minister said the cabinet also accepted recommendations to undertake a detailed study of the export market for B.C.'s natural gas and to ensure that only surplus gas be sold outside of the province.

The cabinet also decided to hold talks with B.C. Petroleum Corporation and Westcoast Transmission to determine their roles in the marketing of natural gas within B.C., he said.

The cabinet, however, rejected one of the energy commission's major recommendations — introduction of a royalty system to replace the pricing mechanism now employed by the petroleum corporation.

Teachers Ignored in Censoring

VANCOUVER (CP) — The British Columbia Teachers' Federation (BCTF) wants the education ministry to explain why it withdrew a controversial book from school reading lists last summer without consulting teachers, BCTF president Pat Brady said Wednesday.

Brady said teachers should be consulted when the ministry is considering complaints against instructional materials and their opinions should be considered before decisions are made.

The president said the book, Strawberries and Other Secrets, was withdrawn from Grade 9 reading lists even though a curriculum revision committee had approved it.

That group was not consulted, he said.

"We don't think that's good enough," he said, adding no official explanation has been given.

"We've heard reports that one or more people complained to the ministry that the book contains incidents of violence and some profanity, and has only one female protagonist. But these reports have not been confirmed."

He said other books, such as Go Ask Alice, have been withdrawn by the ministry or local school boards after small pressure groups complained.

"It's difficult enough to get students interested in literature even when we have a free choice of materials," he said. "English teachers tell me that Strawberries and Other Secrets was one of their best and most popular textbooks.

"They're sorry to see it withdrawn."

Brady said the federation will approach the ministry to try to set guidelines for withdrawal of books in future.

ICBC Workers Reach Tentative Settlement

VANCOUVER (CP) — The Insurance Corp. of British Columbia and its 2,200 employees reached tentative agreement Wednesday on a new two-year contract, retroactive to Oct. 1.

The agreement, reached with the help of mediator Jack Chapelas, provides for a 5.75-per-cent wage increase in the first year and a 6.5-per-cent increase in the second year.

The corporation said further details would be released after the employees, members of the Office and Technical Employees Union, local 378, hold a ratification vote.

Teachers Lose

VANCOUVER (CP) — The British Columbia Court of Appeal has upheld a B.C. Supreme Court decision to reject an appeal by the B.C. Teachers Federation of a wage roll-back for teachers in Burnaby.

A contract was reached in 1976 under binding arbitration that granted the teachers an 11.6-per-cent salary increase. However, the anti-inflation board ordered the increase cut back to 9.5 per cent.

The Supreme Court rejected the teachers appeal of the roll-back, and today the three-judge panel of the Appeal Court upheld that decision.

No Heroin Aid

VANCOUVER (CP) — Provincial court Judge Les Bewley said Wednesday the federal government is determined not to contribute financially to British Columbia's compulsory heroin treatment program, scheduled to go into effect Jan. 1.

Last year Ron Basford, then federal justice minister, promised federal funding for the program, but Ottawa has since withdrawn that offer.

Judge Bewley, who was in Ottawa this week, said Justice Minister Marc Lalonde told him it is unlikely the federal government will provide funding.

Firebrand Dies

NANAIMO (CP) — Charles Bowman, who as editor of Ottawa Citizen prodded the federal government until it adopted numerous social programs, died here Wednesday. He was 95.

Born in Amble, Northumberland, England in 1883, he trained as an engineer before coming to Canada in 1908.

In 1913 he joined the Citizen as an editorial writer and immediately earned a reputation of firebrand by attacking the then federal Progressive Conservative government for building the Welland Canal and its patronage policies.

When the newspaper was chatised by the government, he convinced its publishers to drop its Conservative stance and assume independent status.

During his 33 years with the Citizen, Bowman's editorials advocated the government adopt education legislation, national pension plans, a central bank and a trans-Canada air service.

He served on a royal commission on broadcasting which recommended the formation of the CBC and was a founder of the Canadian Institute of International Affairs.

Following his retirement in 1946, he moved to Carmel, Calif., but returned to Canada when Senator Joseph McCarthy began his anti-communist crusade in the United States.

Returning to Vancouver Island, he helped the Cowichan Indian band set up a co-operative to manage its expanding sweater business.

Funeral services are to be held Friday.

Acts Proclaimed

A new Range Act and most of the new Forest Act were proclaimed Monday by the provincial government and will become effective Jan. 1. Forests Minister Tom Waterland said Tuesday. Seven sections of the 179-section Forest Act, relating to assignments of tenure and logging taxes, were proclaimed last July.

We're in North Vancouver, too at 83 Chesterfield. Tel. 986-1155 just one block from the Seabus Terminal

Special Lite time.

'Specially good when the big match has ended. 1/3 fewer calories than our regular beer makes Special Lite less filling. Refreshing, real Canadian beer taste makes it hard to beat. Isn't it time you curled your hand around something Special?

Takeover Bid Could Make Trust Firm Among Largest

By DENNIS HARPER

HALIFAX (CP) — A takeover bid has been made that could make the Halifax-based Central and Eastern Trust Co. one of the largest institutions of its kind in the country.

Central and Eastern has launched a bid to gain majority control of the Quebec-based Credit Foncier Franco Canadien of Montreal. Henry Rhude, chairman and chief executive officer of Central and Eastern said Tuesday.

Central and Eastern has applied to the federal finance department and to the board of the Montreal Stock Exchange for approval of the bid.

The Montreal Stock Exchange suspended trading in Central and Eastern shares Monday when rumors of the takeover bid surfaced.

Central and Eastern estimates that it will cost $65 million to purchase controlling interest in Credit Foncier which has assets of about $1.2 billion, Rhude said.

Central and Eastern is attempting to gain 55 per cent, or 475,000 common shares, in Credit Foncier.

Rhude said 180,125 of those shares are held by a French bank, Compagnie Financiere de Paris et des Pays-Bas (Paribus).

Central and Eastern has entered into an agreement with Paribus which provides that, among other things, Paribus will cause companies controlled by it to tender, in response to the takeover bid, the shares they hold in Credit Foncier stock, Rhude said.

Those shares represent about 20 per cent of the outstanding shares Central and Eastern needs to get control of Credit Foncier.

Central and Eastern also had to apply to the French finance department for approval of the takeover deal.

Rhude made the comments following a meeting of of Central and Eastern directors at which the company decided to make an offer to Credit Foncier shareholders of $138 a share for the 475,000 outstanding shares. Credit Foncier stock last traded at about $100 a share.

Stock in Central and Eastern had been trading in Montreal at $12.50 a share.

Deputy Not Fired, Angry Curtis Says

Deputy housing minister Larry Bell — contrary to reports — hasn't been fired.

In fact, Bell will move to the newly-expanded portfolio of lands, park and housing.

Bell will be working for a new minister in Jim Chabot and will give up responsibility for the Urban Transit Authority (UTA).

Bell's former boss, Hugh Curtis, who had just given up Municipal Affairs and Housing, said today he is furious over a story in The Daily Colonist, which said Bell had been fired as general manager of the UTA.

The UTA is now the responsibility of newly appointed Municipal Affairs Minister Bill Vander Zalm.

Vander Zalm said he too is upset by the Colonist story and will demand a retraction.

He said the story was an embarrassment to both Bell and himself.

"It was grossly unfair and totally irresponsible," Vander Zalm said.

Curtis said Bell had done a "absolutely excellent" job setting up the UTA.

He said three months ago he held discussions with Bell and the challenge of setting up the UTA was nearly finished.

At that time Bell indicated to Curtis that another option open to him — that of dealing with the complex issue of freeing Crown lands — was a new area he greatly wanted to get into.

Curtis said Bell's appointment, expected to be ratified today as deputy minister of lands, parks and housing, will allow him to do just that.

Curtis said he was in his office up to 8:30 p.m. Wednesday and it infuriated him to read in the Colonist that he was supposedly unable to be reached for comment.

Milfoil Headed For Island

Eurasian water milfoil will infest waters throughout southern B.C. and on Vancouver Island within the next 10 years, a provincial environment ministry spokesman said Wednesday.

Dr. Peter Newroth, manager of the ministry's milfoil control program, said the weed has become such a problem that his ministry is stopping efforts to eradicate it, and instead will concentrate on trying to stop its spread.

He said milfoil will infest the Shuswap water system in south-central B.C. within two years and then spread as far as the Vancouver area and Vancouver Island.

He said the most effective way to control the weed is with the herbicide 2,4-D, but public reaction to the chemical has forced courts to stop its use.

School-Tax Hike $1M: Mott

The provincial education ministry's two-mill increase in the basic education levy will probably mean Greater Victoria property owners will pay an additional $1 million in taxes next year, trustee-elect Winfield Mott said this week.

Mott told a meeting of the Torquay Elementary Parents' Association changes to the education ministry financing formula will shift more of the burden to local taxpayers.

Meanwhile, the ministry will say it's saving money, he said.

Mott said he believes local taxpayers should help pay education costs, but he said the government's continual shift of the burden is a cop-out.

He said the government should pick up half the cost of education immediately and an even greater share in the future.

The latest shift in the finance formula will reduce the province's share of the basic education program to 37 from 39 per cent in 1979.

Bomb Tip Grounds CP Air Jet

EUGENE, Ore. (AP) — A CP Air 727 jet took off for San Francisco at midnight Wednesday night after it was grounded for seven hours following a bomb scare.

Flight 132 landed at Mahlon Sweet Municipal Airport at 5:09 p.m. Wednesday while on a flight to San Francisco from Vancouver.

Police said someone telephoned the airline's registration desk in Vancouver while the plane was in flight and said that a bomb was aboard.

"Everything was searched," said Police Lieut. Guy Mattoon. "Luggage, the passengers, the plane . . . no explosives were found."

He said the 76 passengers and eight crew members milled about the airport and had dinner while the plane and luggage were searched. No arrests were made.

President & C.E.O.

Lower Churchill Development Corporation

Last month, in an historic decision, the Governments of Newfoundland and Canada united in a unique partnership to develop the hydro-electric potential of the Lower Churchill River. The projected value of this joint investment is $3 billion.

The President and C.E.O., reporting to the Chairman and as a member of the Board of Directors, will direct marketing, financial and engineering studies essential to determining commercial feasibility and timing; then complete the overall planning and construction of the project.

Required: A top business executive with engineering background and strong management experience; a proven diplomat who can negotiate with sources of professional services, with governments and potential customers. Someone, in fact, with a shrewd awareness of Canadian political and economic realities, who, with tact and integrity, can develop an exciting and vital power resource.

It's a rare opportunity to play a visible role in history.

Quarterly Deficit a Record

OTTAWA (CP) — The country chalked up the largest seasonally adjusted quarterly deficit in its current account in history during the third quarter of this year, Statistics Canada reported Wednesday.

For the three months ending Sept. 30, the shortfall between the amount of money flowing into the country and the amount which left was $1.3 billion.

This brings the deficit — which covers both merchandise and services such as travel, interest and dividend payments and foreign borrowing — to a nine-month total of $3.1 billion, seasonally-adjusted.

Last year's total current account deficit was $1.2 billion.

The third-quarter deficit is 16 per cent higher than the $1.2-billion deficit recorded for the previous quarter.

The unadjusted current account deficit for the quarter amounted to $567 million.

The federal agency adjusts the figures to space over the entire year factors such as the annual freeze-up which halts shipping, predictable travel cycles and other regular influences.

The main features in the quarterly deficit were:

—A seasonally adjusted merchandise trade surplus of $706 million. This was down slightly from the $729-million surplus recorded in the second quarter.

—A $126-million deficit in the travel account. This was a slight improvement from the $445-million travel deficit for the second quarter.

—A $923-million deficit in interest and dividend payments. This was also slightly better than the previous quarter's $911-million deficit.

—A $34-million deficit in freight and shipping. This was up substantially from the $5-million deficit for the second quarter.

—A $555-million deficit in a category known as other service transactions. This includes such payments as engineering fees, consultants' fees, management service payments, payments on franchises insurance premiums, advertising fees, trademark payments and certain government expenses. This section in the current account deficit was substantially up from its second quarter $451-million deficit.

One of the persistent patterns in Canadian trade is that the merchandise surplus is vastly overbalanced by the non-merchandise deficit. For the second quarter the non-merchandise deficit was $2.1 billion. This compares with a $1.97-billion deficit for the second quarter.

Public Spending Posting Rejected for Civic Sites

A proposal to post taxpayer subsidized buildings with signs saying how much the facility cost was shrugged off today by city council's finance committee.

Ald. Ron McKenzie wanted to see a number of city buildings posted with the signs in order to stimulate greater public awareness of how taxpayers' money is being spent.

McKenzie said one of the first buildings to be posted should be city hall.

Committee chairman Ald. Murray Glazier said however the practice could be carried to ridiculous extremes.

"You'd have to put one on your car and on mine, because we've both got free parking," he said.

Mayor Mike Young asked whether MacKenzie wanted the signs in red or black — to designate which buildings are money-makers.

"The matter is being taken to the absurd," objected McKenzie.

He said the recommendation is one that could have stimulated public pride in city buildings and it might even have decreased vandalism.

But the committee didn't buy McKenzie's argument and filed his proposal.

Senators Oppose Rich Family Baby Bonus

OTTAWA (CP) — Senators pressed Health Minister Monique Begin today to end family allowances for wealthy families and use the money to help poor people.

"We should cut out the $50,000-a-year man and help the $5,000 family with his money," said Senator Duff Roblin (PC—Manitoba).

People are willing to set aside only so much money to equalize incomes, Roblin told the Senate banking committee. This limited amount of money should go to those who need it the most, he argued.

The committee is studying a bill to reduce monthly family allowance payments, but provide a refundable income tax credit of $200 per child.

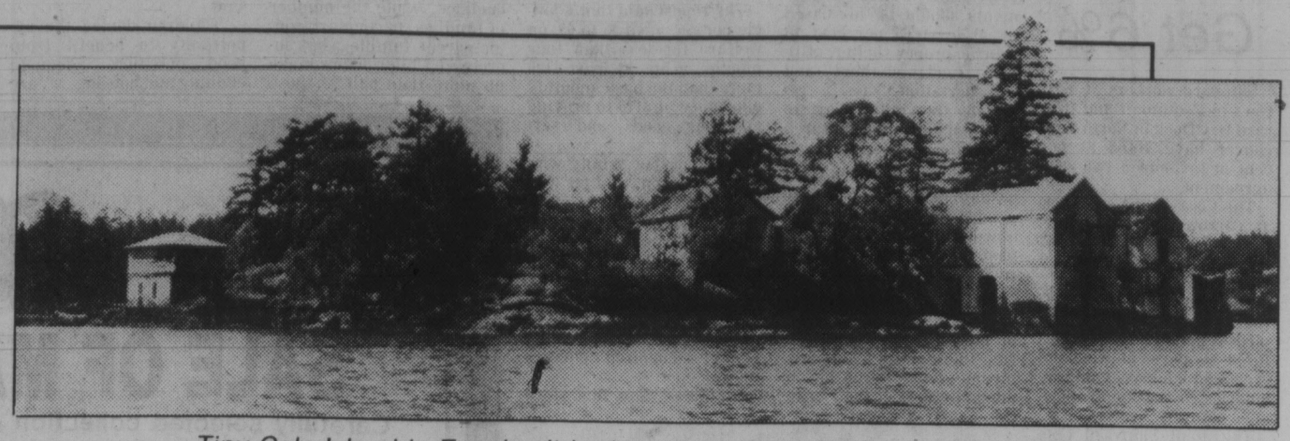
Historic Island 'Badly Neglected'



Tiny Cole Island in Esquimalt harbor was a Royal Navy magazine depot

By HUMPHRY DAVY
Times Staff

PARKS Canada is neglecting the maintenance of historic Cole Island in Esquimalt harbor.

The charge comes from Lloyd Brooks, former deputy minister of recreation and conservation and now a special government adviser.

The island — which served as a Royal Navy magazine depot when Vancouver Island was a colony — is under the jurisdiction of Fort Rodd Hill National Historic Park.

But Brooks said the federal authorities are doing a poor job.

"The buildings are unique but they're being badly neglected," he said.

Brooks said in visits to historic sites across Canada, he has yet to see buildings like them.

Yet looters are still taking bricks stored in one of the buildings on the island, he said.

The bricks are from nine buildings dismantled because they were unsafe. Seven buildings remain.

Brooks also said the dock has been left to deteriorate.

"No one has even troubled to use a few nails to stop the dock from gradually going to pieces."

B.C., Brooks said, turned over the island to Parks Canada on the understanding the historic site would be looked after.

This has not happened and vandalism has increased because the place has been let go.

"If you want to curb vandalism, you have to look after a place," Brooks said.

"If it looks like no one cares, it's an invitation for people to take things."

He said the bricks, iron sheeting and other materials from the old buildings should be stored in the Fort Rodd Hill compound.

The materials are ancient and cannot be replaced for proposed restoration projects on the island.

Brooks is also concerned with the National Historic Board's claim that the island is not of national historic significance.

"The trouble is the board is oriented to historic sites in Eastern Canada," he said.

"They (board members) deal with historic buildings much older than structures in Western Canada. They tend to forget that some buildings in B.C. are old in relation to the province's history."

If the island was designated as being of national historic importance it would mean funds would be more readily available for its maintenance.

Cole Island, Brooks said, is of historic significance to the whole of Western Canada.

The island, rimmed with arbutus trees, is about 400 feet long and 200 feet wide.

Its powder magazine was established in 1863 and was a vital source of supplies for Royal Navy ships serving on the west coast of North America.

The buildings are among the last remnants of coastal work carried out by the Royal Engineer's.

Similar powder magazines can only be found in the former Crown colony of Antigua in the West Indies.

Park superintendent Ian MacLean said he is equally concerned with vandalism on Cole Island and has frequently contacted the RCMP.

"The problem is if we move the loose bricks and materials from the island, then some one will start removing bricks from the walls of the standing buildings," he said.

"To adequately protect the island, someone has to live on it."

MacLean said he is taking the matter up with Parks Canada's regional office in Calgary.

Vander Zalm Blocks Region Power-Trippers

By PAUL NICHOLSON
Times Staff

Municipal Affairs Minister Bill Vander Zalm made it clear Wednesday that regional governments can forget about increasing their powers.

Vander Zalm — who raised eyebrows and the ire of welfare recipients in his previous portfolio as human resources minister — served notice in an interview he'll be just as controversial and tough in his new cabinet job.

The minister said he will take a firm position on regional district growth and expansion while remaining flexible on urban transit — the top two priority items in his new portfolio.

In the interview Wednesday — only his second day in municipal affairs following Premier Bill Bennett's cabinet reorganization Monday — Vander Zalm was positively negative about a recent report on regional governments that recommends they be given more autonomy and authority.

"The main recommendations (of the regional district review committee) really suggest regional districts become a fourth level of government," he said.

"I would be very opposed to that."

He said endorsing such an expansion of regional powers would go against his duty.

"My job in part — certainly my personal attitude — is to reduce the amount of government in the province," he said.

"B.C. with about 2.5 million people is only the size of a European city yet we have so many levels of government and so many bureauacracies, it's unreal."

Vander Zalm considers the newly-created Urban Transit Authority the other item needing immediate attention in his new portfolio.

The UTA was set up by legislation last spring to take over the operation of municipal transit systems from B.C. Hydro and other operators.

The methods of funding the take-over — giving municipalities the right to impose gasoline surcharges, increase property taxes and increase the levy on household utilities — has been criticized by municipal politicians among others.

Vander Zalm says he will discuss the set-up with municipal officials and others involved with the authority to find out their objections and what they believe the strengths and weaknesses of the proposal appear to be.

"I'm open. I will be prepared to consider going back to government with alternate suggestions. I'm completely open on it," he said.

He sees little problem in dealing with municipalities. He said he has always got along well with people in that area and was personally involved for many years as mayor of Surrey.

"I have absolutely no enemies in the field so I can see me giving a good ear to any and all of them," he said.

If there are any complaints regarding provincial funding it's a public relations problem more than one with substance, he said.

"The message has to get out that we have been very kind to municipal governments. I wish things had been as they are now when I was a mayor," he said.

"The revenues to municipalities have increased very, very substantially, so if there is any problem in that end of it, it's probably a problem with us not having gotten the message out as well as we might have.

"But the record shows we have been extremely generous to municipalities, villages and towns," he said.

Lower Mainland municipal officials will likely be pleased with the appointment of Vander Zalm to the ministry.

They hadn't been meeting with much success in their appeal to the province for assistance in getting a light rapid transit system set up.

Vander Zalm says he won't discard the possibility of LRT although the economics have to be closely looked into.

But there is a problem of too much traffic on some of the freeways, bridges and tunnels and "I think that is something that ought to be looked at."

He said it is "fair comment" to conclude from his statements that as a Lower Mainland MLA (his predecessor Hugh Curtis represents Saanich) he would likely be more willing to lend a sympathetic ear.

Ultimatum Handed Faculty Club

Saanich health inspectors have given the University of Victoria Faculty Club six months to decide whether to clean up or close down its premises.

Club president Reg Mitchell said today health inspectors asked the club to make a commitment to renovate the facilities, which are in old army huts, or move elsewhere on campus.

Mitchell said the six-month deadline is the impetus the club needs to get going on the plan for new quarters, which has been in the discussion stage for some time.

"It's given us the stick we need to get a move on," he said.

Club members have been difficult to convince that either large-scale renovations or a move is necessary.

Health inspectors have ordered the club to expand its kitchen cold storage facilities and build an additional staff washroom.

The club was also ordered to make other minor renovations that would bring the total bill to about $50,000, Mitchell said.

A proposal to move the club to UVic's University House on Haro Road was put before the board of governors earlier this year. Renovations to that building would cost $700,000, but such a move now seems less likely, Mitchell said.

The board of governors and the faculty club board of directors will meet to develop a mutually acceptable proposal by April.

Salary Ceiling For Councils?

Salary ceilings for municipal council members will be considered by Municipal Affairs Minister Bill Vander Zalm.

The minister, who took over the portfolio Monday, was commenting on a decision by Burnaby council to increase the salary of Mayor Tom Constable by 6.5 per cent to $35,000 a year, making him the highest-paid mayor in the province.

Burnaby aldermen gave themselves a raise of 22 per cent by increasing their salaries to $9,000 from $7,380.

The minister described the boosts as "pretty hefty."

He said he is concerned when council members vote themselves increases that, in percentage terms, are far in excess of salary increases they are prepared to discuss with municipal employees.

The minister said the time may have come for the government to set down pay guidelines for councils.

Symphony Manager Named

A former general manager of the Thunder Bay Symphony Orchestra in Thunder Bay, Ont., has been hired for four months in a consulting and managerial capacity by the Victoria Symphony.

Announcing Mary Carr's appointment as interim symphony manager today, society president Dorothy Frost said her job will be to "get the symphony's administration and day-to-day operations in order."

Carr starts work on Monday. Her presence, Frost said, will allow the board of directors to get on immediately with its most important task, fund raising.

Frost said Carr has equal experience in musical training and performance and in arts administration.

She studied at the Royal Conservatory of Music and at the University of Toronto opera school, and has been a guest soloist with many orchestras and choral groups.

Her nine years of arts administration experience included two years (from January, 1976, to February, 1978) as general manager of the Thunder Bay Symphony.

Asked whether the appointment might be extended or made permanent after the four-month period, Frost said that would depend on whether the symphony's financial difficulties had eased by then.

"We didn't feel we were in any position to offer anyone anything more permanent. Probably I think we would be advertising nationally (for a full-time manager)," she added.

This fall the flat-broke Victoria Symphony appeared close to foundering.

Compromises Forced On Base: Coast Guard

By MARK HUME
Times Staff

The Canadian Coast Guard is proceeding with plans for its new base on Dallas Road despite city objections because it can't afford to make the beautification changes requested, a Transport Canada official said today.

City hall is unhappy with the buildings the Coast Guard is erecting at the entrance to the Inner Harbor.

But Steve Ryback, a public affairs manager for Transport Canada, said a shortage of funds has forced the coast guard to compromise its standards.

"We've only got $10¼ million budgeted for that base — the public trough is not bottomless. We'll go as far as we can to meeting the requirements of city council, but we can only go so far," said Ryback.

The city first became upset when the Coast Guard changed its building plans so that the four main structures were to be steel-clad rather than concrete block.

Ryback said a number of changes have occurred in the plans because of financial restrictions imposed by Ottawa, and because tenders came in higher than expected.

"We just can't do what we would have liked because there is no money," he said.

He stressed that the Coast Guard is doing its utmost to accommodate the city's concerns but, "we are caught in an inflexible position financially."

He added that "people have got to realize it's not going to be a park, it's going to be a working base for the Coast Guard."

The base will feature four main buildings, workyards, and accomodation for five helicopters and four ships.

On Wednesday, city council's planning committee chairman Ald. Bob Wright indicated Victoria plans to dig its heels in and demand a more esthetic base.

Ask the Times

Q. Can you tell me where the first paved road was built? H.J.W.

A. Babylon had paved roads as long ago as 2000 B.C.

Q. Was the Quebec Act of 1774 a factor in bringing about the American Revolution? B.H.

A. Yes. The British parliament extended the provincial boundaries of Quebec to include all the Old Northwest, which comprised the territories bounded by the Ohio and Mississippi Rivers. It substituted the French civil code for English civil law and gave freedom of worship to the Roman Catholic Church in Canada. These policies angered the American colonies.

Q. Do you know what museum or art gallery has Delacroix's famous painting — Jacob's Wrestling? H.W.D.

A. The painting is in Saint-Sulpice Church in Paris in the Saint-Germain Quarters.

Q. I have been told that most of the ancient Egyptian artifacts, including tombs and buildings have been removed from Egypt or destroyed and damaged beyond repair. Is this true? W.W.

A. Yes. During the 19th century thousands of tombs were looted for sale to museums and private collectors. Entire buildings, including monuments, were moved from sites along the Nile.

Yarrows Workers Get 6%

Shipyard workers at Yarrows in Esquimalt and Burrard Dry Dock in North Vancouver have voted 81 per cent in favor of a two-year agreement.

The 1,000 employees — 300 at Yarrows and 700 at Burrard — voted Tuesday and the results were released Wednesday.

The contract, which is retroactive to Sept. 15 and expires Aug. 31, 1980, provides for a six-per-cent wage increase in each year and includes a cost-of-living allowance clause.

The Joint Shipyard Conference, which bargains for all the union locals, said it was satisfied "that an acceptable collective agreement was reached by both parties once again without a work stoppage as has been the case since 1966."

35% Welfare Hike Urged by United Way

VANCOUVER (CP) — Most basic assistance payments should be increased by at least 35 per cent to provide proper shelter, utilities, food, clothing and transportation, says a report by the United Way social planning and research committee.

The report, released Wednesday, said there is a wide gap between the basic needs of welfare recipients and the basic benefit payments they receive.

"In spite of sporadic increases in the dollar amount of income assistance benefits, the level of recipients' income remains too low to adequately meet their basic needs," the committee said.

The report said that a single person, aged 45 to 55, on welfare for less than four months, needs at least $126 more than the basic monthly allowance of $175 to provide essential goods and services.

A two-parent family with three children, and on welfare for more than four months, requires a minimum of $251 extra.

Even with these increases, the committee said, the majority of welfare recipients in the Vancouver area would still be existing below recognized poverty lines.

Statistics show that since 1966 the number of single people receiving welfare has declined, while the number of families, particularly single-parent families, has increased. Children now make up more than half of those who depend on income assistance programs, the report said.

"Children denied the opportunity to benefit from good nutrition, adequate clothing and housing . . . are being prepared to repeat the present cycle of poverty."

Former Human Resources Minister Bill Vander Zalm said a 35-per-cent increase was not realistic.

Vander Zalm, who was reassigned as Minister of Municipal Affairs Monday, said that if all the study's recommendations were adopted, a lot of people might be better off going on welfare than working.

However, he said it would be up to Grace McCarthy, the new Minister of Human Resources, to study the report.

Malahat Crash Injures Woman

A 32-year-old Shawnigan Lake woman is in stable condition in the intensive care unit of Victoria General Hospital following a single-car mishap on the Malahat early today.

Colwood RCMP said Diana Lorraine Gibson was the driver and sole occupant of a car that went over an embankment near the Hall's Boathouse turnoff at about 3:20 a.m.

In another accident in the city overnight two Armed Forces servicemen escaped with only minor injuries after their car went out of control on Esquimalt Road near Tyee, glanced off two poles, rammed into a semi-trailer and took out a portion of fence.

The driver, Clinton Nelson, 20, and passenger Neil Taylor, 19, were taken to Naden hospital.

Carollers Aboard Ferries

For the second year in succession B.C. Ferries will mark the pre-Christmas season with carol programs by elementary school choirs on the run between Swartz Bay and Tsawwassen.

This year's program will begin on Monday and continue through until Friday, Dec. 15.

From Swartz Bay the concerts will take place on the 9 a.m. and 11 a.m. sailings.

In order, the choirs performing on the 9 a.m. run will be from Deep Cove elementary, Sidney elementary, Greenglade elementary, Beaver Lake elementary and Keating elementary.

Singing on the 11 a.m. runs will be Mainland choirs from Delta Manor, Baker Drive, Sunshine Hills, Pebble Hills and Gibson elementary schools.

36 Firms Offering Discounts to Aged

Victoria Ald. Robin Blencoe's campaign to get a better deal for old age pensioners has spread to 36 businesses in the city.

The alderman Wednesday released a list of the places which have agreed to offer varying discounts to persons over 65.

Blencoe started with a few stores in May and over the intervening months the list has built up.

"What I'm really waiting for is to get a grocery store involved," he said today.

"I want to see an independent grocery outlet take on these big American-owned food chains."

Blencoe said he hasn't been pressing any stores to join the campaign but has been letting the businesses come to him.

"They know it's there; they can join if they want."

Blencoe's list is made up of the following:

The Petite Shop (clothing), 1306 Broad, 10 per cent; Piccadilly Shoppe (women's wear), 1017 Government, 10 per cent; Busy Bee Cleaners, 1019 Cook, 2171 Oak Bay, 3147 Douglas and 696 Goldstream, 20 per cent.

Jaline's Fashions (clothing), 135 Simcoe in the James Bay mall, 10 per cent; James Bay Quality Cleaners, also in the James Bay mall, 10 per cent; New World Natural Foods, 707 Johnson, 10 per cent on vitamins only; The Book Mine (book store), 841 Fort, 10 per cent.

Paddy's Place (restaurant), 1358 Cordova Bay Road, 10 per cent; Barber Stylist, James Bay mall, $2.50 for a haircut; Sooter Portrait Studios, 768 Yates, 29 per cent on portraits only; Haida Insulating, 5215 Santa Clara, 10 per cent; Christie's Bakery, 3970 Shelbourne, 10 per cent.

C and C Taxi, 10 per cent (temporarily suspended until city council changes the taxi bylaw); Western Teak, 1950 Blanshard, 10 to 15 per cent; Island Security Patrol, 483 Burnside Road East, 10 per cent; Daisy Chain Florists, James Bay mall, 10 per cent on Wednesdays only.

London Optical, Mayfair mall, 10 per cent; Second Look Studio (beauty salon), Mayfair mall, 15 per cent; Richard's Beauty Salon, Woodwards, 25 per cent on Mondays, Tuesdays and Wednesdays only; Vitaway Bakery, 10 per cent on vitamins only; Fable Cottage, Classic Car Museum, Miniature World, Pacific Undersea Gardens, Royal London Wax Museum and Sealand of the Pacific, 30 per cent minimum.

Restaurant a la Grecque, 343 Cook, 15 per cent for lunches only; E.M. Carter Ladies Wear, 230 Menzies, 10 per cent; Borogrove Bookshop, 10 Centennial Square, 10 per cent; Gordon's Towing, 1618 Store, 20 per cent; Burnside Barber Shop, 110 West Burnside Road, $2.50 for haircuts.

D and R Mowers (garden tool repairs), 615 Chatham, 10 per cent; Pacific Mazda Peugeot (car repairs, especially on British cars), 810 Johnson, 10 per cent; V.I. Colormart (paints), 1615 Hillside, 10 per cent; Fidelity Floors, 851 Viewfield Road, 10 per cent minimum; John McMaster (men's clothing), 1012 Fort, 10 per cent.

Dixon Funeral On Friday

Funeral services will be held at 11 a.m. Friday at St. Mary's Church on Elgin Road for Lt.-Col. Keith Dixon, 80, who died on Wednesday.

Well-known in marine circles, he was district marine agent for the department of transport from 1954 to 1965.

Dixon was a life member of the Engineering Institute of Canada and of the Association of Professional Engineers of B.C.

He was elected a life member of the Rock and Alpine Garden Society of Vancouver Island in 1967.

Born in Yorkshire, Eng., Dixon came to Canada in 1920 after serving with the Honourable Artillery Company in Egypt and Palestine during the First World War. In the Second World War he was with the 5th (B.C.) Coast Brigade.

He is survived by his wife Evelyn (June), and daughter Mrs. Alan K. (Pamela) Clarke in Ontario.

Bus Line Sale To U.S. Protested

Victoria Labor Council delegates decided Wednesday night to join those protesting the sale of the Victoria Gray Line bus franchise to a Seattle company.

The delegates voted to file an intervention with the Foreign Investment Review Agency and write a letter to Municipal Affairs Minister Bill Vander Zalm protesting the sale.

The trade unionists want to block the sale, because they feel it is "not in the interest of the public of the province."

The Gray Line franchise and 13 double-decker buses were sold last month by the Social Credit government to Gray Line of Seattle for $316,500.

Before voting on the Gray Line motion the delegates heard from Charles Barber, NDP MLA for Victoria, who has also filed an intervention with FIRA in an effort to block the sale.

Refering to an attempt by the Gray Line bus drivers to purchase the company, Barber said they were treated with "contemptible disrespect" by the government.

He also charged that the group of Victoria businessmen attempting to buy the line didn't receive sufficient information to allow for a proper bid. As a result the businessmen's bid fell $100,000 short of the Seattle bid.

"Canadian interests and Canadian workers have been betrayed by the Social Credit government," Barber said.

DECISION SOON ON FUNDING

Transport Minister Otto Lang said today an application for federal funding for the proposed new forest products shipping terminal at Nanaimo is in the final stage of consideration.

"I will continue to persue approval for federal funding, nothwithstanding the B.C. Development Corporation's announcement that it intends to proceed without federal funds," Lang said.

The transport minister's announcement came in a prepared statement released in Vancouver.

Lang was commenting on recent statements by Peter Breikss, in charge of the project for the corporation, who said that B.C. would go it alone.

Look for the Union Label, Victoria Campaign Urges

Victoria-area trade unionists are going on the offensive in an effort to get people to buy union-label products, particularly homes and apartments built by union members.

Delegates to the Victoria Labor Council Wednesday night voted to set up a union label committee.

The committee's task will be to renew general interest in the union label idea and in co-operation with the building trades, to give priority emphasis to the promotion of union-built homes and apartments.

The committee idea was proposed by the Vancouver Island Building and Construction Trades Council as part of its continuing battle against non-union contractors and so-called right-to-work supporters.

"We hope to bring about a much better awareness of union buying and renting so that real estate people will find it to their advantage to be knowledgeable about the union status or otherwise of their dwellings," John Schibli, trades council secretary-treasurer, said in a statement.

In other business, the delegates approved an executive recommendation to censure Education Minister Pat McGeer for increasing the share of the educational taxes that will have to be borne by homeowners.

McGeer said this week he is raising the basic levy on property taxes by almost two points to 41.68 mills.

It has been estimated that this will mean property owners will have to pay an additional $62 million in school taxes next year.

Council president John Shields said the government supports the concept of cutting back in its own spending but in doing so is putting more and more financial burden on homeowners and taxpayers.

"I think this is a highly dangerous practice on the part of the provincial government," he said.

SINGLE GLAZING IN SWEDEN ISN'T STUPID.

IT'S CRIMINAL

The Swedes believe in energy conservation. They keep just as warm as us, but at about half the cost. And that's because they believe in good home insulation.

For years they've had to double glaze. Now, under new regulations, they're obliged to triple glaze!

Double-glazing makes the most of any heating system because it can halve the amount of heat lost through windows and patio doors. And these days that adds up to a lot of fuel and money.

Consider the other benefits: Double-glazing reduces condensation and external noise, increases living area and the value of your property. In short, it improves the quality of life. Why not make a beginning with living room where you'll get the greatest benefit? It would be criminal to ignore it.

Phone Granite Industries at 384-4148 for a free written and carefully prepared appraisal of double-glazing your house or condominium. There is no obligation.

Phone Granite Industries at 516 William St., 384-4148 for a free written and carefully prepared appraisal of double-glazing your house or condominium. There is no obligation.

Trendy But No Answer

MONTREAL (CP) — "It's trendy to talk about decentralization, but people shouldn't be fooled into thinking it is a magic solution to the country's problems, Finance Minister Jean Chretien said Wednesday.

"The word decentralization is often used without additional explanation, giving the impression that greater decentralization is a panacea that would cause all our ills to disappear without leaving a trace." Chretien said in a speech to the Association of Masters of Business Administration of Quebec.

"I think it is time for us to stop for a moment and reflect on the implications of this magic word."

The minister said Canada already is highly decentralized. The federal government's share of public finances has been dropping steadily since the end of the 1940s when Ottawa took two-thirds of all taxes and the provinces and municipalities split the rest.

But now, he said, the federal government accounts for no more than 40 per cent of revenues and 45 per cent of public spending.

In drawing up a new constitution, Canada needs a practical approach, not slogans, to decide what responsibilities can be handled best on a country-wide basis and what should be decentralized, Chretien said.

"To go further towards decentralization could create many more problems than solutions."

Tories 'Flunkies' on UIC Plans

OTTAWA (CP) — Progressive Conservatives were called flunkies of greedy, selfish provincial governments Wednesday when they formally proposed a new unemployment insurance system.

Their proposal, similar to one made last week by the provinces, would pay fewer unemployment insurance benefits to applicants without dependents.

The proposal, issued as an amendment to the government's proposed unemployment insurance legislation, raised bitter protest from Employment Minister Bud Cullen, Liberal and New Democratic MPs.

The amendment, proposed in the Commons manpower committee, is bound to be defeated by a combined majority of Liberal and NDP members when it is voted on today.

John Rodriguez (NDP—Nickel Belt) said the main reason the provinces want this plan is that they do not want to pay the extra welfare costs that will result from the government bill. The government bill will make about 250,000 persons ineligible for benefits and some of them will go on welfare.

"I think that's a really greedy, selfish attitude," Rodriguez said. He called the Conservatives Commons flunkies for the provinces.

Cullen and his officials said the plan would discriminate against women and create complex administrative troubles. They said the idea has been studied off and on by the government for five years and was always rejected.

The Conservative proposal goes one step further than the two-tier system proposed last week by social services ministers from Ontario, Newfoundland and New Brunswick. They said they were speaking for all provinces except Manitoba which was undecided.

Both the provinces and the Conservatives propose that those with dependents be paid benefits equal to about two-thirds of their insured earnings. Those without dependents would get benefits equal to one-half of their insured earnings. The government now pays about two-thirds to everyone and proposes to reduce that by 10 per cent.

The Conservatives went further by saying that dependents could be claimed by a man or woman in a married or unwed couple.

Manitoba Conservative Jake Epp said that calling his party members flunkies "does no service to federalism."

Epp also said that the provincial ministers indicated last week that the Saskatchewan NDP government supports the two-tier plan.

Conservatives, led by Paul McCrossan, a Toronto actuary who worked out details of the proposal, said their plan is cheaper, would save the government more money than the Liberal bill.

'Squatter Spotter' Takes to Air In Northern Illegals Hunt

WHITEHORSE (CP) — A helicopter will be used this winter to look for residents occupying land illegally, city manager Dave Gairns said Wednesday.

"We had a 'squatter spotter' hired a few years ago, who flew around the municipality looking for these people," Gairns said. "A helicopter is the best thing to use and winter is the best time to go looking, since structures show up better against the snow."

He said that at last count there were about 150 people illegally occupying land in the area. City policy is to evict new squatters first, he said.

Persons found guilty of occupying land illegally face a maximum fine of $250 or three months in jail or both.

Massive Defaults Feared for AHOP

OTTAWA (CP) — At least 8,000 Ontario residents and vast numbers of other Canadians will default on federal government-backed home mortgages in the first three months of next year, Conservative MPs said in the Commons Wednesday.

Jean Pigott (PC—Ottawa-Carleton) and Dean Whiteway (PC—Selkirk) said there are severe problems with the Assisted Home Ownership Program (AHOP) which offers low-income families subsidies and grants to enable them to buy homes.

But Urban Affairs Minister Andre Ouellet said the AHOP program has a 95-per-cent success rate. It was necessary to take some risks in order to allow more people to become homeowners.

"We believe we have to take some risks and give some breaks to those at the lower end of the income scale, hoping that their incomes will improve and they can keep their homes."

Over the shouts and cheers of Opposition MPs, Ouellet said there is a fundamental difference between Liberal party and the Conservative party.

"The Liberals are ready to give a break to the low income and middle income people," he said.

"In doing so we are running the risk of some defaults. It is quite clear that the Conservative party will never give a break to the low-or middle-income people."

Pigott, Conservative housing critic, quarrelled with Ouellets's figures, saying 10 per cent, not five per cent, of AHOP mortgage holders default.

She also asked for assurances that houses built under the AHOP program will be of standard quality.

MEMBER CANADA DEPOSIT INSURANCE CORPORATION

Mr. Goldman You're A Wonderful Buyer!

Just returned from my Eastern Canada trip via C.P. Air having the most successful trip ever . . . my timing was right and came away with unbelievable values in name brand suits, imported sweaters, sport jackets and leathers from Canada and Israel, just to name a few . . . and the nice thing, the clothing purchased was from Canada's most respected makers . . . come in and say 'hello' — I'll recognize you . . . Murray

YES, GOLDMAN IS ON YOUR SIDE THIS CHRISTMAS

THIS WAS SOME TRIP
THIS IS SOME . . . SALE

JUST TILL SATURDAY

My trip got me close to 1000 pants (I'm not pulling your leg) and the saving is tremendous for you and for me . . . finest all-wool flannel slacks, firm in fabric yet soft to the touch. Full top or side pockets, loops or extension waist band — you name the shade, we've got it! Honest to Goodness, $50 value, your price $33.

It gets better as we go along. Dressing gowns are a man's favorite gift and we have tons (not really) . . . from velours and cottons to terrys — a jam-packed rackful — everything goes at 25% off (rack extra).

Turn off your TV, this is more fun. When it comes to sport jackets, we've got the best (if I don't say it, who will?). Magnificent tweeds of every description with interesting detailing, suede elbow, patches and collar tabs. Hold on to your seat (anybody's), here comes the price — $88 (Goldman, you're all heart).

Now we're going to sock it to you (you're not funny, Goldman). Wool socks by McGregor in ankle, midcalf length, and are you ready! Just 2 pairs for $5.00. (Well snap my garters!). Want them gift-wrapped? We don't do it — just wanted to know.

I know you've been waiting with bated breath for my suit offer. This is not just an ordinary suit sale, these are quality fashion suits from respected suit makers . . . we're talking about regular values of $225 to $275, even some at $295 . . . our sale price, just $166 and when you consider the tailoring the all-wool fabrics and the 3-piece vested styles, this is a bargain, Sir! (We must charge for alterations).

Stick with me, we're rolling now. We've got raincoats so who cares if it rains. Can't mention the maker (you'll know it) — the quality and style are good at $75 but for you, $44 and that's even better. Even if you don't buy, keep reading, please.

Boy, has Goldman, the knitwit, got sweaters! Tons of them (not really). Name brands from Italy in vee, crew and turtle neck styles, $24.95 value at a generous $16.88 (I know I'm too generous).

. . . and a masive table, tons of them (not really) of name-brand Shetland velours and fine and bulky knits in pullovers and cardigans at a whopping 25% off (Berma, taking dictation, just fainted at the price!).

MuRRAY GOLDMAN
1314 DOUGLAS
at YATES

. . . and here's the happy ending — altogether now, AWWWWWWWW!

Every piece of leather and suede jacket and topcoat in the store, including sheepskin carcoats — and I mean everything, all at 25% off — that's Fall '78 leathers at 25% off . . . thanks for sticking with me.

No Federal Lotteries - Clark

OTTAWA (CP) — A Progressive Conservative government would abolish Loto Canada and turn the lottery field over to the provinces, Opposition Leader Joe Clark said Wednesday.

If he were prime minister, he would hold federal lotteries only in "extraordinary" circumstances such as the 1976 Olympic Lottery, the forerunner of Loto Canada, Clark said in an interview.

Clark made his comments following a noisy question period in the Commons, where Opposition MPs tried unsuccessfully to find out whether the federal government had advised Loto Canada to sign $37-million worth of contracts which it now is trying to cancel.

Sports Minister Iona Campagnolo deflected Conservative questions with an impassioned partisan attack that was drowned out by desk thumping and shouting from both sides of the Commons.

The minister said that the Conservatives have made clear that they would abandon Loto Canada, denying money to Canadian athletes and the Canadian "cultural dimension."

Most revenue from Loto Canada now goes to Quebec to help pay for the 1976 Olympic Games. The remainder is used to help athletes.

Clark charged that Loto Canada officials have been "hung out to dry" because of a "significant error costing Canadians millions of dollars," when the fault may actually lie with cabinet ministers.

Loto Canada was left with contracts for computer equipment, telecommunications lines, employees and office space worth at least $37 million when it abandoned its plans for Loto Select, a computerized pick-your-own-number lottery.

The federal government agreed in October to leave the under-$10-a-ticket lottery field to the provinces, retaining Loto Canada's $10-a-ticket federal lottery.

Campagnolo told the Commons Tuesday that costs of getting out of contracts so far total about $800,000.

She refused to speculate on the costs of getting out of the main $23 million contract for computer equipment. Breaking another $14-million contract would cost $2 or $3 million, of which $1 million would be paid by Ontario and Quebec.

Those two provinces have taken over the $1-a-ticket computerized lottery which allows players to select their own numbers.

MONARCHY TO STAY: JAMIESON

LONDON (Reuter) — Canada has every intention of remaining a constitutional monarchy, External Affairs Minister Don Jamieson said Wednesday, adding there is great love in Canada for the Queen.

"I can't conceive of any development in my country that would change the feeling for the monarchy," Jameson added in a speech before the Royal Commonwealth Society.

Canada holds a strong belief in the Commonwealth and the need to keep sight of moral values in world affairs, Jamieson added. He believes the Commonwealth can be crucial in solving the problems of Africa, including Namibia and Rhodesia.

$¼M Deal Didn't Cost a Cent

HARWOOD, Ont. (CP) — The head of the Unification Church of Canada says the church bought 95 acres of picturesque land, worth about $250,000, for a religious retreat without using any money.

Martin Porter, who calls himself reverend, said a church member made an interest-free loan and the church got a collateral mortgage from another building in Toronto.

"And that's how we swung the deal—actually without any money at all," Porter said.

Members of the church are commonly known as Moonies, named after the church's founder, Sun Myung Moon.

The land on the south shore of Rice Lake, just east of this community about 40 kilometres north of Cobourg, will be used only as a religious retreat, where the church will hold weekend or week-long workshops and training sessions.

Porter said in a recent interview with the Cobourg Star that the recent mass suicide by members of the Peoples Temple in Jonestown, Guyana, has made it necessary to explain his church to the public.

"I'm not interested in publicity, but I think it is necessary to refute some of the allegations—particularly those comparing us with Jones," he said.

Porter, who has never been ordained, said religion has always fascinated him.

After being raised in an Anglican family with several ancestors as Anglican ministers, he converted to Catholicism, then became a Buddhist before joining Moon.

Porter said he left the Anglican Church because he still had many unanswered questions.

"I was told to believe many things, dogma faith, and I always wanted a bit more," he said. "I left Buddhism because it taught such an abstract understanding of God—it was not personal."

Those expressing interest in the church are invited without fees to a retreat, such as the one at Rice Lake, about 16 kilometres north of Cobourg, for a weekend session.

"What usually happens is this—after the short weekend course they may go on a longer course, and if they really like it, they may move on to one of our communities in, say, Montreal or Toronto," Porter said.

Payoff to Marchand Denied by Senator

TORONTO (CP) — Senator Maurice Riel, a former Liberal party treasurer, testified Wednesday that he paid no money from the federal Liberal party to Jean Marchand or to the political organization of the former federal cabinet minister in 1972.

Riel, who controlled disbursement of contributions to the federal Liberal party in 1972, was commenting at an Ontario Supreme Court trial about earlier testimony that a $25,000 cheque from J. P. Porter Co. Ltd. of Montreal was sent to the Marchand campaign fund for the 1972 federal election.

Horace Rindress, former Porter president, had testified he was directed to write a $25,000 cheque for Marchand's campaign in a Quebec City riding.

The trial involves 11 dredging company executives and nine of their firms charged with conspiring to defraud public agencies of $4.2 million.

Riel testified that the Porter cheque was deposited in a numbered account for federal Liberal party funds, then transferred to a second account.

From the second account, he issued eight cheques in 1972 to Liberal organizations in Ottawa and Montreal, he said.

Riel added that he was the only one who issued cheques that year and that no money was transferred to Marchand or his organization.

Riel also testified that he did not know what happened to the money given to Liberal organizations in Ottawa and Montreal.

Rindress had testified that he had a strong suspicion that the awarding of a $2.7-million federal government contract to a Porter subsidiary was rigged with $680,000 in illegal payoffs and the $25,000 campaign contribution.

THE FUTURE IS NOW!
ANNOUNCING THE NEW FRONT-WHEEL DRIVE DATSUN 310.

THREE POINT DATSUN
2620 GOVERNMENT at HILLSIDE • 385-6737 (dlr. lic. 00740A)

THE DATSUN 310 IS IN. VERY IN.

We know you're still out there. You still get behind the wheel, and invent a destination, simply to enjoy the sensation of driving.
The thrill of the road.
Do we have a car for you!
The new Datsun 310.
A new front wheel drive automobile with so many up front advantages, it's difficult to know where to begin.

So let's start with the long list of standard features, such as a split fold-down rear seat—and exciting options, like a 4-speaker stereo.
The driver's seat has never been more commanding.
Most of the hand controls are stalk-mounted on the steering column. For greater visibility there's 307.5° of tinted glass all round. And in the 310 Hatchback Sedan, there's even a remote control for the rear side windows. Few front wheel drive cars outmanoeuvre the 310. It turns in only 31.5 feet with exceptional power-to-weight. With rack and pinion steering, a fully independent suspension and steel-belted radials, this is performance that will impress even perfectionists like you.
Inside, the new 310 is a beautifully appointed, roomy and comfortable car with brushed cloth upholstery, colour-matched decor.
The ride is quiet with a bi-level flow-thru ventilation system for maximum comfort.
The 310 delivers a great gas economy of 7.1 litres per 100 kilometres.* And the confidence that comes from knowing that only Datsun dares to provide a full 6-year rust protection plan at no extra charge.
So you can go on driving for the love of it.
In fact, everything about the 310 has to make you lovers of driving feel good. After all, this new car was built especially for you. And here you were beginning to think you were an endangered species.

Nothing Bared as Gals Get Covered And Keep That Way in Locker Room

SEATTLE (AP) — "I didn't realize there were so many dirty old men around," chuckled Seattle University women's basketball coach Cathy Benedetto after opening the Chieftain locker room to male reporters for the first time.

The scene was like no other—for a couple of reasons.

It was female basketball players in sweat-soaked uniforms who sat on tables and stools by their lockers answering questions by male reporters about the Chieftains' game Tuesday night against their cross-stown rivals from the University of Washington.

And nobody took anything off.

Several weeks ago at a media luncheon, Benedetto acknowledged that her players' locker room would be open to all accredited press after games.

Some players had said they might slip into the shower while the reporters were present.

In the following weeks word spread, and Tuesday night Seattle's media showed up at the Seattle Arena in full force. About a dozen male reporters were there, only two or three of whom regularly cover the women's team.

Several female reporters and camera crews from all three local television stations also appeared after the game to record the precedent-setting event.

"I don't think anyone will believe me that I didn't do it for publicity," said Benedetto.

"I really didn't. For two years I've been waiting for someone to ask me if I was going open the locker room (to male reporters). (KING-TV sportscaster) Ray McMackin finally did about six weeks ago, and I said sure we would," Benedetto continued.

"As I've said before, the whole thing about women in men's locker rooms and men in women's locker rooms is really silly. Their (players) privacy is up to them. It's not my business."

"How do I feel about it?" asked six-foot centre Sue Turina. "I don't mind at all that you're all here, as long as we're not dressing. It'd be different, maybe, if we all started to undress and everybody was still here."

What happened was that after the game, the Chieftain players filed into the locker room and remained there, in their sweaty uniforms, for about 15 minutes while reporters of both sexes asked questions, cameras clicked and television cameras whirred.

The male reporters didn't go bonkers over the prospect of being in a women's locker room—perhaps because nobody took anything off.

The players themselves seemed to enjoy the attention and notoriety associated with males in their post-game quarters for the first time.

"It's just like winning the World Series and there's champagne and everything, only we have pop," freshman forward Mo Dunn said with a laugh.

After all questions were asked, the media left.

NL Frowns On New Look

ORLANDO, Fla. (AP) — Major league baseball club owners meet today to consider the restructuring of baseball to three division leagues with double-tiered playoffs.

And, as has often been the case, the American League appears to be for the new system, while at least three National League clubs oppose giving baseball a new look.

It takes a three-quarters majority of the 14 team American League and a unanimous National League approval to adopt the system proposed by a 10-man reorganization committee.

One National executive said his league might vote to change to a majority consent, but added, "it takes a unanimous vote to make the change."

The owners held an informal discussion meeting Wednesday and listened to the report on this radical restructuring of the game. Commissioner Bowie Kuhn termed the report positive.

Frank Cashen of Baltimore and Joe L. Brown, former Pittsburgh general manager, presented the committee's findings on the revolutionary plan.

A National League source indicated Los Angeles Dodgers, Philadelphia Phillies and possibly Cincinnati Reds were against the plan, unless the evidence proved it was in the best interest of baseball.

The 10-man committee believes the plan is the game's financial salvation. Ever increasing player salaries, multi-million dollar free agent contracts and inflated operating costs have forced baseball to look for new revenue.

While one National League source said the American League might go with the plan alone, Kuhn said, "it is much better if this is done, that it be done together. We've discussed this and I don't believe there is much chance of a problem of this nature."

A major factor in the three divisional plan is television and the additional money it would pay for a second tier of playoffs.

Things Improve For North Stars

By The Canadian Press

Minnesota North Stars got a little of everything Wednesday night—forechecking, good goalkeeping, two goals from rookie Bobby Smith, and a potent power play.

But the biggest addition may be an intangible.

"The players on this team are getting respect for one another," said coach Glen Sonmor, who saw his club dump Los Angeles Kings 4-0 for its third straight win.

"I think they're starting to appreciate what each other does and what it takes to win. I'd like to think this is the real North Stars you saw out there tonight."

The North Stars, real or unreal, hadn't won three in a row since Dec. 6, 1975, exactly three years ago.

And the shutout was Minnesota's first in 56 games.

In other games New York Rangers defeated St. Louis Blues 7-4, Pittsburgh Penguins handed Toronto Maple Leafs its third consecutive loss 6-4 and Detroit Red Wings held Montreal Canadiens to a 2-2 tie.

"You gotta be lucky to get shutouts," admitted Stars' goalie Gilles Meloche, who stopped 33 shots, including 14 in both the first and third periods. "But I don't care about them as long as we win."

"Let's face it, it's been a slow start for me," said Smith, the first player to be claimed in last summer's amateur draft. "It's good to be contributing. One game doesn't turn everything around for me, but it sure felt good to get those goals."

Defenceman Brad Maxwell, who makes his home in Victoria, also refelected the Minnesota turnabout by figuring in three of the fourth goals. The sophomore also suffered through a slow start but turned in an outstanding three-assist performance.

Gymnastics Can Be Fun Under Marta's Firm Hand

bill walker

"Hi! I can do the splits," the little tyke with the pony tails offered. She did, giggled and was gone.

That was the introduction this week to the Falcon Artistic Gymnastics Club and what perhaps may be termed "fun gymnastics". It was novel, different and nice to see.

At a time when physical exercise of one form or another has increasingly become the way of life for many people, gymnastics have forced their way into the Canadian sports scene. And where better to start than with the very young?

This is the basic philosophy at the Falcon and the author is Marta Klinovsky, a Czechoslovakian immigrant who is founder and director of the school at 715 Johnson Street.

But, more importantly, Marta thinks gymnastic experience can be a fun thing for a youngster and that's the way she teaches the sport, with a firm hand, but no over-riding pressures.

The program basically is divided into three parts, pre-school, recreational and competitive, with emphasis on the recreational.

The pre-school program, Marta says, is aimed at promoting physical fitness, flexibility, strength, endurance, agility, co-ordination and speed while building confidence, self awareness and, above all, a positive self image.

And if the youngsters don't understand the heavy stuff, they seem to enjoy the sport and that's what counts.

The bottom line is that there is a recreational form of gymnastics for girls up to 13 years of age. The key word is "recreational". Then, if the pupils show aptitude for competitive gymnastics and want to go on, training will be provided in that field. But nobody will be forced.

"I don't push children," Marta said. "It is their own decision to make because if they enter the competitive field, they will have to work very hard. Then I will be very strict.

"We like to get four or five ready for the provincials each year," she said of the club, which has won several minor honors. "But if they don't make it nothing is lost."

Marta strives to make her program interesting as well as instructional with small classes, multi-purpose and experienced instructors. She is assisted by her husband Peter, a master instructor who specializes in the uneven bars, tumbling and vaulting; Jill Weinberg, a former pupil and now a student at UVic who competed in three Olympic trials and was ranked in the top 15 at the junior level in 1975-76; Peter Allan, a UVic student and member of the University's gymnastics team; and Ryanne Peterson, another former pupil who won the Canadian junior national title on the balance beam in 1973.

The program at Falcon — which incidentally is a large, well equipped facility — is week-long and calls for three days recreational and three competitive with Sunday reserved for choreography and special training for competitive gymnasts.

A typical day this week had 12 pre-schoolers (girls and boys) in an early class with about the same number of older girls due later.

Marta comes by her gymnastics background honestly. She was an instructor in Czechoslovakia before leaving in 1964. "It was the year of the invasion," she said, "and no place for a young couple to be starting out in life."

Before that she was good enough competitively to have been the junior national champion on the balance beam and in floor exercies twice, 1958 and 1959, and be named an alternate to the Czech Olympic team in 1964.

An injury prevented her from getting a chance in the Olympics. Then came the invasion, the Klinovskys departed, and now Victoria is their home after a brief stay at Duncan when they first arrived in B.C.

Since coming here, Marta has been head coach at the Flying "Y" gym club and established the present Falcon club in 1973.

Junior performers more often than not are overshadowed by seniors and Marta is the first to agree that Canada's national men's champion, Philip Delesalle, has done much for gymnastics in the country, and in Victoria. But she also feels that Victoria has another rising gymnast who may command some attention one day. And she is rather proud of her protege.

Tracy Beer this year was the national junior over-all champion. By her victory, she earned trips to Bulgaria, Hungary and German with the Canadian national junior and senior teams and now is in training at a gymnastics school in Eugene, Oregon.

"It's strict there," Marta said. "Four hours of school in the morning and gymnastics the rest of the day."

As for becoming a top gymnast, the difficulty here is that those aspiring to greatness don't have others of comparable ability to work with, she said. The Olympic games and the Commonwealth Games have done much to increase interest in the sport, she added, but stiff competition and long and hard training is still the only answer to get to the top.

As to the future, Marta thinks the competitive nature of the sport will eventually appeal to more Victorians. "We feel that as our recreational base grows stronger, our competitive program will attract those special girls who find gymnastics a very special thing in their lives. Then it will be up to them."

Marta would like to do more. She would like to see some form of a school program. But there is no allowance for gymnastics in schools at present.

"At home, I could ask to see a class, could pick out those I thought would be most suitable as gymnasts and start training."

"Gymnastics in Europe is as popular as hockey is in Canada," she explained."

Marta and Peter have two children, a girl 10 and a boy eight.

"Do they take part in gymnastics?", she was asked.

"Our daughter does," Marta said. "But our boy plays hockey."

She laughed . . . then went off to her little moppets who, obediently and patiently, had been been sitting on a mat, waiting for the visitor to leave.

"Bye," they said, hopefully. The fun was late in getting started this day.

Junior Champion To Perform Here

Tracy Beer of Victoria, Canada's national junior gymnastics champion now attending the National Acamemyof Artistic Gymnastics in Eugene, Ore., will be the only local entry in the provincial trials to select a team for the Canada Winter Games on Saturday.

The one-day event gets underway at 1 p.m. in the McKinnon Gymt UVic.

A total of six male and six female athletes will be picked to attend the Canada Games during February in Brandon.

Since the Winter Games are limited to juniors, Victoria's national team members Philip Delesalle and Owen Walstrom are not eligible.

MONTREAL (CP) — The 1978-79 National Hockey League season is over for Canadiens' captain Yvan Cournoyer because of a recurring back problem which will necessitate a second major operation, probably in January of next year.

Shupe Steps Forth As a Cougar Owner

By ERNIE FEDORUK
Times Staff

The owners of the Victoria Cougars are pleased with the way things are going this season because it means, in effect, some of their own are contributing to the Western Hockey League team's success.

The expression of pleasure wasn't an ego ride. It happened Wednesday because manager and coach Jack Shupe stepped forward to be introduced as a new part owner of the Cougars.

Majority owners Paul Panchyshyn and Ray Haramboure announced a shifting of shares that, they hope, will give the team "greater stability" in the eyes of Victoria fans.

Paul LaPointe, father of former Cougar and now Philadelphia Flyer defenceman Rick LaPointe, has sold his 35 per cent interest in the team. A shareholder in the team when Victoria was first accepted into the major junior league, the elder LaPointe also relinquishes a position as team director.

Shupe has purchased 25 per cent of the shares. In addition, he succeeds Haramboure as alternate governor. Panchyshyn remains president and governor.

"We feel that . . . (Shupe) adds a stabilizing influence," said Panchyshyn.

All three expressed delight with the team's performance so far this season. Panchyshyn added that the Cougars have drawn an average of 2,132 fans for their first 13 home games. Last year, the average at this time was "just over 1,700."

"Paul and Jack are more active in the operation than I am," said Haramboure, "but I have to tell you about how proud I am of this year's team. Everybody else in the league feels we have the most exciting team. I've thought it all along, but I'm biased. When others tell you, over and over, it really boosts my ego.

"With Jack becoming an owner, I'm sure we're going to have the same kind of teams in the future."

The announcement overshadowed all other items offered at Wednesday's media meeting, including confirmation that the Cougars will play a second international exhibition this season. The Czechoslovakian junior national team will play the Cougars in Memorial Arena Jan. 11, one of six games scheduled in Seattle and British Columbia.

The first international test for Victoria will be a Dec. 19 game against Moscow Selects.

The Cougars will have high-scoring Gary Lupul on hand and also are expected to be bolstered by at least four players for the Selects' game. Forwards Mike Toal and Perry Turnbull, defenceman David Babych, all of Portland, and forward Len Dies of Seattle are expected to be the strengthening additions.

Lupul was scheduled to leave Dec. 19 with New Westminster Bruins for Europe and the world junior tournament, but Cougars have made arrangements to fly their centre to Finland the following day.

In league action Wednesday, the Bruins closed to within one point of second-place Victoria by defeating Regina Pats 7-4 and goalkeeper Andy Moog posted his third shutout as Billings Bighorns blanked Lethbridge Broncos 3-0.

Athletes In Action To Test Vikings

UVic Vikings and Vikettes take on a couple of tough foes this Friday in their final home appearances before the New Year.

Vikings play Athletes in Action, a touring basketball team made up largely of former U.S. all-star collegians devoted to the Campus Crusade for Christ in Canada. UVic coach Ken Shields figures the AIA aggregation could be the toughest team Vikings will face this year.

Vikettes, meanwhile, tackle the Victoria Home Lumber Senior "A" women in what could be an excellent preliminary offering starting at 6:45 p.m. at McKinnon Gym. Only one point separated the teams in two exhibition meetings earlier this season, Vikettes winning the first game 66-63 and losing the second 69-65.

Making Vikings' assignment all the more difficult is the fact that two of their regulars are on the limp and are questionable starters for Friday night's encounter starting at 8:30.

Chris Hebb was unable to complete practice earlier this week because of an ankle sprain and Gary Budd is in the doubtful category with a pulled muscle above his left knee.

Shields, meanwhile, received confirmation this week of some bad news he expected all along — guard Craig Higgins will sit out the entire season to give his ailing knee a rest.

Higgins developed a tendonitis condition common to basketball players and high ju pers following an outstanding freshman season with the Vikes last year and after extensive medical consoltation decided not to play.

"We were keeping our fingers crossed," Shields said. "The hope that Craig would be able to play was there in the back of everyone's mind but I don't think too many people were optimistic."

Athletes in Action has played several Canadian university teams along with several small colleges in the northern U.S. The team posted a two-point victory over St. Mary's Huskies of Halifax, ranked number one in Canada and a loser by only 20 points recently to Duke University of North Carolina, ranked first in the U.S. NCAA poll.

The only Canadian on the team of former all-Americans is centre Murray Redekop from Briercrest Bible Institute in Saskatchewan.

Vikings get a break after Friday until Dec. 21 and 22 when they take part in a four-team tournament, the John Lewis Classic, in Salem, Ore. Other schools in the event are host Willamette University, Western Baptist College and Lewis and Clark College.

Vikettes' nest start after Friday is the Simon Fraser University invitational tournament in Vancouver Dec. 28-30.

One Sure Hand Enough For Young Rugby Player

max low

Hands, rugby writers the world over will tell you, are key ingredients in the sport.

All players, but particularly the backs — the scrum-halves, the standoff-halves, the wings — require sure hands to ensure success. They have to be able to take the ball cleanly at speed and whip it along to the next player. A fumble (a knock-on in rugby talk) and the whistle goes.

Well, 16-year-old Jeffrey Bishop is a speedy wing three-quarter and he's doing very well, thank you, with one sure hand and a stump!

Just over a year ago, the Oak Bay High School student had his right hand shattered in an explosion. It was amputated at the wrist.

He was, they said, making a sort of bomb for Halloween.

"But it wasn't really for Halloween," Jeff told me Sunday. "It was just something for the heck of doing it. A friend and I were making a CO_2 cartridge just to see what would happen and it went off in my hand."

Today, Jeffrey Bishop wears an artificial hand and says he can manage just about anything he could do before although he admits tying shoelaces is a little tricky.

But he doesn't wear his artificial hand to play rugby.

Actually, I had gone to Windsor Park on Sunday to investigate charges that the game in the lower divisions — Divisions 3 and 4 — in the Vancouver Island Rugby Union's league was dying. Players recalled the days a few years back when there were eight teams or more in Division 4 and the youngsters were fanatics.

Now there are only four teams in the under-19 division, they pointed out, and so therefore it must be crumbling.

Not so, say the coaches and the players.

I watched a really impressive Division 4 game between Oak Bay and Saanich Agrarians and found the youngsters are still fanatics.

Both Oak Bay team coach Jim Wenman and Agrarians Club manager Hunter Poole told me they had around 25 or 26 boys each (there are 15 in a team) in their under-19 squads and all were as keen as could be.

So I was pleased to find that what started as a negative hunch turned out to be a positive point for rugby.

And I was delighted to meet this plucky young boy who each Sunday takes off his artificial hand and races down the left wing for his Agrarians team, plucking the ball out of the air with his one good hand and using his stump and wrist to help spin it along to his fellow players.

"It's not too difficult to handle the ball," Jeff told me, "though it took some time getting used to it. When the season started I was ready, though, and I dived over in the corner for a try in our first match."

And, in a very adult fashion, Jeff recommended anyone in a similar position should get out and play something rather than staying home brooding.

Hunter Poole, who himself had to have a leg amputated after complications following a bad break suffered in a game of rugby, agreed.

Strangely, though, before his accident a year ago, Jeffrey Bishop had never played rugby. He had, he said, played soccer and Canadian football, both very well, at school.

Then why go to a game like rugby which requires handling when soccer, where unless you're a goalkeeper you're not allowed to touch the ball with your hands, would seem ideal?

JEFFREY BISHOP
... had something to prove

"Well, I had started to lose interest in soccer, and rugby just fitted because it's a game between soccer and football," he explained, "and I love contact sports."

"Wasn't there the need to prove something, too, I ventured.

"That's always up there," Jeff admitted with a grin. "You like to prove you can, sure.

"I chose rugby mainly because I wanted to show certain people — and myself — that I can get out there and play a game like this, even if I only have one hand.

"Then maybe other people like this will see they can do it, too."

Leafs Boost Lead

Esquimalt Maple Leafs expanded their first-place margin to three points over Western Homes Buckaroos by tripping Victoria Athletics 6-3 Wednesday in South Island Big Six Hockey League play at Esquimalt Sports Centre.

Guy Fournier, Randy Krantz, Bill Gidden, Rob Coldwell, Gerry Blanchette and Bill Jobson scored for Leafs, now 14-3-1.

Bruce Cowick, John Entzminger and Kevin Kennedy replied for the third-place Athletics.

Goaltender Reg Wonnenberg blocked 28 shots for Leafs while Brock Davies of Athletics came up with 22 saves.

Flyers Triumph

CHEMAINUS — Fuller Lake Flyers mauled Kerry Park Islanders 21-2 Wednesday night in a South Vancouver Island Junior "B" Hockey League game at Fuller Lake Arena.

Keith Mazerenko, Greg Hollett, Ken Bell and Brett Malli led Flyers with three goals each while double tallies were recorded by George Chadwick, Carl Heggelund, Don Bodger and Lorne Smith and a single came from Brian Branting.

Doug Jordan and Doug Palmer replied for Kerry Park.

Read Sets Fast Time On Downhill Course

SCHLADMING, Austria (AP) — Canada's Ken Read was the fastest man down the track of the 3,600-metre Mount Planai downhill course in the first time trials Thursday for Sunday's World Ski Cup downhill event.

The event replaces the French Val d'Isere race which had to be rescheduled to Mount Planai for lack of snow.

Read, of Calgary, clocked the distance in 2:02.10 minutes. Second was Walter Vesti, Switzerland 2:02.17 and third was Austria's downhill ace Franz Klammer in 2:02.27.

Read, from Calgary, also clocked the fastest time in the second time trial with 2:01.81 while Steve Podborski of Toronto was second in 2:03.54.

In the first run, Podborski was ninth fastest in 2:03.98 while Dave Irwin of Thunder Bay, Ont., was 12th in 2:04.05.

Canucks Send Three To Farm

VANCOUVER (CP) — Vancouver Canucks sent three players to Dallas Black Hawks of the Central Hockey League Wednesday, including veteran goaltender Dunc Wilson.

A spokesman for the National Hockey League team said Wilson needed playing time with the CHL team so he could work himself into condition and return to the Canucks.

Wilson, 30, was purchased last month from Pittsburgh Penguins when injuries hindered netminders Glen Hanlon and Gary Bromley. Hanlon has played spectacularly, however, and the Canucks are undefeated in their last four games.

Also sent to Dallas were rookie right wingers Rob Tudor and Stan Smyl.

Tudor, 22, began the season in Dallas, but was recalled by the Canucks when Smyl suffered a shoulder injury three weeks ago in Chicago. Tudor had one assist with the NHL team.

Smyl, 20, had two goals and eight assists in 11 games before his injury. He will play three weekend games in Dallas before rejoining the Canucks.

No More Racing For Plate Winner

TORONTO (CP) — The racing career of Regal Embrace, this year's winner of the Queen's Plate, has been ended.

Joe Thomas, vice-president of thoroughbred operations at E. P. Taylor's Windfields Farm, said the horse has been shipped to Windfields' division at Oshawa.

The bay colt had not raced since finishing fourth in the Breeders' Stakes in October.

LADIES CITY CLUB CHAMPIONSHIP ON THE LINE

Six Rinks In LeLacheur

By BILL WALKER
Times Staff

It's the ladies turn in the competitive field of curling this weekend with the annual LeLacheur competition taking place at the Oak Bay Recreation Centre with Fran Turner of Playland cast in the role of defending champion.

The LeLacheur is a round-robin, inter-club competition with the winner to be proclaimed City Ladies Champion, and it brings together representative rinks from six of the area clubs.

First donated in 1952, the LeLacheur Trophy originally was restricted to Victoria Curling Club, which was the only curling club in the area at the time.

In 1967 the format was changed to include all district clubs and only Glen Meadows, the newest of the clubs, is not included in this year's event.

First draw is Friday at 1:30 p.m. Other draw times are Saturday at 9 a.m. and 1:30 and 4 p.m., and Sunday at 2:15 p.m. In the event of a tie, a playoff will be held at 4:15 p.m.

Competing rinks are:

PLAYLAND — Fran Turner, Carol Rowe, Lorraine Ross, Marg Massey.

RACQUET CLUB — Mary Matheson, Judy Martell Kathy Courtnall, Shirley Small.

VICTORIA — Flora Martin, Elsie Humphrey, Anita Moody, Marie Swanton.

JUAN DE FUCA — Joy Hoole, Vivi Eveleigh, Angela MacDonald, Audrey Hauge.

OAK BAY — Lee Jameson, Hilda Dobreiner, Margaret Richmond, Stell Petres.

ESQUIMALT — Carmel Marshall, Shirley Riches, Joy Irvine, Millie Mountford.

Senior men are reminded that entries close Friday for the South Island playdowns to take place at Glen Meadows, Dec. 15-17.

Dave Johnston of Victoria Club is the defending Island champion and he will have one change from the rink which represented the city in last year's Pacific Coast Curling Association final. Marvin Heap replaces Bill MacLean at lead. Other members are Gordon Hooey, third, and Stan Humphrey, second.

The North Island playoff is scheduled for Nanaimo.

Four rinks will qualify out of each playoff for the Island final which will be played at Powell River, Jan. 5-7.

The North Island junior and juvenile men's playdowns are set for Qualicum this weekend with 10 junior and eight juvenile entries.

Four will qualify in each classification for the Island final at Campbell River the following weekend.

Qualifying out of the South last weekend were pinks skipped by John McGowan, Kelly Horrigan, Ralph Kitchen and Barry Moore in the junior division and Errol Du Buc, Garry Irvine, Jeff Hooper and Bruce Fraser in the juvenile section.

The junior playoffs carry more significance this year as the Canadian junior men's championship is set for Victoria Curling Club, March 19-24.

On the monthly bonspiel calendar, the Playland Men's is on this weekend and the Mill Bay Mixed goes Christmas week, Dec. 26-30.

Meanwhile, the Steve Skillings rink is up at Edmonton this week for a shot against the pick of the country in a 64-rink special with a handsome prize list of $60,000 to boot. In Calgary a week ago, Skillings won one and lost three, one defeat coming in an extra end against Rick Folk, runner up to the Canadian at the Brier last year, and former Canadian schoolboy champion Tommy Kroeger.

So they're getting the type of competition they've been asking for.

Webb Ross On Top

Over-900 series helped pave the way to fivepin victories for Muriel Webb and Jim Ross during the ninth week of the 16th annual Times Bowler-of-the-Week contest.

Muriel collected the women's prize with a 257-316-367 — 940 series in the Tuesday Coffee League at Chemainus Bowlarena while Jim catured men's laurels with a 368-251-329 — 948 series in the Monday Classic League at Town and Country Lanes.

Another fivepin winner was Jim Parry, who was the victim of a mixup during the sixth week of competition.

Bill Cool, an earlier winner this year, was inayertently entered again and awarded the laurels.

Parry topped the division with a 265-317-297 — 889 series in the Simpson Sears League at Town and Country Lanes.

Ivy's Pads Win Skien

Strathcona Ivy's, sparked by a 22-point effort from Dean Sawyer, boosted their first-place record to 9-0 by blasting Techline Copy Centre 105-81 in Victoria Senior "B" Men's Basketball League play Wednesday at Central Junior High School.

Lorne Dakin added 14 points for Ivy's while Brian Sutherland-Brown and Gord Hoshal pumped in 12 each.

Stu Montgomery fired 19 points to set the pace for Techline, which trailed 41-37 at the half. Tom Hatcher added 18 and Al Olsen contributed 14.

The loss left Techline with a 2-7 record and tied for third place with Trilec Installations. Victoria Athletics are second at 5-4.

COACH FIRED

WEST POINT, N.Y. (AP) — Homer Smith was fired as Army's football coach Wednesday after completing his fourth losing season in five years.

Loukes Leads Ram Victory

Jay Loukes fired 18 points to spark host Mt. Douglas Rams to a 63-31 victory over Parkland Panthers in an exhibition high school boys' basketball game Wednesday. Quinn Groenhyde, usually a prolific marksman, was held to eight points while leading the Parkland attack.

GULF RADIAL SNOW TIRES
TRACTION ACTION

When the going gets tough this winter, you'll need the extra traction and confidence that Gulf radial snow tires give you. Your Gulf dealer has two complete lines of radial snow tires to choose from, and he'll be happy to help you pick the one that suits you best.

And remember this. All Gulf winter tires contain XTP (Extra Traction Polymer), a special compound that keeps the tread flexible to provide improved starting, stopping and snow shedding at temperatures below 0 degrees C.

Radial Winterway
Self-cleaning tread. Quiet ride. 6 full plies (2 polyester radial and 4 rayon belts). Wide 78 series profile. This fabric radial is ideal for replacing original equipment summer radials. A fine value.
from $46.95 or less (AR-78-13)

Steel Radials
This is the finest winter tire Gulf sells. Self-cleaning tread with extra large shoulder lugs. 2 radial plies of polyester plus 2 strong steel belts. The steel radial is smooth riding and offers exceptional pulling power in mud or snow.
from $59.95 or less (BR 78-13)

Save with Gulf's bias ply or belted snow tires!

Trail Blazer
4 plies of tough polyester for smoother ride and no "flat spotting". This is an economical and very practical snow tire.

Blazer Belted
2 plies of polyester plus 2 fiberglas belts for extra strength and longer life. Great traction action for a great price!

CHARGEX VISA master charge
For extra convenience, use your Gulf Travel Card and at most stations use Chargex (Visa) or Master Charge.

from $26.95 or less (600-12)
from $31.95 or less (A78-13)

FIFA Rejects World Cup Players in Olympics

ZURICH, Switzerland (Reuter) — World soccer's governing body said Wednesday it had rejected a plea by the International Olympic Committee to allow East European Communist countries to field World Cup players in the 1980 Olympic Games.

An editorial in the official monthly news magazine of the International Football Federation (FIFA) said general secretary Dr. Helmut Kaeser stated FIFA's "clear and final position" in a recent letter to IOC president Lord Killanin.

FIFA decided on the ban at a congress last May. It struck mainly at East European Communist countries which have dominated the Olympic soccer tournament since 1952 fielding their two strongest national squads against amateur sides from the rest of the world.

This was possible because Communist states do not admit professionalism in sport and maintain all their athletes, including their World Cup soccer teams, are amateurs.

Two English Teams Win

By The Associated Press

Three teams from West Germany and two from England qualified Wednesday for the quarter finals of the UEFA Cup soccer competition.

West Bromwich Albion and Manchester City will be England's representatives, while the German teams to qualify were Borussia Moenchengladbach, Hertha BSC Berlin and MSV Duisburg.

Another German team, VFB Stuttgart, lost to Czechoslovakia's Dukla Prague, while Britain's third representative, Arsenal, lost to Red Star Belgrade of Yugoslavia.

West Bromwich overcame the Spanish club Valencia 2-0 for a 3-1 aggregate victory. Tony Brown shot the English club into an early lead when he neeted a penalty after just four minutes, and wrapped matters up with a second goal nine minutes from full time.

Arsenal, which lost the first leg 1-0, was without suspended midfielder Liam Brady but netted first when Alan Sunderland levelled matters with a header after 69 minutes. But a goal from Dusac four minutes from full time earned victory for Red Star.

Manchester City, which drew 2-2 in Italy, took immediate control in a 3-0 win over AC Milan. Tommy Booth headed home a ASA Hartford free kick afthr 15 minutes and Hartford scored 20 minutes later with a 25 metre drive. Brian Kidd netted a third goal before half time.

Four men were booked in the match.

Borrussia Moenchengladbach had Danish international striker Allan Simonsen to thank for its 4-2 second-leg victory over the Polish club Slask-Wroclaw in Warsaw.

Simonsen hit a hat-trick as Borussia scored a surprise win. The first leg in Germany had been drawn 1-1.

Hertha BSC Berlin qualified when it beat EFB Esjberg of Denmark 4-0 for a 5-2 aggregate victory. Striker Juergen Milewski scored all four goals.

Lakers Lose on Layup

By The Canadian Press

When he was the National Basketball Association's premier guard, Jerry West was known as Mr. Clutch for his penchant for hitting the crucial shot late in the game. If West had been playing for Los Angeles Lakers instead of coaching them Wednesday night, his team might have left San Antonio as winners.

But Mr Clutch in the Spurs' 112-111 victory over the Lakers was San Antonio's George Gervin. The Iceman, as Gervin is nicknamed, hit a layup with one second remaining to move the Spurs past Los Angeles.

Just seconds before, the Lakers committed the type of unpardonable sin West rarely made—they got greedy, tried to score a clinching basket and turned the ball over.

"This was one of the best games we've played in a long time," said West, "and that play was one of the worst I've ever seen."

The play West mentioned occurred after his club took a 111-110 lead with seconds left on a slam dunk by Kenny Carr. As Gervin brought the ball upcourt, it was stolen by Norm Nixon, who had only to hold onto it and run out the clock. Instead, Nixon passed to Lou Hudson who, not expecting the ball, traveled with it.

San Antonio's Mark Olberding then spotted Gervin breaking for the basket "and I just threw the ball under (Kareem) Abdul-Jabbar's arm." Gervin grabbed it and put it home.

"I've been in the league so long I thought nothing would surprise me," said West. "But tonight I was surprised. We should have held the ball."

Gervin led the Spurs, who played without star forward Larry Kenon, with 27 points. Nixon matched his career high with 28 to pace Los Angeles.

Elsewhere in the NBA, Indiana topped Portland 115-109; Boston bean San Diego 117-111; Philadelphia eased past Kansas City 114-106; Washington defeated Houston 101-96; Denver won over New Jersey 92-83; Phoenix blasted Atlanta 136-109 and Golden State defeated Milwaukee 118-111.

Inglis Interim Sabre Coach

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP) — The appointment of former Buffalo Sabres player Bill Inglis as the team's interim coach for today's game with Los Angeles Kings has cast doubt on the hopes of Joe Crozier to fill one or both of the National Hockey League team's vacancies.

Crozier, a former Sabres coach, earlier was reported to be the top choice for coach of Seymour H. Knox III, the Sabres' president and board chairman who fired general manager Punch Imlach and coach Marcel Pronovost on Monday.

However, talks between the Sabres and Crozier ran into a snag when Crozier was reported to have asked to be named general manager as well as coach.

The Sabres announced the selection of Inglis, an Ottawa-native, on Wednesday night but did not specify the expected length of the interim appointment.

Knox talked with several other candidates on Wednesday, suggesting that Crozier may no longer be a cinch for the coaching position that he was two days ago.

Inglis reacted to the news of his interim appointment with caution.

"This afternoon I was the head coach on an hour-to-hour basis," he said Wednesday. "Tonight I'm the coach on a day-to-day situation. I don't know anything more than that.

"All I know is that I'm in a very enviable position. I don't think there will be one person in the stands tonight who wouldn't give his eye teeth to coach the Sabres for one game."

The 35-year-old Inglis spent most of his 15 seasons as a professional in the minor leagues with the last eight in the Sabres' organization. He retired as a player before this season, signing as a scout and coaching assistant.

Before The Judge

Mercy Quota Gone: Judge

An 18-year-old offender was told by a judge Wednesday he had used up his quota of mercy from the courts.

Bernard John Strating had pleaded guilty before Judge Arthur McClellan in county court of being in possession of stolen cash and liquor exceeding $200 value while on probation from a previous offence.

"The courts don't want to make a jailbird out of you," McClellan told him, wondering whether probation is warranted again despite three previous convictions for breaking, entering and theft, and theft over $200 value.

"The courts can't rehabilitate you, nor the probation officer. The only person who can make the urge is yourself.

"I've decided to gamble once more, but you have used up all the mercy the courts have for you," the judge said.

He suspended sentence and ordered one year probation requiring weekly reporting to a probation officer during the first three months and monthly reports from the probation officer to the court.

Strating must perform 100 hours of community service work, continue his education, seek and maintain employment, and if he obtains work in Calgary as indicated to the court he must report to a probation officer there.

One reason for Strating's trouble, said McClellan, is that he is "woefully uneducated and immature.

"If you don't turn around now you have nothing to look forward to but walking into that box, or a box in another court," McClellan said.

Strating had been in custody since his arrest Aug. 9, when police found the stolen goods in a View Royal motel he shared with another man.

One of two 18-year-olds charged with attempted murder of an 83-year-old woman in connection with a break-in Sunday was denied bail in provincial court Thursday by Judge Fred Green.

Wesley James Kennedy, 604 Wilson, and Kelly Norman Lambert, 2844 Rockwell, were jointly charged with breaking and entering 553 Raynor, attempted murder of Julia Knoll and assault with intent to wound, maim or disfigure the woman, who remains in fair condition in Victoria General Hospital suffering from head injuries including numerous broken bones. Mrs. Knoll was moved out of the hospital's intensive care unit Wednesday.

Green rejected an application made on Kennedy's behalf by lawyer Gordon MacDonald in the morning and ordered Kennedy held in custody while awaiting disposition of the charges.

Richard Stewart, representing Lambert, deferred his application until the afternoon but told the court during Lambert's later appearance that his client did not wish to apply for his release at that time. He requested the matter of bail and election of trial method be remanded until next Thursday when both persons are scheduled to return to court.

Two brothers charged with possession of stolen liquor elected trial by judge without jury and were remanded to next Thursday to fix a preliminary hearing date.

Kenneth Gordon Clark, 21, and Michael Stephen Clark, 18, both of 841 North Park, were charged with possession of whisky taken during a break-in at Industrial Iron and Metal Trading Co. Ltd., 313 Tyee Road. Kenneth Gordon Clark is also charged with the breaking and entering of the premises Nov. 28.

Both were ordered released by Green on surety bail, Kenneth in the amount of $1,500 and Michael $500 following bail hearings a week earlier, but both were unable to make their bail by the time of their appearance in court this week.

Two of three drivers who pleaded guilty to driving while suspended were given fines while the third, a University of Victoria student, was given a conditional discharge and community service work.

Margaret Ann Blitch, 21, of 1366 Hillside, was fined $150 after Green noted she had been fined $350 for drinking-driving Nov. 19, when she was suspended for three months, and was caught behind the wheel nine days later.

Glenn Ernest Winkel, 21, of 336 Ker, was fined $100 while Andrew Lawhead, 19, of 1740 Newton, was given the discharge, placed on two months' probation, and ordered to do 25 hours of service work.

Fined for drinking-driving were: Murray Steven Smith, 33, of 1020 May, $550; and James Thomas Nicholson, 24, of 960 Latoria, $150.

In addition, Nicholson was placed on six months' probation and ordered to perform 50 hours of community service work.

Students to Play In Village Tonight

Tweed Curtain territory will take on a holiday flavor starting tonight.

School choirs and the Oak Bay junior-senior secondary band will entertain in the village tonight, Friday and Saturday.

Roy Tucker of the Merchants' Association said Santa and his right-hand clown will appear in the village at noon Saturday.

The association is arranging to have hot chestnusts sold each Saturday. The association will provide the chestnuts and profits will be given to the school band's fund.

Muscovite Hits Strangers For $60,000

MOSCOW (AP) — A young Muscovite has been sentenced to nine years in prison for swindling strangers of $60,000.

Pravda, the Communist Party newspaper, says Viktor Mosny, a young man with an "optimistic smile," talked strangers into loaning him money against an inheritance he claimed was due him from his grandmother in Kaluga, 160 kilometres to the south. He said he needed cash to buy a car and would repay the loan at the end of the month with interest.

No Pedigree, But Tasty

I have tried to locate in several dozen Italian cookbooks in various libraries a recipe for a clam dish by the name of clams Posillipo. Is this a well-known dish?

A. It is a well-known dish in North America but I doubt that you will find clams Posillipo in any classic or traditional, authentic Italian cookbook. Posillipo is a cape near Naples in the Gulf of Naples. Basically, the clams Posillipo on which I have dined consists simply of very small steamed clams served in their natural sauce to which has been added a marinara sauce containing an abundance of garlic and parsley. Classic or not, it can be an excellent dish, particularly if the clams are small enough and not overcooked.

Q. I happen to be very fond of maatjes herring but cannot find a source for the name. Do you know?

A. Maatjes or matjes herring is a spiced, slightly reddish and delicately sweet pickled herring. It is one of the finest herring for a smorgasbord. I am told that the word maatjes or matjes means "virgin" in Dutch and the name is applied to herring because only young female herrings are used in its preparation.

Q. Have you ever heard of a dish called love-in-disguise?

A. Yes, and although I have never sampled it, it sounds interesting. It is of English origin and consists of pork or lamb hearts poached in water until tender. The hearts are then wrapped in sausage meat or seasoned ground pork and breaded. The dish is then baked and served with a sauce thickened with cornstarch.

Q. What is the origin of the name cheesecloth?

A. Before the advent of plastic wrap and other airproof food coverings, cheesecloth, although notably porous, was used to wrap cheese before storage. At times, the cheesecloth was dampened with a spirit such as port wine (as in the case of Stilton cheese) and this gave flavor to the cheese and, perhaps, gave it a longer shelf life. Cheesecloth is generally made of a loosely woven cotton gauze and the mesh or size of the weaving varies from quality to quality. For generations, cheesecloth also served a valuable purpose in fashioning a "sack" for the preparation of homemade cottage cheese. To prepare this cheese, generally on farms where milk was readily available, the milk was allowed to sour through standing at room temperature. It then separated into curds and whey. This mixture was drained into the cheesecloth, the ends of the cloth were tied with string and the bag was allowed to stand until the whey was drained and the curds became more or less firm.

High Risk in Children?

FOOD & nutrition

NEW YORK (AP) — If yours is a family with a hig risk of cardiovascular disease, get your children to a doctor to see if they have excessive levels of fat in their blood.

If they do, the American Heart Association recommends, they should be placed on a corrective diet.

A high-risk family is defined as one in which either or both parents have excessive fat levels, or have high blood pressure or a family history of heart attack or stroke or peripheral vascular disease before age 50.

Excessive levels of the fats known as cholesterol or tryglyceride is a condition called hyperlipidemia and is related to artherosclerosis, the disease in which arteries become clogged with fatty deposits.

"Although the evidence does not yet support the recommendation that cholesterol and saturated fat should be reduced in the diet of all children," the AHA says, "the public should be advised that such modificatio appears safe and very likely to be beneficial" in cutting the risk of artherosclerosis when the child grows up.

There is growing evidence that a diet low in saturated fats and high in polyunsaturated fats such as corn oil lowers the amount of low-density lipoprotein, LDL, which appears dangerous because it seems to carry cholesterol into blood vessel walls. At the same time such a diet increases the amount of high density lipoprotein, HDL, which seems to protect against cardiovascular damage.

Dr. Charles Glueck of University of Cincinnati's school of medicine urges routine screening of children if there is a family history of diabetes, gout, obesity or high blood cholesterol levels, high blood pressure, and heart disease.

EYES KEEP MOVING

NEW YORK (AP) — The healthy human eye is never really still, even when staring at an object as carefully as possible, says the Eye Research Institute of the Retina Foundation. The nerve cells of the eye and brain require constant movement of the image on the retina in order to produce visual perception.

Drug abuse has existed in various forms throughout history. The difference is that nowadays dangerous drugs are easily available and are abused by so many young people.

The 52-page booklet A Parents Guide To Drug Abuse answers some questions most frequently asked by parents.

It first explors various reasons for drug abuse and discusses some of the consequences. One possible consequence of frequent use of opiates and barbiturates is physical dependence. This may turn an individual into a slave of the drug. Furthermore, certain hallucinogenic drugs, such as LSD, can lead to delusions of great power and cause faulty perception of time, space and gravity which may lead to serious injury or death.

The booklet also describes specific drugs and their effects as well as some signs of drug abuse. Unfortunately, there is no foolproof way to recognize drug abuse. A sudden change in mood or behavior may be an indication of drug abuse; so may be persistent daydreaming and evasiveness about friends, who they are and what they do.

Physical signs may include muddled speech, poor muscular co-ordination, a sudden increase or loss of appetite and glassy eyes. A stronger indication is hypodermic needles and syringes and needle marks on arms, legs or the back of hands.

The booklet is available from Non-Medical Use of Drugs Directorate, Health and Welfare Canada, Ottawa, Ont. K1A 1B6.

This Doesn't Take Forever

By PIERRE FRANEY
New York Times

There is a common belief that most of the traditional and classic dishes of French cooking require hours and days of preparation to bring about their ultimate goodness, but this is, in hundreds of cases, totally fallacious. One of the great and best known dishes in French culture (actually it is a regional specialty of the Anjou region) is a fricassee of chicken or veal.

Basically a fricassee consists of cooking chicken or veal in butter while browning it very lightly, if at all. A touch of onion and mushrooms are cooked with the chicken before the addition of cream. When recently prepared in my kitchen, a few sprigs of fresh tarragon were added to give it a different turn of flavor and it is an excellent combination. A touch of dried tarragon could be effectively substituted for the fresh herb.

The word fricasser, incidentally, has a few interesting uses in the French language. You can fricasser a fortune, which is to say, squander it. Copious kissing is sometimes referred to as a "fricassee de museaux" or fricassee of cheeks. And a scandalous, poorly written article or pot-boiler is called a fricassee.

In the kitchen, the total cooking time for a well-made fricassee of chicken for a party of four is less than half an hour. And the use of the word "party" is deliberate. This is the sort of dish you could serve with pleasure to a special and friendly gathering.

A simple dish of rice and a salad would serve well with this meal. If, however, you wanted to serve a platter of rice with a bit of difference, you might offer your guests a rice that is both flavored and colored with a small spoonful of tumeric.

To plan such a menu, it would be best to start the preparation with the cooking of the chicken. When it is put on for its final simmering, you should start the rice. Incidentally, if the fricassee is not served the moment it is ready, little will be lost if it is set aside briefly and reheated.

FRICASSEE DE POULET A L'ESTRAGON
(Fricassee of chicken with tarragon)

1 3½-pound chicken, cut into serving pieces
Salt and freshly ground pepper to taste
3 tablespoons butter
2 tablespoons flour
⅓ cup finely chopped onion
1 small clove garlic, finely minced
5 sprigs fresh tarragon with leaves and stems, or use one tablespoon dried
1 carrot, scraped, quartered and cut into one-inch lengths
¼ pound mushrooms, rinsed and drained
1½ cups water
1 cup heavy cream
1 tablespoon finely chopped fresh tarragon or one teaspoon dried

1. Sprinkle the chicken with salt and pepper.
2. Heat the butter in a heavy skillet large enough to hold the chicken in one layer. Cook the chicken pieces, turning occasionally, without browning. After about five minutes, add the chopped onions, garlic and t arragon sprigs.
3. Sprinkle with flour, stirring to distribute the flour evenly. Add the water. Cover and cook about 15 to 20 minutes.
4. Remove the chicken pieces to a serving dish and keep warm. Remove the tarragon sprigs if they are used. Let the sauce cook down, stirring often, about five minutes.
5. Add the cream, salt and pepper to taste. Simmer about three minutes. Stir in the chopped parragon and serve with rice.

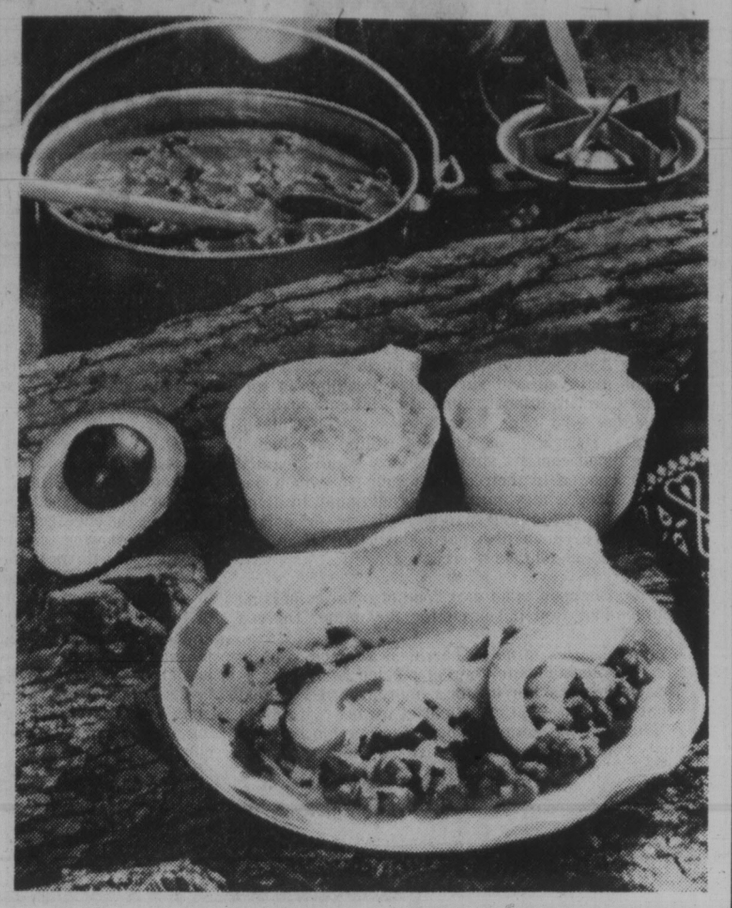
Yield: Four servings.

TUMERIC RICE

2 tablespoons butter.
2 tablespoons finely minced onion
1 small clove garlic, finely minced
1 cup rice
1 tablespoon powdered tumeric
1½ cups chicken broth
1 bay leaf

1. Melt half the butter in a saucepan and add the onion and garlic. Cook until wilted and add the rice and tumeric. Stir to coat.
2. Add the broth and bay leaf. Cover and bring to the boil. Cook exactly 17 minutes. Uncover and stir in the remaining tablespoon of butter.

Yield: Four servings.



HOW TO HANDLE HIKERS' HUNGER

You've just spent what seems like an eternity clambering up a rocky path. You reach the top, take a deep breath of crisp, clean air and suddenly realize you're hungrier than you've ever been before.

To handle your backpacker's hunger, the next time you climb that mountain just pack along some of nature's bounty, avocados.

The avocado is a perfect backpacker's food: it is easy to prepare, it stores well and is nutritious. Stow a few in your backpack when they're rock hard and in three to five days they will soften to the point of eating goodness.

When avocado gives to the touch like a soft pear, simply cut around the avocado lengthwise.

Twist the halves to separate and remove the pit by carefully giving it a sharp whack and a twist with the knife. Peel the avocado while holding it cut side down in one hand.

Here is a super-easy dinner idea combining freeze-dried foods with the freshness of the avocado. It's an easy-to-prepare chili dinner rolled-up in a flour tortilla.

BACKPACKER'S CHILI ROLL—UPS

1 6-oz. package freeze-dried compressed Chili with Beans
2 tablespoons dehydrated onion flakes
8 8-inch flour tortillas
2 soft avocados, peeled, seeded and sliced
Cheddar cheese, grated

Reconstitute chili with boiled water according to package directions. Hydrate onion with ¼ cup cold water; et stand until ready. Spoon chili into open flour tortillas; top each portion with avocado slices, cheese and onion.

Roll burrito style (roll half-way, tuck in ends, complete rolling.) Eat with hands.

Makes 8 roll-ups for 4 hungry backpackers.

CHILI ROLL—UPS FOR CAMPERS

1 10-oz. can chili with beans
8 8-inch flour tortillas
2 ripe avocados, peeled, seeded and sliced
Cheddar cheese, grated
Onion, peeled and chopped

Heat chili over open campfire or camper's stove. Spoon into open flour tortillas. Top each portion with avocado slices, cheese and onion. Roll burrito style (roll half-way, tuck in ends and complete rolling.) Eat with hands.

Makes 8 roll-ups for 4 campers.

DON'T YOU BELIEVE IT

VANCOUVER (CP) — That women are temperamentally less suited than men for management jobs is just an old wives'—or husbands'—tale, says Stanley Shapiro, former dean of McGill University's management faculty. Shapiro says his comment is based on a survey done of master-of-business-administration students in Montreal.

'SET THEM STRAIGHT'

NORTH VANCOUVER (CP) — RCMP are conducting a program in city schools aimed at eliminating the notion that the police are out to get students. Constable Randy Herman says it's a life education program with students and clears up many misconceptions among young people about the law and what policemen actually do while on duty.

'Tis the Season To Be Careful . . .

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Christmas, with its numerous celebrations, is the season to be careful about the food we eat, says the chief medical officer for the Middlesex-London district health unit.

Dr. Doug Hutchison has warned that the Christmas spirit, which prompts home and office parties in large number, will cause many people to suffer from food poisoning caused by improperly cooked, served, stored or handled food.

"Leading up to Christmas, there are a tremendous number of office parties in extremely bizarre locations and sometimes you will find groups who will cater which are not professional carterers but will provide the food anyway," Dr. Hutchison said.

"People do some pretty silly things at Christmas and, if they don't handle it right, there can be sickness, in varying degrees."

The two most common forms of food poisoning are salmonella and staphylococcus aureus.

Salmonella, a bacteria common to poultry, is caused by the improper handling and serving of food and can cause intestinal infections with diarrhea, headaches and fever.

Staphylococcus aureus, an organism found in human eyes, hands and throats, also is transmitted when food is not handled properly.

The substance, which grows and multiples in creamy foods such as potato salad and sauces, can cause nausea and diarrhea.

Dr. Hutchison said the only way to counter the two poisons, which thrive at room temperatures, is to cook food properly and serve it the same way.

Many Causes of Patches

your health

By L. L. Coleman, MD

I have white patches on the inside of my mouth. Could this be cancerous? What causes it? — Mr. B.A.

Dear Mr. A.:

The condition you describe is known as "leukoplakia." Dentists and physicians see many cases of this condition, especially in men who are pipe smokers. The heat of the smoke is an important contributing factor. Since smoking has increased so materially among women, leukoplakia is also on the increase, resulting even from cigarette smoking.

Hot fluids can also injure the lining of the mouth and the inner lining of the cheek. Poor dental hygiene is another contributing factor.

Some people have a tendency to nervously bite on the lining of their mouths, and after a period of time, develop these deposits. Nutritional and hormone deficiencies may also be responsible. Most of these white patches are non-malignant. Nevertheless, doctors keep them under supervision at regular intervals in order to be sure that they continue to remain benign. In some instances, a small piece of tissue is taken out of the area and sent to the laboratory, to be certain that there are no cancer cells mixed in with the leukoplakia.

The greatest contribution that can be made by the doctor and the dentist is to help the patient to eradicate the basic cause for these leukoplakia deposits.

When I get into a crowded room, or when I'm sitting around with friends, I suddenly begin to yawn. Everyone thinks it's because I'm bored or sleepy, but it happens even when I'm having fun. It can be so embarrassing. Can anything be done about this? — Miss H.D.

DEAR MISS D.:

Yawning and boredom have wrongly been identified with each other. There are other factors that may be responsible for the desire on the part of the body to get more oxygen into the lungs. Fatigue, certain drugs, inadequate sleep or a smoke-filled room can produce a yawn.

Everyone has had the experience of seeing another person yawn and, uncontrollably, doing the same thing. One would think that yawning is actually contagious, which, in a strange way it is. Let us say that yawning is highly "suggestible."

Sighing, like yawning, is a way of getting more air and oxygen into the lungs. Only rarely is yawning a symptom of a more complicated underlying problem. Some circulatory and respiratory problems, and even neurological disorders, may be responsible for an inordinate amount of yawning. You might feel better if you ruled out these possibilities.

HAMBURGER BAKE

1 medium onion
1 lb. ground beef
1 tsp. salt and dash of pep per
1 cup cooked vegetables (leftover or cooked, frozen vegetables)
¼ cup ketchup
1 can tomato or mushroom soup
1½ cup mashed potatoes (leftover potatoes or instant)
½ cup grated cheddar cheese

Preheat oven to 350°. Brown ground beef and onion and drain any fat. Lightly mix all ingredients together (cooked vegetables, ketchup, soup, salt and pepper.) Pour into a casserole dish. Put tomatoes on top of meat mixture. Sprinkle with grated cheese.

Russian Casserole

3 lbs. short ribs cut in 2" pieces.
2 tablespoons oil
3 medium onions, sliced
4 medium beets, peeled and cut in 2"x½" pieces
4 cups water
1 5-oz. can tomato paste
2 teaspoons salt
¼ teaspoon pepper
½ teaspoon caraway seeds
1 cup celery, sliced
2 cups carrots, sliced
½ cup parsnip, sliced
1 small head of cabbage cut in 6 wedges.
1 cup grated raw beets
1 tablespoon vinegar
1 teaspoon sugar
Sour cream

Brown ribs in oil Saute onions until soft. Place ribs, onions, beets, water, tomato paste, salt, pepper and caraway seeds in a 3-quart casserole. Cover and simmer for 2½ hours. Add remaining ingredients except sour cream, pushing vegetables under the liquid to color. Cover and continue cooking until vegetables and meat are tender, about 1 hour.

Little PCB Risk in Nursing

Food for Thought

By DR. JEAN MAYER and DR. JOHANNA DWYER

Q: I have a friend who claims that the amount of PCBs in human milk nowadays may mean that we are doing our babies more harm than good by breast-feeding. Is that true?

A. While PCBs — short for polychlorinated biphenyls — are now recognized as undesirable environmental contaminants and considerable effort is being directed toward minimizing the amount that finds its way into our food supply, there is no reason at the moment to think that the amount generally found in human milk is harmful to the nursing infant.

In a recent statement on PCBs in breast milk, the Committee on Environmental Hazards of the American Academy of Pediatrics said PCBs are of concern only to women who have worked with the chemical or who eat extra large amounts of sports fish from PCB-contaminated waters. (In the past, many foods have been sources of contamination, but more recently contaminated game fish has been the main food involved.) Unless a woman has a history of exposure to PCBs, the academy sees no reason not to breast-feed.

If there is a well-documented history of exposure, PCB levels in breast milk can be measured in about three weeks. As a result, the committee recommends that in the rare instance a high PCB level is found, the mother should contact the health department for advice.

Q: A friend of mine told me recently that she was under the impression that trichinosis is no longer a public health problem and, therefore, it is not necessary to cook pork to a well-done stage. Is that true?

A: No. While it is true that the incidence of trichinosis has dropped dramatically in the past 40 years, a study of over 8,000 autopsy specimens conducted by the National Institutes of Health Survey between the years 1966 and 1970 has shown that the infection rate is still nearly 12 per cent. But there has been a marked drop in the severity of the trichinella infections found. Because many of the infections are so mild, symptoms are often misdiagnosed or the disease goes undetected.

One reason for the decline in the incidence of trichinosis is that federal, provincial and local laws now prohibit the use of raw garbage as feed for pigs. Another is that in many homes pork is frozen and trichina eggs are killed when held at —5 degrees Fahrenheit for 20 to 30 days.

The link between pork and trichinosis is, of course, well-established. What may be less well-known is that in recent years trichinosis has frequently been traced to hamburger. In some cases the beef had been ground in the same machine used to grind pork.

Besides cooking pork and pork products to a temperature of 140 degrees Fahrenheit, it is just as important to thoroughly cook all other ground meat.

If you do choose to depend on freezing as a safeguard against trichinosis, you must be absolutely sure that the meat has been held at a low enough temperature for a long period of time.

That Mysterious Backache May Stem from Sacroiliac

By JANE E. BRODY
New York Times

Many women suffering from back aches for which no physical cause can be found may actually have a treatable inflammation of the sacroiliac joint.

Using a scanning technique that was originally devised to examine people for cancer in the bones, Canadian researchers have found such joint inflammation in two-fifths of 50 female patients who went to the doctor because of bothersome low back pain. In 13 of the 50 women, ordinary back x-rays showed no sign of a physical cause for the pain.

One of the researchers, Dr. Paul Davis of the University of Alberta in Edmonton, explained that for joint and bone disease to show up on a regular x-ray, it has to be either quite severe or of long duration. In the meantime, many victims of chronic low back pain are told that the doctor can find "nothing physically wrong" or that the problem may be psychologically based.

The new technique can "define a group of patients who actually have organic disease, proving that we're not dealing with psychogenic backache or people who are exaggerating their problem because they are seeking compensation for an injury," Dr. David remarked.

Dr. David said that identifying this cause is especially important because the patients with sacroiliac inflammation respond very well to treatment with anti inflammatory drugs, in addition to the physiotherapy and posture exercises that are the hallmarks of treatment for low back pain.

He said that even without a firm diagnosis of sacroiliac inflammation, some patients are currently given such drugs on the basis of their symptoms. They may describe the pain and stiffness as being especially bad in the early morning or after sitting or lying still for a while. The discomfort usually improves after the patient moves about, and may completely disappear in the afternoon.

Now, however, Dr. Davis and a radiologist colleague, Dr. B.C. Lentle, report in the Sept. 2 issue of the medical journal, The Lancet, treatment can be based on a proper diagnosis, rather than on guesswork, if the scanning technique is used.

The method involves injection into a vein of a radioactive substance that is readily taken up by bone that is "overacting." About three hours later, a special x-ray is taken of the sacroiliac area at either side of the base of the spine. "Hot spots" on the x-ray indicate areas of bony reaction.

Dr. Lentil compared the bone scans of the women with back pains with similar scans taken of other women who did not have this complaint. Using these studies, he was able to determine quantitatively the degree of sacroiliac inflammation in some of the back patients. Dr. Davis said the bone scan did not involve any irradiation than that from routine pelvic x-ray.

The sacroiliac joint is the meeting of two major bones of the pelvis, the sacrum and the ilium, through which the weight of the body is borne. This joint must withstand a great deal of stress, even more than the knee or hip joints. Women seem to be much more prone than men to developing sacroiliac problems, but the reason for this and the reasons why some women develop the problem and others don't is not known. Dr. Davis said he is currently seeking explanations among the group of women shown by bone scan to have sacroiliac problems and those who do not have this disorder.

Bone scans are also being used by Dr. Lentle and others to detect an important and treatable cause of back pain in men. This is an arthritic condition known as ankylosing spondilitis. This disorder often does not show up on a rrgular x-ray until it is quite advanced. But, Dr. Davis said, if diagnosed early, it responds well to antiflammatory drug treatment and physiotherapy, allowing victims to lead normal, active lives. If the diagnosis is missed, however, the spine can become fused by the disease and permanent disability results.

dear abby

DEAR ABBY: I guess what I'm about to ask you has been asked before, but I'm a guy who needs the answer awful bad because for once in my 24 years of life I know what it's like to be lonely. It's a bad feeling. Sometimes it's so bad I could cry. But I don't know how.

I don't drink. I don't smoke. I use very few cuss words, if any. I am very considerate toward women (maybe overly so). I'm a college student of average intelligence. I'm a good dresser, not bad-looking and I'm not cheap. But for some reason, I can't get a woman interested in me.

Is there such a thing as being too nice? Here's an example of my courtship pattern: I see a girl I like and I'll ask her name and give her mine. Then we exchange phone numbers. Then I arrange for a date. I take her home and kiss her goodnight only if she's willing. I never push myself on a woman.

For some reason, most women don't seem interested in seeing me again. I wonder why? Am I too old-fashioned? Should I jump all over them on the first or second date? Please help me.

LONESOME

DEAR LONESOME: No one can be "too nice." There's nothing wrong with your pattern of courtship as you describe it, but in order for a girl to become interested in you, the chemistry between you must be mutually attractive. Don't change your nice-guy style. Get involved in wholesome activities and meet more people. Decent people attract decent people.

DEAR ABBY: I have a friend who always brings something she has cooked or baked whenever I invite her to dinner. Abby, she is a darling person, but she's possibly the world's worst cook!

When she brings something I have to serve it, don't I? The last time she brought a cake. It was underdone and lumpy with a blue frosting which looked terrible and tasted worse.

I was embarrassed watching the faces of my other guests as they tried to eat it.

She's coming again on Saturday, and I told her not to bring anything. I've told her that before, but she always "surprises" me with something. My husband says I am an idiot for serving her failures, but I'd like your opinion.

IRKED HOSTESS

DEAR IRKED: Your husband is right. Call her and tell her that one of the joys of entertaining is in preparing everything yourself, so please don't bring anything!

And if she "surprises" you with something, surprise HER, and don't serve it.

More Than Just a Leg Show

Skirt Design Still the Key

By BERNADINE MORRIS
New York Times'

Legs are, apparently, the newest show in town. In the throes of the current retro mood in fashion, some New York designers are reliving the time when the sight of a pretty ankle drove strong men wild.

Of course, there's more than an ankle revealed these days. Much more.

Skirts no longer graze the ground. Many of them barely graze the knee. So when the leg show begins, it begins much higher than the ankle.

Many of the skirts are so narrow that slits are indeed necessary to permit the wearer to take a healthy stride. That's the practical reason for the leg show. The more discreet slits are placed at the sides, but occasionally the skirt is parted at the front or at the back. Somehow the latter is most suggestive.

Another practical reason for the revelation of legs is the prevalence of the wrap skirt. Now, when there is plenty of fullness and ample overlays of fabric, not too much leg is uncovered by this type of skirt. However, when the wrapped skirt is quite narrow, it tends to spring apart at the slightest movement. Depending on how the skirt is constructed, openings can occur front, back or at the sides.

As it is with anything else, the flash of legs is appealing when it is done in moderation. But when it becomes more prominent than the outfit that is worn, when the dress itself recedes and all you see is a vast expanse of panty hose, vulgarity takes over. This happens a lot in the spring collections.

In many presentations what was elicited was a leer, not a smile.

As mannequins, getting into the spirit of the clothes, swung their hips and their shoulders, some of their colleagues winced.

"I was embarrassed by some of the goings-on in some of the shows I was in," a popular model said afterward. "I like to think of modelling as a respectable profession."

Not that the sight of a length of leg is necessarily horrifying. But it's been some 20 years since Marilyn Monroe electrified her fans by being photographed with her skirts blowing up. And the miniskirt, which made no secret of knees and even thighs, had a long run in fashion.

It's simply that people have grown up and the fact that it shows off the legs is not excuse enough for a dress or skirt to succeed. It has to have something else going for it in design terms. A flattering decolletage, for example, or a graceful cut.

Nobody denies that there is something flirty about an unexpected view of legs. Men, innured to the sight of bikinis or less on the beach will still turn around and stare appreciatively at a pair of legs.

It is quite possible that designers have misread the mood of their customers.

SCOTT'S WORLD

The Selling of A Superstar

By VERNON SCOTT
United Press International

HOLLYWOOD — Can a Hollywood movie studio create a superstar with a million dollar hype and a multi-million dollar movie?

Paramount Studios and producer Dino De Laurentiis are doing their damnedest to do just that with a slender, bespectacled 22-year-old Georgian who plays the title role in King of the Gypsies.

The object of the hard sell is Eric Roberts, a quiet, scholarly looking fellow who speaks with a stammer.

In a lineup of prospective stars chosen at random from a 100 young men yanked off the streets, Eric would almost certainly be voted least likely.

But then the same might have been said for Dustin Hoffman or Al Pacino.

Paramount has rented 1,300 billboards across the country and taken ads in many of the nation's newspapers heralding Eric's debut.

He is making appearances on TV and radio talk shows.

His portrait as a tough gypsy kid, holding an automatic weapon, has been plastered in the Hollywood trade papers. The photographs only faintly resemble the young man in person.

Eric arrived in Hollywood this week on the last leg of a national promotion campaign and was ensconsed in a Bel Air Hotel suite to talk about himself and the movie which will be released Christmas week.

He is loath to discuss his personal life. He is modest and serious about himself and his craft. He's been acting since he was 7.

"I'm a commodity and the studio is trying to sell me," the young man said.

"My grandfather once told me the higher up the pole you go the more your ass shows. And I'm not the sort of guy who likes that kind of exposure."

SOLUTIONS FRIDAY

YOUR HOROSCOPE

Astrological Forecast for Friday, December 8
By SYDNEY OMARR

ARIES (March 21-April 19): There is resurgence of confidence. You make marvelous contacts, have dealings with dynamic, creative people and meet someone who stimulates your creative juices. Leo, Aquarius figure prominently. Give full play to pioneering concepts, originality.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Aura of mystery, glamour works in your favor. Aquarius figures prominently — so does the number 11. Closed door meeting may be on agenda. You will have opportunity to present plan for distribution. You might have much to do with a food product.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Emphasis on making inquiries, expressing desires, entertaining friends, relatives, showing that you have sense of humor — and can forgive and forget. Another Gemini — and a Sagittarian — could play key roles.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Spotlight on career, authorities, civic duties, prestige. Utilize logic, read between the lines, be familiar with basic material. Individual who is unorthodox may frighten you at first, but seems destined to become an ally.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Imprint style; create, travel, write, express, bridge age, language, distance barriers. Gemini, Virgo, Sagittarius persons figure in scenario. Restrictions to progress are removed. The number 5 figures prominently. Yes, the change of tactics will serve your best purposes.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept.22): Interest in occult could be spurred. Important questions are answered as you peel away layers of superficiality. Family member agrees to remodeling, a "face change" at home. Be a gracious winner!

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Emphasis on determining who is an ally, who represents opposition. Pisces, Virgo individuals figure in scenario. See people in realistic light. Define terms, check quotations, maintain balance and proper perspective.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov.21): Accent on getting job done — your own way. Refuse to be cajoled or intimidated. Maintain steady pace, maintain sense of direction. Capricorn, Cancer — and the number 8 — figure prominently. Older individual wants to be of aid and will prove it.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Accent on significant changes, speculative ventures. Element of gamble, chance, excitement, discovery is present. Member of opposite sex has some definite views — and will express them in forceful manner.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): New hope, optimism replaces skepticism. Your faith is renewed. Older individual informs you of property and other rights. You could wake up rich! Leo, Scorpio, Aquarius individuals figure in exciting scenario.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Relatives play key roles, more so than usual. Hunch, intuition pays dividends. Your instincts are on target. Accent on short journeys, writing, inquiries, finding answers. Another Aquarian is in picture.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Emphasis on locating lost articles, making payments and collecting debts. Diversify — display product in versatile manner. Gemini, Sagittarius persons figure prominently — and so does the number 3. You get favorable response to recent inquiry, request.

IF DECEMBER 8 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you have uncanny knack for convincing others, for winning them to your point of view. You are combination of persuasiveness and power. You can utilize creative ability to set long-range policy — or you can display righteous indignation to get points across. Cancer, Capricorn persons play key roles in you life.

Homosexuality No Cause To Dismiss Soldier: Court

Washington Post

WASHINGTON — The U.S. Court of Appeals here told the Pentagon Wednesday it cannot discharge homosexuals from the military without offering specific reasons in addition to their homosexuality.

The appellate court, noting that some homosexuals are allowed to remain in the military, overturned a lower court ruling upholding the discharges of Air Force Tech. Sgt. Leonard P. Matlovich and Navy Ensign Vernon E. Berg III, two homosexual rights activists.

The military may be able to justify the discharges, the Court said, but neither man was given any "reasoned explanation . . . which is intelligible to this court or permits any meaningful judicial review."

The unanimous decision throws the controversial issue of homosexuals serving in the armed forces back to the Defense Department, which only this year changed a long-standing policy so that homosexuals kicked out of the service with less-than-honorable dismissals could apply for honorable discharges.

Neither the Air Force nor Navy had any immediate comment on the ruling, but both Matlovich, 36, and Berg, 27, said they were delighted with the decision. Both men are seeking reinstatement in the service and back pay for the years since their dismissals.

Matlovich, who lives in San Francisco, is seeking appointment to the city's Board of Supervisors to replace Harvey Milk the homosexual rights activist who was slain last week. The former serviceman said that "like a dictatorship, the Air Force did what it wanted" in cases involving homosexuals. "Now they have to tell homosexuals and the Americn public their reason."

Berg, a Naval Academy graduate who now is working on a master's degree at Pratt Institute in Brooklyn, said that "the military has never been confronted about who they keep" in the armed forces. "I've always maintained that all the services can discharge individuals whose sexual acts interfere with their job performances or who have committed some sexual crime.

"But they should not have the right to discharge someone on the mere existence of a homosexual past," Berg said.

Under both Air Force and Navy policies, homosexuals, when their sexual preferences are known, generally are dismissed from the services. But that policy is discretionary.

"What disturbes us," the court said in the Matlovich case, "is that it is impossible to tell on what grounds the service refused to make an exception or how it distinguished this case from the ones in which homosexuals have been retained.

Both Air Force and Navy spokesmen said Wednesday they did not know how many homosexuals have been kept in their services after the service member's homosexuality became known.

The court decision, written by Court of Claims Judge Oscar H. Davis and concurred in by chief appeals Judge J. Skelly Wright and Judge Spottswood W. Robinson III, noted the Air Force had acknowledged that Matlovich had an "outstanding" service record.

SCUBA DIVE CHILLY

BLACKSBURG, Va. (UPI) — Braving sub-zero temperatures, six researchers from Virginia Tech have become the first persons to scuba dive into a polar lake in Antarctica.

Dr. Bruce Parker, a co-ordinator of the Antarctic expedition, said Wednesday members of the Virginia Tech team, composed of six men and three women, made history with the dive into one of the numerous lakes that dot the Antarctic landscape.

Parker said it was the first time anyone had ever attempted to swim in the lakes, which are covered year-round with thick ice.

The lakes lie on the outer edges of Antarctica. Many other researchers have explored them by cutting through the top layer of ice, which is generally 16 to 18 feet thick, and drawing samples of the plant life from the water, Parker said.

Parker said four men and two women members of the team, in special thermal scuba suits, entered the water after cutting through the ice with chain saws.

"Because our divers were able to go underneath the lakes; they discovered all sorts of interesting things that had never been seen before," Parker said.

"The Tech team has not discovered any new species as far as I know," Parker said.

Shell Oil Eases Up Rationing

HOUSTON (AP) — One week after it announced a gasoline-rationing program, the Shell Oil Co. says it is increasing supplies to dealers and other customers.

Shell, citing increased demand and maintenance shutdowns at two refineries, said on Nov. 30 that it would cut deliveries to its customers to 75 per cent of what they had been receiving.

R. E. Hall, oil products general manager, said Wednesday that hard figures, based on one week of experience, enabled Shell to raise the allocations to 85 per cent.

The company had said it would have about 740 million gallons of gasoline to sell during December and that this had to be rationed.

BURN WOOD . . . SAVE MONEY . . .

The Stove Shop presents

The wood burner that can save you hundreds of dollars in fuel.

a look inside

Operation of the Johnson Energy Converter is simplicity itself. After starting the fire, and loading the converter with the desired quantity of wood, the draft is adjusted so as to produce a slow burning fire.

As the fire burns, the inner fire-box heats up. This heats the air in the 2" air chamber between the fire box and the outer cabinet. When this air temperature reaches 120°F the thermostat activates the 265 cfm blower. When the blower goes on, the air flow opens the back-draft damper, air is circulated through the air chamber into the 7" hot air duct. When used with a forced air heating system, the 7" hot air duct is connected to the hot air plenum of the existing furnace. Used as a free standing space heater, the hot air duct is fitted with a distributing cap deflector, and the unit circulates the hot air in all directions. When blower operation lowers temperature in the air chamber to under 120°F, thermostat shuts off, and the back-draft damper closes, preventing any back-flow of hot air. As the fire heats up the air chamber, the cycle is repeated, providing an almost continuous supply of hot air.

Toymaker Denies He's Manipulating Market

CINCINNATI (UPI) — An official of the company that manufactures the hot-selling "Star Wars" toys says a report that the firm produced only a limited amount of the toys in order to keep demand high was "totally untrue."

"We have been and are continuing to produce the toys as fast as we possibly can," Dave DeMala of the Kenner Corp., headquartered in Cincinnati, said Wednesday.

"When a toy becomes hot, it's sometimes impossible to keep up with the demand. But any report that we kept production down on purpose is totally untrue . . . .

"You've got to remember that 'Star Wars' toys are the biggest sellers in the history of the toy industry and they're still skyrocketing. There's never been anything like it. It's almost like a blessing and a nightmare at the same time."

Milton Schulman, editor of Toy and Hobby World magazine, had said the shortage in "Star Wars" toys was an intentional decision by Kenner, the exclusive manufacturer of the items based on the hit movie.

Schulman said Kenner, which makes 10 different "Star Wars" toys, wanted to keep the demand for the toys high into next year by producing a limited amount of them. He noted a sequel to the movie probably won't be released until late 1979 or early 1980.

Guyana Survivors Subpoenaed

NEW YORK (AP) — Seventeen Peoples Temple followers, including two adopted sons of temple leader Jim Jones, were subpoenaed today to tell a San Francisco grand jury what they know about the slaying of U.S. Representative Leo Ryan at a jungle airstrip in Guyana.

It was the first legal action taken against any of the 44 temple members who have returned.

One of the 17, Laura Johnston, a nine-year member of the cult, told reporters that all who arrived Wednesday night had been subpoenaed to appear in U.S. District Court in San Francisco before a grand jury investigating Ryan's death.

Several other members confirmed they had received subpoenas.

One man, Paul McCann, 27, was served with papers ordering him to appear Friday in San Francisco shortly after he arrived at Kennedy International Airport.

The other 15 men and one woman were immediately whisked away by more than 80 agents of the FBI and secret service for questioning in an airport hangar.

The interviews lasted almost nine hours, ending around 4 a.m. today. Interviews with 27 survivors who returned on earlier flights had lasted about 90 minutes.

An FBI official said no arrests were made after the interviews.

Ryan and four other Americans were shot and killed on a remote airstrip near Jonestown, Guyana, after investigating reports of brutality against members of the Peoples Temple.

Jones, fearing for the survival of his group, ordered the murders of Ryan and the others and directed a murder-suicide ritual which took the lives of more than 900 cult members. About 80 temple members survived.

None of those aboard Wednesday's flight was in Jonestown when the death ritual occurred. They were 240 kilometres away at the Peoples Temple headquarters in Georgetown, capital of Guyana.

Lawyer David Zapp was brought in to represent McCann and the FBI spoke with both men at Port Authority police headquarters. During the interview, an assistant U.S. attorney served McCann with the subpoena.

McCann said he went to Jonestown 1½ years ago and was working at a sawmill in Georgetown when the deaths occurred. Seven other family members, including his wife and three young children, were unaccounted for, he said.

The latest survivors to return included Jones' adopted sons, Timothy Glen and James Jr. Both are reported to have served as security men and bodyguards for Jones.

FBI spokesman Quentin Ertel said all Peoples Temple members were being interviewed as potential witnesses to the recent events in Jonestown.

Individuals in the latest group were questioned for almost nine hours, much longer than the 90-minute interviews with survivors who arrived on earlier flights. No one was arrested.

The survivors were to spend the night at a local hotel. Their final travel plans were not known.

Smirk Cost Supervisor His Life, Paper Claims

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Former Supervisor Dan White told police he killed San Francisco Mayor George Moscone after the mayor refused to reappoint him to the Board of Supervisors and then shot Supervisor Harvey Milk because "Harvey smirked at me," the San Francisco Chronicle reported today.

The Chronicle quoted sources close to the investigation of the assassinations as saying White made the statements in a taped confession within an hour of the City Hall murders last week and before he had conferred with an attorney.

The sources told the newspaper the 32-year-old White said that on Nov. 27, he met with supporters who had drafted a petition calling for his reappointment to the board, a post White resigned Nov. 10 for financial reasons.

When White was informed that the mayor had avoided the confrontation, the ex-supervisor strapped on his .38-calibre revolver, he told investigators, but added that he did not know why.

Once inside city hall, White went to the mayor's office, where he was invited into Moscone's private inner office. There he asked to be appointed and Moscone refused. White asked why and reportedly was told "because it would be bad politics."

They talked further and Moscone poured White a drink. When White asked again to be reappointed and Moscone refused, "I shot him," the Chronicle said White confessed.

The sources said White then went out of the mayor's office into the hallway, where he saw an aide to Supervisor Milk. At that point, White said he recalled that Milk, a political opponent, had asked the city attorney "to look for a way not to reappoint White," according to the ex-supervisor's statement.

White said he walked about 100 yards through City Hall to the second-floor supervisor's office.

Distributor Capped On Trip Offer

OTTAWA — Doug Poulter of Ottawa will be on his way to the Bahamas Saturday for $1.35 and nine cents provincial tax.

It took a bit of ingenuity and a lot of cheek for him to pull it off, but he figures the trip will be worth it.

His super-budget trip comes as a result of a Chrysler dealership promotion, which offered a free Bahamas trip to anyone purchasing a Chrysler product.

The intent of the promotion was to give the $287 trip as a bonus for buying a car. But that's not the way it reads and Poulter thought he'd give it a try.

So, with a friend as witness, he went to the dealership and bought a distributor cap — value $1.35 plus tax — took his receipt and his witness to an employee and demanded his trip.

The flabbergasted employee immediately called the manager who immediately called Poulter several choice names and told him to leave.

Nothing daunted, Poulter wrote to the president of the dealership, including his witnessed proof of purchase, demanding either the trip or the cash equivalent, which he determined by polling several travel agencies.

Des Perkins, the dealership president, said he decided to give Poulter the trip "to show the public what kind of a mooch this guy is."

But he acknowledged there was nothing in the promotion to indicate the Chrysler product was in fact an automobile, adding, "I guess we got burned."

The promotion now offers the trip for purchase of a Chrysler product worth more than $1,500.

Sinatra Put In Mafia Picture

NEW YORK — A photograph of Frank Sinatra, the late Mafia chief Carlo Gambino and an underworld executioner was admitted as evidence in the trial of eight men accused of causing the financial collapse of a suburban showcase theatre.

Mob hit man Aladeno (Jimmy the Weasel) Fratianno, a government informer on the witness stand for the third day Wednesday, identified the photograph. "That's Sinatra, and that's Gambino and that's myself," he said.

The identification followed the unprecedented admission in court by the 65-year-old onetime San Francisco gangster, who has confessed to his part in 11 gangland murders, that he was a Mafia "family man."

The photo was taken at the Westchester Premier Theatre during Sinatra's appearance there in September 1976. Gambino is alleged to have loaned the Tarrytown theatre $100,000.

Sinatra has not been accused of any wrongdoing in the case. He made three appearances at the theatre 30 miles north of Times Square, the last in May 1977 when he made $800,000 for a one-week appearance.

Law enforcement officials said it was in their memory the first time anyone stood up in a federal courtroom and admitted under oath that he was a member of the Mafia.

That statement brought howls from defence lawyers, who immediately demanded a mistrial.

Presiding Judge Robert Sweet turned down the motion after a brief recess.

"You enjoyed a certain reputation in the community?" Fratianno was asked by defence lawyer Marvin Segal.

"Yes," the well-dressed, soft-spoken prosecution witness replied.

"You were held in high regard in the community?"

"As a family man," Fratianno answered.

"As a family man with children?" Segal asked, pressing the question.

"As a family man with an organization," Fratianno replied.

Another defence lawyer Robert Ellis immediately moved for a mistrial, claiming the family question was the "most ominous kind of organized crime reference."

The Italian-born witness became an informer early this year after he was accused of participating in the 1977 murders of racketeer Daniel Green in Cleveland and Frank (the Bomb) Bompensiero in San Diego.

Mystery of Gowns at Church Doors

SACRAMENTO — Over the past two weeks, priests and ministers in Sacramento have found wedding gowns at the doors of their churches, accompanied by a strange letter.

"Receiving it was one of the weirdest experiences of my life," said Rev. Deane Kennedy of St. Michael's Episcopal Church in suburban Carmichael. "It was difficult to know just what to make of it."

The accompanying letters told of the church as the bride of Jesus and were signed by someone who identified himself as "His Eminence Joseph I, O.S.B., Western hemisphere and the Pacific Islands."

That actually turned out to be Joseph Morse, 67, a Pentacostal figure in Sacramento for more than 35 years. Morse is bishop of the Western Orthodox Church, founder of the Sacramento Revival Centre and involved in a variety of other fundamentalist religious activities.

Morse said he sent out 439 of the gowns.

"I wanted to use the spirit of being so curious so they (the recipients) would recognize my next letter," Morse explained. "People respond better when they are curious."

Although the second letter, which already has been sent to some ministers, offers no clues to its origin, a planned third letter will be on Morse's church stationery.

It will invite members of the clergy to a variety of meetings Morse plans to hold in Northern California to "share with me what the Lord is showing you and how you are being led to Him in these closing hours of history."

Mother Walton Leaves Family

By JERRY BUCK
Associated Press

HOLLYWOOD — On her last day as Olivia Walton, actress Michael Learned walked into a dressing room full of flowers in the shape of a funeral wreath reading: "In loving memory of Michael Learned's career. May it rest in peace."

Miss Learned, smiling at the gag gift, said: "I'll burn it before I leave. I've got one last scene, then I'll clean out my dressing room."

After seven years as the matriarch on CBS' The Waltons, Miss Learned is bidding farewell to her TV family and millions of weekly viewers.

She will be seen for the last time this season on Jan. 18. She filmed her final scene Wednesday — appropriately in the family kitchen.

Her departure follows by only months the death of Will Geer, who played Grandpa. Ellen Corby, who plays Grandma, suffered a stroke in 1976 and appears infrequently. Richard Thomas, John-Boy, quit the show at the end of the 1975-76 season.

The excuse for Olivia Walton's absence is her confinement to a sanitarium for tuberculosis. It was a solution which permits her an occasional return if the show is renewed.

As she played out her farewell, Miss Learned occasionally brushed away a tear, but in the hurry-up world of television filming, little was said on the set.

"Each time we lose a person we lose very special qualities," said co-executive producer Earl Hamner, who based The Waltons on his family in rural Virginia.

"With Richard Thomas it was that young, inquiring, intellectual feeling. With Will Geer it was the patriarch, the link with the past, and sort of the heartbeat of the show. Without Michael — which we hope is only temporary — we lose the mother figure."

Ralph Waite, contemplating the loss of his screen wife, said: "It's strange with Will gone, and now Michael. I spent more time with Michael than in my own marriage. I've never before had the experience of working with an actress for seven years. She's like family."

Miss Learned plans to consider several movie and theatre offers.

"I really don't care what the roles are, as long as it's something I can get up each morning and look forward to," she said. "All this stuff about breaking the Waltons image — a good part is a good part.

"It would be nice to have a role without putting on an apron. But I don't know if I'd want to go into makeup for three hours every day to look glamorous.

"In the 'Waltons,' I just pull my hair back and put on a baggy old dress. I don't mean to sound flip, because I really have grown to love the character. She's a woman of courage and dignity."

Bogus Albums Seized

NEW YORK (AP) — FBI agents raided 19 sites in five states Wednesday and carted away truckloads of equipment allegedly used to make counterfeit eight-track tapes, plus copies of such popular hit albums as Grease and Saturday Night Fever officials said.

The raids, staged in Connecticut, Georgia, New York, New Jersey and North Carolina, constituted one of the largest actions against the $350-million illicit industry ever taken by the U.S. government, officials said.

No arrests were made. Thomas Puccio, head of the Organized Crime Strike Force, said he plans to present evidence to a grand jury scheduled to convene in January.

Puccio said 30 trucks were used to carry away contraband consisting of duplicators, mastering machines, tape winders, wrappers, labellers, photo equipment and what were described as counterfeit tapes of hit albums.

The raids were staged against alleged manufacturers and distributors of the recordings and against those described as producers of the album covers and labels for counterfeit tapes.

Possible violations of the law include violations of copyright and interstate shipping statutes, Puccio said.

The Lord is my Shepherd
I shall not want
He maketh me to lie down in green pastures
He leadeth me beside the still waters
He restoreth my soul
He leadeth me in the path of righteousness for his name sake
Yea though I walk through the valley of the shadow of death
I will fear no evil
For thou art with me, thy rod and thy staff they comfort me
Thou preparest a table before me in the presence of mine enemies
Thou anointest my head with oil
My cup runneth over
Surely goodness and mercy shall follow me all the days of my life and I will dwell in the House of the Lord forever.

Now's Time to Service Gas-Propelled Machine

GARDENING
jack beastall

In home gardens where all the weeding, planting, digging, cutting back of perennials, leaf gathering and compost-making has been completed, it is time to do a few undercover jobs.

As soon as one's gasoline-propelled machine has finished its work for the season, the engine should be serviced in accordance with the instructions in the owner's service manual before it goes into storage.

If it is not convenient at the moment to do a complete job, at least drain the gas tank and run the engine to consume the fuel in the carburetor and lines.

This is a simple way of preventing the formation of gum deposits in the tiny jets and passages and avoid a lot of trouble, and sometimes considerable expense, when the machine is needed in a hurry the following spring.

It is always wise to remove the head, scrape off the carbon deposit and check the valve seating surfaces. If the seats or valves are pitted and you have the equipment, a valve grind would be worthwhile.

At the same time, clean the valve springs and guides and remove deposit from the valve chamber.

Whether or not you need to go this far will depend on when the engine was last serviced. If it is considered unnecessary, remove the spark plug and pour in just enough regular engine oil to cover the piston head and the valves. The oil will keep the piston rings and the valve guides lubricated and prevent sticking.

When draining the fuel tank, don't forget to drain the old oil from the crankcase. If an appreciable amount of sediment is noticed, flush the crankcase with a little kerosene, drain well, and refill with fresh engine oil.

Turn the engine several times by hand to coat all bearing surfaces and the cylinder bore with oil.

Clean and replace the spark plug, screwing it in loosely by hand, and leave the cable disconnected as a reminder to tighten the plug next spring.

Most cylinder heads today are made of aluminum alloy and the threads strip easily if spark plugs are forced in tightly as we did on the older cast iron heads.

For a good seal on a spark plug, replace the plug gasket frequently and tighten the plug just enough to keep it from working loose.

Disconnect the throttle cable and pour a little engine oil into the armor until it runs out the other end, and put a spot of oil on the moving parts of the speed control. These little attentions make the operation of the machine easier and help avoid costly replacements.

If spark problems have been noticed, it is best to take the engine to a service centre and have it overhauled. The timing points and condenser are inside the flywheel, which is easily damaged or split unless you have the proper tools for removal and replacement.

There are two magnets set into the rim of the flywheel which operate in connection with the coil to provide the spark. The surfaces of these magnets often become coated with rust which should be gently removed with fine sandpaper, not emery cloth.

Lawnmowers need the underside of the body thoroughly cleaned, first by scraping with a putty knife, then washing with warm water and a small stiff scrub brush.

After a thorough drying, remove the coat of rust and give a good coat of engine enamel. This will preserve the body and there will be less chance of the engine-mounting holes tearing away.

Always do the servicing of machines outdoors under cover, never in a basement. Many serious fires have resulted from gasoline fumes being drawn into the flame of an oil burner furnace. Be safety conscious, not accident prone.

If you are not mechanically minded and have no tools, take a gasoline driven machine to a service shop now for a complete check. It is better to have the work done now than to have to wait four weeks during the spring rush.

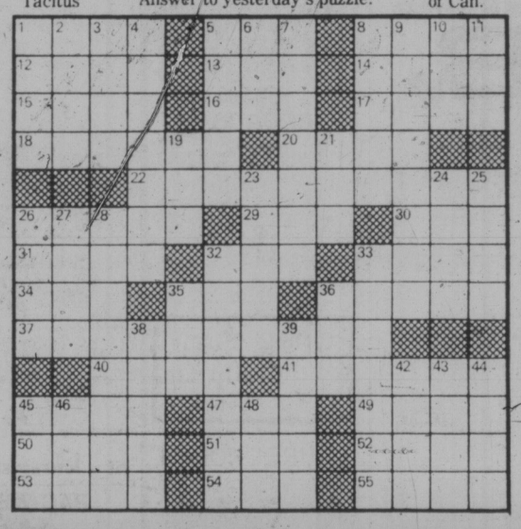
Answer to yesterday's puzzle.



NATO, WARSAW PACT DIALOGUE URGED

BRUSSELS, Belgium (AP) — British Foreign Secretary David Owen told NATO foreign ministers today that they and their Warsaw pact counterparts should meet to create a "political dialogue" in the interest of detente.

The ministers opened their semi-annual meeting without U.S. State Secretary Cyrus Vance and with the Europeans chiding the Carter administration because it is slow in honoring promises to join them in increasing defence spending.

Owen said a meeting of military officials of the opposing blocs still appears impossible, but "I believe a dialogue between foreign ministers is overdue."

He suggested a ministerial meeting might give impetus to the Vienna negotiations on troop reductions by both sides in central Europe.

For years the United States has appealed to its allies in the North Atlantic Treaty Organization to shoulder a greater share of the NATO defence burden. Now, 18 months after President Carter prodded a majority into agreeing to increase their military budgets three per cent a year from 1980 through 1984, Carter is reconsidering his promise to do likewise.

Statistics released by NATO headquarters Wednesday showed that the United States is still far ahead of the other allies in per-capita defence spending. The report said U.S. military spending this year averages $425 a citizen, France is second with $274 and West Germany third with $256.

A Christmas Computer For Painless Shopping

MANCHESTER, N.H. (AP) — That red glow in Santa's cheeks may be from jealousy. A computer is upstaging him in this New Hampshire community.

Digital Equipment Corp. is experimenting with a free computerized Christmas shopping list service at a mall here. In seconds, printouts spew forth gift suggestions for undecided shoppers.

A man wanting to spend $100 for his wife in the general category, obtained a printout that began: "Merry Christmas from the Digital Store! Below is a list of gifts the computer found on the codes that you entered into the computer."

The list featured one ounce of Yves St. Laurent perfume for $100; canaries that are "guaranteed" to sing for $69.99; or, if all else fails, a Digital hard disk for $99 to use in "your own" home computer.

Another customer brought a colleague's request for her sister — an architect, age 28, size 16, who is "into historic buildings and shuns materialism."

"Merry Christmas," the no-nonsense computer responded 10 seconds after the data was received. "Black or white glittery tops, pastel proportioned pants and baby doll pyjamas," it suggested confidently.

"What a gimmick — too bad I didn't have that when I started," said shopper Rita Mango as she stood in front of the computer in the middle of the crowded shopping mall. "I could stand here all day — it's fun."

Equality Before Law Demanded By Peking Newspaper

HONG KONG (AP) — China's Communist party newspaper, The People's Daily, on Wednesday called for an end to arbitrary justice in the country and suggested all citizens should be treated equally.

The Hong Kong communist newspaper Ta Kung Pao today carried an excerpt of The People's Daily article.

"However high one's position or worthy one's deeds," the article is quoted as saying, "if he has committed crimes he will be punished according to the law just like an ordinary person and cannot enjoy special previleges."

The Peking newspaper said that in China "all citizens should be equal under the law" and "should enjoy the rights they deserve and should carry out their obligations."

Iran Evacuation Plans Escalate

Times News Services

TEHRAN — The U.S. embassy today went ahead with plans for the voluntary evacuation of dependents of American personnel in strife-torn Iran as troops blocked a student protest demonstration at Tehran University.

U.S. diplomats did not disclose how many dependents of American officials now are in Iran.

In fact, the diplomats said they were no longer sure how many of the original 41,000 Americans living and working in Iran still remained.

Tehran's martial law administrator, meanwhile, warned against new protests reportedly planned during weekend Moslem mourning rites.

But Karim Sanjabi, the 73-year-old leader of the National Front opposition party who was released from jail Wednesday night, announced his support for a massive peace march planned Sunday by Tehran's clergy.

Some 4,000 members of the German community reportedly have left Iran, including nearly all the wives and children of Germans employed in Tehran.

German sources said thousands more of the once 14,000-strong German community were preparing to leave and tickets were difficult to obtain.

The Italian embassy reported a similar situation.

The departure of Americans began in September and peaked Wednesday when hundreds piled onto flights as fears of fresh violence during the Moslem high holy days of Moharram mounted.

U.S. 'Lags Behind' In Air Defences

LONDON (UPI) — The United States is lagging behind both the Soviet Union and its own European allies in aircraft design and development, the authoritative Jane's All The World's Aircraft said today.

Jane's said the U.S. Air Force still is using 20 year-old F-106A Delta Dart fighters to defend the continental United States and B-52 bombers, which went into service 23 years ago, to spearhead its strategic attack force.

But it said the B-1 bomber, which President Carter canceled for economy reasons in June, 1977, still could be modified for use as a launching platform for the Cruise missiles Carter ordered to be one of the United States' main strategic weapons in place of the B-1.

"Nobody underrates the ability of the U.S. aerospace industry or the part it will continue to play in equipping airlines and air forces throughout the world. But the picture is not entirely inspiring," Jane's said in a foreword to its 1978-79 edition by editor John W.R. Taylor, a noted British aviation writer.

"In the military field," it said, "the USAF has to continue defending its homeland with 20-year-old fighters and to devise ways of penetrating the world's most formidable air defense systems with a type of bomber that entered service 23 years ago and is expected to go on flying as the spearhead of America's strategic attack force for another 22 years."

Jane's said that after Carter cancelled the B-1 program "it was soon clear that the alternative systems would not even get off the ground without some aeronautical assistance."

"Knowing where the potential targets are, it became easy for the Soviet Union to plan concentration of its air defenses in the few zones from which the weapons might be launched from aircraft that would hardly be committed to a long penetration flight over its territory," Jane's said.

It listed the British built Harrier "jump jet" fighter and the Anglo-French Concorde supersonic airliner as examples of current European aerospace successes.

It described the Panavia Tornado, a twin-engined supersonic fighter and strike plane built jointly by West Germany, Italy and Britain as "a great aircraft."

GOLD PRICES SLUMP

WASHINGTON (AP) — The International Monetary Fund sold 490,000 ounces of gold Wednesday at an average price of $196.06 an ounce, down sharply from the average price of $224.02 an ounce a month ago.

The IMF said successful bids ranged from $195.51 to $196.75. Bids were received for a total of about two million ounces.

The auction of IMF gold raised an additional $74.2 million for its special trust fund to benefit the world's poorest countries, raising the total in the fund from IMF gold auctions to date to $2.04 billion.

Haze Blocks Venus View

MOUNTAIN VIEW, Calif. (AP) — Venus' surface is blocked from view by thick haze in its upper atmosphere that sits atop a cloud layer 18 kilometres deep, the first photograph from an orbiting U.S. spacecraft shows.

The initial image of earth's closest planetary neighbor, basked in ultraviolet radiation at sunrise, looks like a crescent moon with no discernible features.

Scientists at the National Aeronautics and Space Administration's Ames Research Centre said they were not surprised by the lack of detail in the image unveiled Wednesday as the Pioneer Venus I satellite entered its third day of orbit around the planet.

"We had expected that at this . . . angle, we would not see very much stark contrast," said Dr. Larry Travis, a physicist from Goddard Institute for Space Studies in New York who analyzed the image for reporters here.

The photograph was constructed from observations made over four hours with a cloud photopolarimeter aboard the 800-pound craft, in an elliptical orbit since Monday.

The device is used to study the 18-kilometre-thick layer of sulphuric acid clouds which envelops Venus.

The climax of the $225-million space effort to gain a comprehensive look at Venus' climate and topography is expected Saturday when the orbiter will be joined briefly by five smaller spacecraft.

GIANT KELP TRANSPLANTED

PASADENA (AP) — Giant kelp plants are being replanted in an experimental ocean farm to see if kelp can be an economical source of food and energy, scientists said Wednesday.

Marine biologists from California Institute of Technology said they already had replanted the first of 100 plants in an experimental deep-water farm about seven kilometres offshore between Laguna Beach and Newport Beach, 70 km southwest of Los Angeles.

If the project is successful, biologist Wheeler North said, it could be the beginning of vast kelp plantings on the ocean floor.

"It would give us some breathing space before we have to face the ultimate problem that the earth just isn't big enough to meet man's demands," North said.

The project to farm kelp, which produces methane gas, is being financed with $4 million from the U.S. department of energy and the Institute of Gas Technology.

North said a substance called algin also can be extracted from kelp and used in such products as auto tires, salad dressing, ice cream and beer.

MALE MODEL WROTE POLITICIAN'S MOM

Thorpe Papers Found In Closet

MINEHEAD, England (Reuter) — Builders refurbishing a London office stumbled across a hidden cupboard and found documents linking the names of politician Jeremy Thorpe and the former male model who claims they were once homosexual lovers, a court was told Wednesday.

Thorpe, 49, and three other men are appearing at a preliminary hearing into charges that they plotted to kill the model, Norman Scott.

The state has alleged that Thorpe, former leader of the Liberal party, feared his career would be ruined by Scott, who was claiming publicly to have been seduced in 1961 by the politician.

The court has been told that Peter Bessell, at the time one of Thorpe's close friends and a Liberal member of parliament, was asked to look after the Scott problem. He has been a major Crown witness against Thorpe at the hearing.

In 1974 Bessell's business failed, and he went to live in the United States. Builders moved in to refurbish his office in London's fashionable Pall Mall street.

In statements read to the court Wednesday by prosecutor Peter Taylor, two builders described finding a black document case hidden in a concealed cupboard in the ceiling. There were letters, account books and cheque stubs — some of the material relating to Thorpe.

A letter from Scott to Mrs. Ursula Thorpe, the Liberal leader's mother, was among documents one of the builders sold to the Sunday Mirror newspaper for the equivalent of $400.

Scott has already testified that he wrote to Mrs. Thorpe accusing her son of seducing him while on a visit to her home.

A statement to the court from the newspaper said its legal department kept copies of the documents, which were given to Thorpe.

The magistrates are sitting to decide whether Thorpe and his co-defendants should stand trial on conspiracy charges for plotting an abortive attempt to murder Scott.

The state case is that an airline pilot named Andrew Newton was hired to kill Scott, but bungled the attempt and killed Scott's dog.

Don't Destroy Morale: Vorster

CAPE TOWN (Reuter) — President John Vorster said today the government scandal over misuse of secret funds must not be allowed to undermine South Africa's will to fight its enemies.

Opening a special parliamentary session to debate a report on the scandal, the former prime minister said the government was determined to take action against any person or organization found to have misappropriated money.

"At the same time, however, it is of the utmost importance that we do not allow confidence in South Africa's will and ability to fight its enemies to be undermined," Vorster said.

Allegations that these funds — running into millions of dollars — were misused or misappropriated by members of the now-disbanded information department were investigated by a judical commission.

A commission report, released Monday, castigated former cabinet minister Connie Mulder for incompetence and negligence in running the department and suggested criminal charges against two of his former top officials. It is the reason for the special session of parliament, expected to last two days.

It is the first such extraordinary session since 1939 when the government decided to join Britain at war against Nazi Germany..

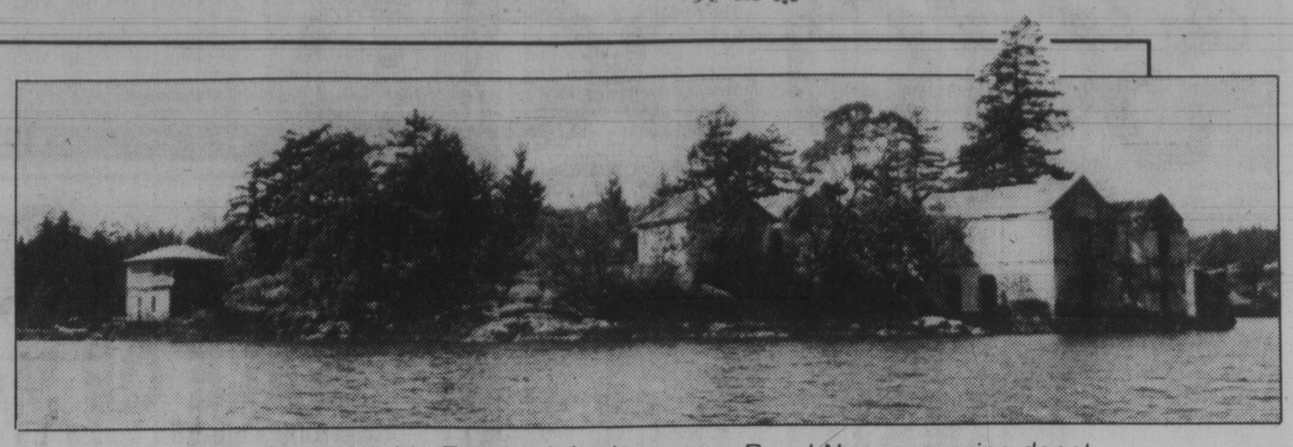
Historic Island 'Badly Neglected'



Tiny Cole Island in Esquimalt harbor was a Royal Navy magazine depot

By HUMPHRY DAVY
Times Staff

PARKS Canada is neglecting the maintenance of historic Cole Island in Esquimalt harbor.

The charge comes from Lloyd Brooks, former deputy minister of recreation and conservation and now a special government adviser.

The island — which served as a Royal Navy magazine depot when Vancouver Island was a colony — is under the jurisdiction of Fort Rodd Hill National Historic Park.

But Brooks said the federal authorities are doing a poor job.

"The buildings are unique but they're being badly neglected," he said.

Brooks said in visits to historic sites across Canada, he has yet to see buildings like them.

Yet looters are still taking bricks stored in one of the buildings on the island, he said.

The bricks are from nine buildings dismantled because they were unsafe. Seven buildings remain.

Brooks also said the dock has been left to deteriorate.

"No one has been troubled to use a few nails to stop the dock from gradually going to pieces."

B.C., Brooks said, turned over the island to Parks Canada on the understanding the historic site would be looked after.

This has not happened and vandalism has increased because the place has been let go.

"If you want to curb vandalism, you have to look after a place," Brooks said.

"If it looks like no one cares, it's an invitation for people to take things."

He said the bricks, iron sheeting and other materials from the old buildings should be stored in the Fort Rodd Hill compound.

The materials are ancient and cannot be replaced for proposed restoration projects on the island.

Brooks is also concerned with the National Historic Board's claim that the island is not of national historic significance.

"The trouble is the board is oriented to historic sites in Eastern Canada," he said.

"They (board members) deal with historic buildings much older than structures in Western Canada. They tend to forget that some buildings in B.C. are old in relation to the province's history."

If the island was designated as being of national historic importance it would mean funds would be more readily available for its maintenance.

Cole Island, Brooks said, is of historic significance to the whole of Western Canada.

The island, rimmed with arbutus trees, is about 400 feet long and 200 feet wide.

Its powder magazine was established in 1863 and was a vital source of supplies for Royal Navy ships serving on the west coast of North America.

The buildings are among the last remnants of coastal work carried out by the Royal Engineer's.

Similar powder magazines can only be found in the former Crown colony of Antigua in the West Indies.

Park superintendent Ian MacLean said he is equally concerned with vandalism on Cole Island and has frequently contacted the RCMP.

"The problem is if we move the loose bricks and materials from the island, then some one will start removing bricks from the walls of the standing buildings," he said.

"To adequately protect the island, someone has to live on it."

MacLean said he is taking the matter up with Parks Canada's regional office in Calgary.

Region Power-Trippers Cut Down by Vander Z

By PAUL NICHOLSON
Times Staff

Municipal Affairs Minister Bill Vander Zalm made it clear Wednesday that regional governments can forget about increasing their powers.

Vander Zalm — who raised eyebrows and the ire of welfare recpients in his previous portfolio as human resources minister — served notice in an interview he'll be just as controversial and tough in his new cabinet job.

The minister said he will take a firm position on regional district growth and expansion while remaining flexible on urban transit — the top two priority items in his new portfolio.

In the interview Wednesday — only his second day in municipal affairs following Premier Bill Bennett's cabinet reorganization Monday — Vander Zalm was positively negative about a recent report on regional governments that recommends they be given more autonomy and authority.

"The main recommendations (of the regional district review committee) really suggest regional districts become a fourth level of government," he said.

"I would be very opposed to that."

He said endorsing such an expansion of regional powers would go against his duty.

"My job in part — certainly my personal attitude — is to reduce the amount of government in the province," he said.

"B.C. with about 2.5 million people is only the size of a European city yet we have so many levels of government and so many bureauacracies, it's unreal."

Vander Zalm considers the newly-created Urban Transit Authority the other item needing immediate attention in his new portfolio.

The UTA was set up by legislation last spring to take over the operation of municipal transit systems from B.C. Hydro and other operators.

The methods of funding the take-over — giving municipalities the right to impose gasoline surcharges, increase property taxes and increase the levy on household utilities — has been criticized by municipal politicians among others.

Vander Zalm says he will discuss the set-up with municipal officials and others involved with the authority to find out their objections and what they believe the strengths and weaknesses of the proposal appear to be.

"I'm open. I will be prepared to consider going back to government with alternate suggestions. I'm completely open on it," he said.

He sees little problem in dealing with municipalities. He said he has always got along well with people in that area and was personally involved for many years as mayor of Surrey.

"I have absolutely no enemies in the field so I can see me giving a good ear to any and all of them," he said.

If there are any complaints regarding provincial funding it's a public relations problem more than one with substance, he said.

"The message has to get out that we have been very kind to municipal governments. I wish things had been as they are now when I was a mayor," he said.

"The revenues to municipalities have increased very, very substantially, so if there is any problem in that end of it, it's probably a problem with us not having gotten the message out as well as we might have.

"But the record shows we have been extremely generous to municipalities, villages and towns," he said.

Lower Mainland municipal officials will likely be pleased with the appointment of Vander Zalm to the ministry.

They hadn't been meeting with much success in their appeal to the province for assistance in getting a light rapid transit system set up.

Vander Zalm says he won't discard the possibility of LRT although the economics have to be closely looked into.

But there is a problem of too much traffic on some of the freeways, bridges and tunnels and "I think that is something that ought to be looked at."

He said it is "fair comment" to conclude from his statements that as a Lower Mainland MLA (his predecessor Hugh Curtis represents Saanich) he would likely be more willing to lend a sympathetic ear.

Ultimatum Handed Faculty Club

Saanich health inspectors have given the University of Victoria Faculty Club six months to decide whether to clean up or close down its premises.

Club president Reg Mitchell said today health inspectors asked the club to make a commitment to renovate the facilities, which are in old army huts, or move elsewhere on campus.

Mitchell said the six-month deadline is the impetus the club needs to get going on the plan for new quarters, which has been in the discussion stage for some time.

"It's given us the stick we need to get a move on," he said.

Club members have been difficult to convince that either large-scale renovations or a move is necessary.

Health inspectors have ordered the club to expand its kitchen cold storage facilities and build an additional staff washroom.

The club was also ordered to make other minor renovations that would bring the total bill to about $50,000, Mitchell said.

A proposal to move the club to UVic's University House on Haro Road was put before the board of governors earlier this year. Renovations to that building would cost $700,000, but such a move now seems less likely, Mitchell said.

The board of governors and the faculty club board of directors will meet to develop a mutually acceptable proposal by April.

Salary Ceiling For Councils?

Salary ceilings for municipal council members will be considered by Municipal Affairs Minister Bill Vander Zalm.

The minister, who took over the portfolio Monday, was commenting on a decision by Burnaby council to increase the salary of Mayor Tom Constable by 6.5 per cent to $35,000 a year, making him the highest-paid mayor in the province.

Burnaby aldermen gave themselves a raise of 22 per cent by increasing their salaries to $9,000 from $7,380.

The minister described the boosts as "pretty hefty."

He said he is concerned when council members vote themselves increases that, in percentage terms, are far in excess of salary increases they are prepared to discuss with municipal employees.

The minister said the time may have come for the government to set down pay guidelines for councils.

Symphony Manager Named

A former general manager of the Thunder Bay Symphony Orchestra in Thunder Bay, Ont., has been hired for four months in a consulting and managerial capacity by the Victoria Symphony.

Announcing Mary Carr's appointment as interim symphony manager today, society president Dorothy Frost said her job will be to "get the symphony's administration and day-to-day operations in order."

Carr starts work on Monday. Her presence, Frost said, will allow the board of directors to get on immediately with its most important task, fund raising.

Frost said Carr has equal experience in musical training and performance and in arts administration.

She studied at the Royal Conservatory of Music and at the University of Toronto opera school, and has been a guest soloist with many orchestras and choral groups.

Her nine years of arts administration experience included two years (from January, 1976, to February, 1978) as general manager of the Thunder Bay Symphony.

Asked whether the appointment might be extended or made permanent after the four-month period, Frost said that would depend on whether the symphony's financial difficulties had eased by then.

"We didn't feel we were in any position to offer anyone anything more permanent. Probably I think we would be advertising nationally (for a full-time manager)," she added.

This fall the flat-broke Victoria Symphony appeared close to foundering.

Compromises Forced On Base: Coast Guard

By MARK HUME
Times Staff

The Canadian Coast Guard is proceeding with plans for its new base on Dallas Road despite city objections because it can't afford to make the beautification changes requested, a Transport Canada official said today.

City hall is unhappy with the buildings the Coast Guard is erecting at the entrance to the Inner Harbor.

But Steve Ryback, a public affairs manager for Transport Canada, said a shortage of funds has forced the coast guard to compromise its standards.

"We've only got $10¼ million budgeted for that base — the public trough is not bottomless. We'll go as far as we can to meeting the requirements of city council, but we can only go so far," said Ryback.

The city first became upset when the Coast Guard changed its building plans so that the four main structures were to be steel-clad rather than concrete block.

Ryback said a number of changes have occurred in the plans because of financial restrictions imposed by Ottawa, and because tenders came in higher than expected.

"We just can't do what we would have liked because there is no money," he said.

He stressed that the Coast Guard is doing its utmost to accommodate the city's concerns but, "we are caught in an inflexible position financially."

He added that "people have got to realize it's not going to be a park, it's going to be a working base for the Coast Guard."

The base will feature four main buildings, workyards, and accomodation for five helicopters and four ships.

On Wednesday, city council's planning committee chairman Ald. Bob Wright indicated Victoria plans to dig its heels in and demand a more esthetic base.

Ask the Times

Q. Can you tell me where the first paved road was built? H.J.W.

A. Babylon had paved roads as long ago as 2000 B.C.

Q. Was the Quebec Act of 1774 a factor in bringing about the American Revolution? B.H.

A. Yes. The British parliament extended the provincial boundaries of Quebec to include all the Old Northwest, which comprised the territories bounded by the Ohio and Mississippi Rivers. It substituted the French civil code for English civil law and gave freedom of worship to the Roman Catholic Church in Canada. The liberal policies angered the American colonies.

Q. Do you know what museum or art gallery has Delacroix's famous painting — Jacob's Wrestling? H.W.D.

A. The painting is in Saint-Sulpice Church in Paris in the Saint-Germain Quarters.

Q. I have been told that most of the ancient Egyptian artifacts, including tombs and buildings have been removed from Egypt or destroyed and damaged beyond repair. Is this true? W.W.

A. Yes. During the 19th century thousands of tombs were looted for sale to museums and private collectors. Entire buildings, including monuments, were moved from sites along the Nile.
